29. When bills are reported from committee they shall be placed upon the General File, to be kept by the Secretary as follows: All bills when reported to the Senate by the committee shall be placed at the foot of the second reading Senate or Assembly file, in the order in which the reports are made, and after the second reading they shall be placed at the foot of the Senate or Assembly third reading file, in the order of reading. Unless otherwise ordered by the Senate the File shall be taken up in the following order: Senate second reading file, Assembly second reading file and Senate third reading file, Assembly third reading file. The bills upon third reading shall be considered in the order in which they appear upon the File, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate.

An inactive file shall be kept to which bills may be transferred at the request of the author, or on motion, and they shall be so transferred when they have been passed on third reading file without action three successive times. Bills may be carried on the inactive file by author and bill number without setting forth the title.

Bills may be transferred from the inactive file to the second reading file on motion, and after being read the second time such bills will take their place regularly on third reading file and be available for consideration and passage.

Notices of committee hearings shall be published in the File whenever presented by chairmen of committees to the Secretary for that purpose. For such purpose bills will be identified by subject or by number.

Special Order

30. Any measure or subject may, by vote of a majority of those voting, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate.

Messages From the Governor or Assembly

31. Messages from the Governor or from the Assembly may be introduced at any stage of business except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, or while a Senator is addressing the Senate.

Messages from the Governor or from the Assembly may be considered when indicated in the order of business or at any other time by unanimous consent or upon motion.

Engrossing Bills

32. All Senate bills, constitutional amendments and joint or concurrent resolutions shall be engrossed before final action is taken on them in the Senate. Engrossment shall consist of comparing the printed engrossed bill with the original bill introduced and any amendments adopted to ascertain that it is correct. When a bill is reported correctly engrossed it shall be substituted on the File for the original bill.

Enrolling Bills

33. All Senate bills shall be enrolled immediately following their final passage and receipt from the Assembly. An enrolled copy of every such bill, amendment or resolution shall be printed and examined to ascertain that it is a true and accurate copy of the measure as it was passed. It shall then be authenticated by the signatures of the President or President pro tempore of the Senate and the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary of the Senate and by the corresponding officers of the Assembly and transmitted without delay to the Governor.

Debate

Statement of Motion

34. No motion shall be debated until the same be distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President or any Senator, and read by the Secretary, before the same shall be debated.

Regulations as to Speaking

35. 1. When a Senator desires to address the Senate, he shall rise in his place, address the President, and when recognized he may proceed to speak.

2. No Senator shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill, without leave; and Senators who have once spoken shall not again be entitled to the floor (except for explanation) so long as any Senator who has not spoken desires to speak.

3. When two or more Senators arise at the same time to address the Senate, the presiding officer shall designate the Senator who is entitled to the floor.

4. No Senator shall be interrupted when speaking, and no question shall be asked him except through the presiding officer.

5. The author of a bill, motion, or resolution shall have the privilege of closing the debate.

Order in Debate

36. When a Senator shall be called to order he shall sit down until the President shall have determined whether he is in order or not; and every question of order shall be decided by the President, subject to an appeal to the Senate by any Senator. If a Senator be called to order for words spoken, the objectionable language shall immediately be taken down in writing by the Secretary of the Senate.

Right to Address the Senate

37. No person other than a member of the Senate or the President thereof, shall address the Senate while it is in session but the Senate may resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole and while sitting as such committee may be addressed by persons other than members.

Questions and Motions

Amendments to Bills

38. When amendments to a bill are reported by a committee or offered from the floor, such amendments shall be submitted in triplicate.

Adoption of amendments to any bill in the Senate prior to third reading, other than by roll call, shall not preclude subsequent consideration in committee or on the third reading of the bill, of such amendments or any part thereof, by the Senate.

Motion to Lay on the Table

39. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

Division of a Question

40. If a question in debate contains more than one distinct proposition, any Senator may have the same divided.

The Previous Question

41. The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall require a majority vote of the Senators present; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate except that the author of the bill or the amendment shall have the right to close, and the question under discussion shall thereupon be immediately put to a vote.

Call of the Senate

42. Upon a motion being carried for a call of the Senate, the President shall immediately order the doors to be closed, and shall direct the Secretary to call the names of the absentees as disclosed by the last previous roll call. Thereupon, no member shall be permitted to leave the Senate Chamber except by written permission of the President pro tempore or in his absence of the presiding officer. Those members who are found to be absent and for whom no excuse or insufficient excuses are made, may, by order of those present, be taken into custody, as they appear, or may be sent for and then taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms wherever found, or by special messenger to be appointed for that purpose. In the absence of a quorum, a majority of the members present may order a roll call of the Senate and compel the attendance of absentees in the manner above provided.

A call of the Senate may be ordered after the roll has been called and prior to the announcement of the vote.

No recess can be taken during a call of the Senate. During a call, the Senate may consider and transact any matter or business that the Senators then present shall unanimously decide to consider, but no call of the Senate shall be had during a call of the Senate. When a call of the Senate is ordered, pending the announcement of the vote upon the completion of a roll call, the pending roll call shall become unfinished business, the consideration of which shall be continued until further proceedings under the call of the Senate are dispensed with, when it will forthwith become the order of business before the Senate.

Reconsideration

43. On the day on which a vote has been taken on any question a motion to reconsider the vote may be made by any member.

The motion may be considered on the day made or on the succeeding legislative day but may not be further postponed without the concurrence of 27 members.

No vote on a Senate bill may be reconsidered on or after the last day fixed for the consideration of Senate bills prior to adjournment and no vote may be reconsidered on the last day of the session.

When reconsideration of the vote by which any bill was passed has been demanded the Secretary shall not transmit it to the Assembly until the demand has been disposed of or the time for reconsideration has expired, but if the bill has already been transmitted to the Assembly the demand for reconsideration shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the bill. This motion shall be put to vote immediately without debate and if not adopted shall preclude a demand for reconsideration.

A demand to reconsider the vote on any debatable question opens the main question to debate and the vote on the reconsideration shall be on the merits of such main question.

Voting by Senate

Voting on Roll Call

44. Whenever a roll call is required by the Constitution or Rules, or is ordered by the Senate or demanded by three members, every member within the Senate shall without debate answer "Aye" or "No" when his name is called.

The names of members shall be called alphabetically.

No Senator shall be permitted to vote or change his vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

Excused From Voting

45. When a Senator declines or fails to vote on call of his name he may, after completion of the roll call, and before the announcement of the vote be required to assign his reasons therefor, and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the Senate: "Shall the Senator, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which question shall be decided without debate. Unless the Senator is excused from voting he shall be required to vote.

Voting by Presiding Senator

46. When the President pro tempore or any other member of the Senate is presiding over the Senate he shall vote on roll call the same as though he were not presiding.

It will be noted that there are but 18 counties included in the above tabulation. The remaining counties have heretofore reported that there are not now, and have not been in the past, any Torrens title registrations in their respective counties.

The books of the State Treasurer, as reflected by his report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944, show a cash balance of $48.06 in the "Torrens Title Assurance Fund" and a net deficit of $7,317.04.

MESSAGE ORDERED PRINTED IN JOURNAL

Message of Governor Earl Warren to the 1945 Legislature, January 8, 1945

I welcome you to Sacramento. I welcome you because I know that in these trying times we can, together, do a better job for the people of our State than I can possibly do alone.

From the strength of your presence I gain confidence that we can bring into existence better services for all our people—both for those who are across the seas in the armed forces and for those who are here at home.

We assemble as men and women determined that all our actions shall sustain the mighty war effort to which our State and Nation are geared.

We meet as representatives of a people who are conscious of the disruptions, the distortions, the congestions and the sorrows of three long years of war. They look to us for a steadying influence. They recognize that the war is still to be won. They know that men are still to die in the performance of duty. They realize that our State must continue fervently to serve the Nation and the entire allied cause. They know that, when victory has been achieved in Europe, California will serve as the funnel through which will flow the strengths for final victory in the Pacific.

In the midst of these terrible strains, and they will of necessity increase, the people have the right to look to us for prompt decision in all matters concerned with the war effort. But, along with that, they have the right to expect from us the foresight to so plan that our war-produced aggravations do not take permanent root. They expect us to start now cutting away the handicaps to social and economic progress in the days of peace to come.

In stamina and fighting strength our people have added immeasurably to the record of National war accomplishment. Nor are they lacking in vision and courage to prepare for a better future. They look to us for action now because they recognize both war and victory to be but component parts of the continuing challenge to build a better way of life.

There is much for us to do and do now. There are many fields for us to plow together—fields that will produce rich crops of human betterment for our people—fields that are not in the zone of partisanship, but which are the common concern of all men.

It is in the cultivation of these fields, in the sacrificial spirit of our times, that I trust we can work together—just as we were able to work together to the satisfaction of all Californians in the regular and special sessions of the last Legislature.

Government Is Sound

It is in this spirit, as well as in accordance with the Constitution, that I report on the condition of your State, the status of its Government and the needs of our people.

First, I report to you that your Government is sound—sound in finances, in integrity, and in conformation to the spirit and the policies established by your honorable body.

We have lived, during the past two years, within the budget which you have allowed. We have administered your laws in the spirit of their enactment. We have counseled with the officers of your bodies and with your Interim Committees. The constitutional officers have been cooperative and the employees of the State have been faithful in the performance of their duties.

Our relations with our neighboring States have been progressively cordial. It has been my privilege and the privilege of your own representatives, to confer with Governors and officials of these sister States on many occasions. It is my desire, and I am sure it is yours, that we continue to further such inter-State cooperation. Our neighboring States share with us the faith that we together can cause to rise from out of this present confusion and dislocation, a way of life which will insure added happiness to millions now living in this great Western Empire and millions yet to come. In the furtherance of this common effort we must guard against restrictive legislation which interferes with the free flow of commerce between the States of our Union.

Our relations with the numerous Federal agencies, both civilian and war service, have likewise been mutually cooperative. I consider this a matter of special importance because in these war times, Government has become more complex and therefore more susceptible to irritations. In a State which has so much war congestion, and which has launched so many new and large production programs, it is particularly important that the spirit of cooperation be furthered among all agencies which can be of service to the people.

Enough War Agencies

We have maintained these relationships and worked at our war purposes with a minimum of new State agencies. It is my hope that we can continue to do so. In fact, I am of the opinion that we should go further, either at this session or some special session called for the express purpose, and consider matters of reorganization which will lead to streamlining the performance of many State functions now in existence.

In this connection, I might add that the status of two of our war-created agencies could well be reappraised to meet the present situation. The War Council and the Farm Production Council have served the State well, but some of the military conditions which brought them into being are materially changed, and others no longer exist. Such changes might reasonably call either for a change in their functions or the fixing of a date for their termination, with a distribution of their remaining responsibilities to regular departments of the State Government.

The only other war created agency, the Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission, was designed particularly for the postwar period and, in my opinion, should not only be continued, but should be given added support. It has studied present and past conditions and, through the assistance of approximately 600 committee members from almost every walk of life, it will soon be prepared to report to you on many subjects which vitally affect the future of our State. I shall not take your time today to discuss this important subject but will await the report of the commission.

However, in justice to all those who have so patriotically contributed to the war effort, I will say that California has been a tower of strength to the National cause. It now ranks first in military and manufacturing facilities financed by the Federal Government. Measured in dollars, it ranks third in contracts for war supplies and facilities. It has proven itself an amazing storehouse for indispensable elements of war. It has handled one-sixth of the National contracts for ship construction and repair. Our ports and transportation facilities have kept an endless stream of men, equipment, and supplies moving to battlefronts throughout the world. Our farmers, producers, handlers, and processors, assisted by thousands of patriotic workers, have made a major contribution to the wartime food needs of our Nation. Manpower shortages and lack of adequate cold storage facilities to the contrary, California farmers have done their job, and done it well.

In the glowing record of wartime accomplishment in our State will be found many human considerations. It was not prewar Californians alone who made this record. We have had need for and have received assistance from hundreds of thousands of new Californians. We have been joined in our undertakings by new residents from almost every section of the country. In agriculture harvest we have had the welcomed assistance of Mexican Nationals, as well as the patriotic assistance of housewives and office workers.

The credit for our achievements goes to Californians, old and new. It goes to all men and women who, fired by a patriotic urge to help in the war effort, have been willing to make sacrifices, willing to work extra hours, willing to live under congested conditions. It goes to those million and a half new residents who have come to us since the start of the war. It goes to all who have made the winning of the war their immediate concern, and recent surveys show there are now more than 8,500,000 such residents of our State.

State Is Maturing

Our State now ranks third in the Nation in population. Growth such as this is naturally a matter of justifiable pride to us all. As Californians, we have long striven to attain such a position in the Union. Having attained the position, I am sure we all realize that there will be new and different factors influencing our future welfare. There will be new responsibilities for us to assume.

It is my very considered opinion that from this time on, it will not be necessary for us to concern ourselves primarily with the size of our State. Rather, our concern should be directed toward making our State a finer place—a better State in which to work and live.

What Servicemen Want

I have left unmentioned up to this point the major contribution which our State has made to the war effort. We find that contribution in the more than 850,000 men and women who have been or are now serving in the armed forces. Those men and women have left to us the task of strengthening the Democracy for which they are fighting. We all pray for the day of their return. But we must also plan for their return. How well we have planned, how promptly we have acted, and how broadly we have progressed, will be their first measure of us when they do return.

As I visualize their return to the homeland, these service men and women of ours will want to have the opposite of what they have experienced in foreign lands. First, they will want peace—peace that comes from the elimination of racial prejudices, religious bigotry, and political intolerance. They will want an opportunity to work and to help develop the vast natural resources of our State. They will want industrial peace. They will want to be protected against the ravages of mass unemployment. They will want to see new evidence that we realize the importance of strong and vigorous health programs for they will have seen sights which give urge to a search for perfection in this field.

They will want wholesome recreation for their families, as well as for themselves, and a high standard of educational opportunity offered in every part of the State. They will want safety at their work and in their homes and justice in all their relations with government.

It is of these things that I would talk to you today because I believe we can, working together at this session of the Legislature, make substantial advances on all of these fronts.

Labor Relations

In the field of labor relations, nothing could be more productive of peace than the continuance of your policy adopted in the last regular session, of looking with disfavor upon all legislation that might stir up animosity between labor and management. I am sure this is sound policy. In time of war, I consider it vital. In time of peace, I consider it no less important. Repressive legislation in this field will never be the answer to our problems.

Our comparative freedom from industrial dislocations during the past two years is, to me, proof that in California we have made progress in this field. Our loss of man-days of work because of labor-management controversy is far below the National average. To me, this is proof that the tolerance which comes only with understanding by both groups of the aims, the necessities, and the difficulties confronting each other has been on the increase.

Complete understanding in this controversial field of human relationship will never be brought about by legislation alone. Such understanding can come only in the course of collective bargaining by people who appreciate the common benefits to be derived from open and honest labor-management relationships. Such relationships will always be more dependent upon human relationships than upon law. The techniques in this field are at least as important as those in the fields of business management and technological advancement for which our schools offer special training. It is, therefore, my recommendation that there be established in the University of California, with adequate appropriation therefor, a School of Industrial Relations for the training of those who have the vision and the urge to learn what can and should be the guide-posts to advancement in this important field.

Safety for Workers

We are, today, the representatives of a full grown industrial State but we must bear in mind that this growth came fast and that in the industrial world it is still an adolescent State. There is need for strengthening and expanding many of our existing services which have to do with the preserving of human welfare within an industrial State. Our safety program, for example, has not kept pace with development. A large percentage of our people are daily being subjected to the dangers of industrial accidents.

All of us want to see California the safest place in the Union for industrial workers. I want to see conditions which will prevent workmen from losing arms, legs, and eyes, rather than to compensate them for such loss after the injury is done. But when a workman is injured, I want him to receive his compensation at the earliest possible time. This is not being done satisfactorily at the moment because of budgetarial limitations, obsolete organization of the Department of Industrial Relations and in many instances the failure of the insurance carrier to make prompt payment. All of these things shall be remedied.

Unemployment Insurance

Californians today can well afford to give voice to a word in praise of the foresight of that Legislature of several years ago which created the Employment Stabilization Fund. That fund, to which both employers and employees contribute, has grown during these years of wartime full employment, until it now amounts to over $600,000,000.

This is an enormous total, but, actually, when we consider the problems that may confront our State in the postwar period, it may prove none too large to meet necessity.

It is my purpose now to direct your attention to three changes in this act which I believe are called for at this time both in the interest of fairness and efficiency.

1. The Federal Government has recommended that all of the States provide for unemployment insurance up to a maximum of 26 weeks. Our State now provides for such payments for 23 and a fraction weeks. I recommend that the period be extended to comply with the Federal request.

2. Our law provides that no payments shall be made for the first two weeks of unemployment. It has been the conclusion of our commission, as well as the conclusion of other States, that the waiting period can justifiably be reduced to one week. I agree with the conclusion, and recommend that necessary legislation be enacted to accomplish this result.

3. I believe that most people who are interested in this type of protection are of the opinion that our statutory division between those who are and those who are not entitled to protection must not be looked upon as the final decision. We should be constantly endeavoring to extend the coverage wherever sound administration will permit. One of the most arbitrary limitations in the opinion of your commission, as well as myself, is that which limits opposition to the workman of concerns which employ four or more people. If the protection is desirable for the employees of larger firms, it is likewise desirable for those who work in establishments that hire three, or two, or one. I, therefore, recommend that the necessary action be taken to thus expand the coverage so these people will be protected by the fund.

Prepaid Medical Service

For many years California has been courageous in its undertakings in the field of humanitarian service to her citizens. Thirty-four years ago we provided for the payment of compensation for industrial accidents. Sixteen years ago we enacted our first Old-Age Pension Law and our Needy Blind Act. In 1935 we provided for unemployment insurance. Our people have long since accepted the principle of these services, and I doubt if there are many, even among those originally opposed to them, who would give them up now. They are universally recognized as desirable services of Government.

Thirty years ago we also started a movement for health insurance. At that time a Health Insurance Commission was appointed, and at several subsequent sessions of the Legislature bills on the subject were introduced. Studies have been made by legislative and private committees. Surveys reporting not only on the need but also on the desire of our people, in both the State and Nation, have been made. Voluntary programs to provide better medical care have been initiated by fraternal groups, industrial organizations, hospital associations, and the medical profession itself. Most of these have served a good purpose, but they have only scratched the surface. Even the laudable undertaking of the doctors, through the California Physicians' Service, has been able to attract only about 100,000 persons to its program in its six years of intensive effort.

It is now generally agreed that we can not bring proper standards of health to the people of every community through voluntary programs. The reason for this agreement rests in the fact that, in spite of all our haphazard efforts, the only people who are certain of receiving adequate medical attention today are those who are wealthy and those who are indigent and forced to accept public charity. The great mass of our people—the backbone of our country—those who work for a modest income and who strive conscientiously to maintain their families and themselves as upstanding Americans, are unable to pay for proper medical care when adversity strikes.

But it remained for the Selective Service to demonstrate the sordid results of neglected health. Even here in California, where the elements are conducive to good health and where the standards are higher than in most parts of the Country, 38 out of every 100 of our boys who were called to the service of their Country were rejected because of physical and mental defects. In figures, this adds up to 374,000. This figure alone, without the addition of similar figures for women and for those in younger and older age brackets, must give cause for alarm to every thoughtful citizen. The total cost of the continuance of these defects and illnesses to our State is enormous. Everyone must be concerned.

The fact is that most of these defects could have been prevented or cured by adequate and timely medical care.

Public health has always been considered the responsibility of community and State. I want to see it remain such a responsibility. But, I also believe that if we are to insist upon our right to such responsibility we must do whatever is necessary to measure up to it, or refrain from criticizing others for trying to meet it in other ways.

We have had enough investigation and enough talk to be ready for action. We have ample evidence that our people desire the protection. This is the time for action.

It is my recommendation that you take action at this session of the Legislature on a program which will bring adequate medical care to the people of our State on a prepaid basis. It is my suggestion that this be accomplished by building a fund, through pay roll deductions from both employer and employee, from which the costs of medical care can be financed. Such a program will pay dividends to everyone. It will relieve suffering and anguish in the home. It will increase efficiency in the shop and office. It will relieve our counties of much of their load of the indigent sick. It will make our citizens a healthier and therefore a happier people.

In our efforts to build an enlightened program to fill this obvious need for better distribution of health services and costs, I believe we must make certain, both for the advancement of medical science and for the best interests of our citizenry, that the professional relationship of doctor and patient be a matter of free choice. We do not want to put the medical profession on the public pay roll. We do not want to deprive the individual of the right to select his own physician. Our major purpose should be to spread the cost of medical care among all the people of the State. Those who are fortunately healthy at the moment can help pay for those who are not so fortunate, knowing that throughout the lifetime of everyone they will be able to receive benefits in repayment for their contribution.

There is no State in the Union better able to undertake such a humanitarian program than California, and I am convinced that, if we are to keep abreast of needs in the services which we afford our people, we must start on this program immediately.

Hospital Licensing

At the present time there is no provision for the licensing of hospitals in California as a means of insuring uniformly high standards. With the development of hospital facilities to meet the growing needs of our State, it is highly important that standards be set. I, therefore, recommend that legislation be enacted providing for the inspection and licensing of the hospitals which give service to our people.

Mental Health Program

There is another phase of our Public Health Problem in which I believe there exists a glaring need for modernization. In my opinion, we have made a rather bad job of caring for our mentally ill, both in California and throughout the Nation. In some respects at this time, we are, in California, far behind other leading States. We now have in our State hospitals, most of which are decidedly substandard, both as to physical plant and the amount of service rendered, over 30,000 patients. They are so crowded as to increase the tension of both the patient and the employee.

It is my hope that in all our State building plans these institutions will have first consideration until they have been brought up to standard. They have been neglected too long, and at this time we can not be proud of them.

Because of these conditions, patients are released on the unsound ground of improvement as distinguished from cure. They go back to their home communities to again be buffeted about and perhaps returned to the State hospitals.

We have done little or nothing to assist these people in their home communities or prevent the mental collapse which sends people to our hospitals. Yet Selective Service reports show 145,128 young men examined in the draft were rejected for reasons of mental disease, mental deficiency, or neurological causes. No other cause of rejection was so common.

Here again humanitarianism and economy link themselves as a reason for action by State Government. We should have clinics throughout the State where people undergoing mental strain can be treated and prevented, whenever possible, from mental crackups which will add to our hospital responsibility. We can not, of course, establish centers of this kind in every community in the State. It is my belief, however, that five properly located centers containing mobile units for use in surrounding communities would enable the State to make tremendous progress in the advancement of mental hygiene.

To further advance and better coordinate our programs dealing with mental illness, it is my recommendation that the Department of Institutions be reorganized. I recommend the transfer of the supervision of the Home for the Blind to the Department of Education. I recommend the organization of our mental hospitals into a Department of Mental Hygiene.

Crippled Children

I believe we must give additional attention to the rehabilitation of crippled children and to the restoration of the sight of the blind. We know that many of the defects revealed in the Selective Service figures were present in childhood and could have been corrected. Where recent community surveys have been made, it is shown that many children in our State have physical defects which can be corrected. The way is open for rapid advancement in this field in cooperation with and through county health authorities. The amount of money required to expand this program is small, but the opportunity for relieving dependency and affording happiness is great.

Recreational Needs

As we take inventory of the points which should be included in any broad program which gives heed to the social and health problems of our people, we must include the subject of recreation. We must look ahead to the day when the emergency pressures of the war are not filling the hours of our workers. We must look ahead to that day when hours of work have been shortened and there is time for the fuller enjoyment of life.

In our great war production centers today, 3,500,000 men and women are busy with wartime civilian tasks. We hope for continued industrial expansion when the war is over. We can not ignore the need for postwar expansion in our recreational programs. It is a challenge to Government at all of its levels. It means more parks, more playgrounds, more community centers, more beach improvements and more development of mountain retreats. In dividends it means better health and more contentment for all those millions whom postwar employment will keep at tasks within our congested areas.

It is with these thoughts in mind that I recommend to you the creation of a division in State Government to be charged with the responsibility of fostering and encouraging the expansion of recreational programs. It should have the authority to promote, by advice and leadership, recreational and community programs throughout the State. It should formulate programs which will lead to increased use of our many existing State-owned parks and beaches. And it should render service to all groups concerned with the enlargement of opportunity and the fostering of public use of California's unexcelled recreational advantages.

Park Expansion

I also recommend the immediate earmarking of sufficient funds from the existing State surplus to insure the eventual purchase of additional park and beach lands. Dollars earmarked in this manner will produce dividends for years to come. As the millions come to Southern California, and as industrial communities become more congested, I can think of nothing that would bring more wholesome or refreshing recreation to weary workers and their families than accessible public beaches of which we have altogether too few. I make this recommendation now, with two practical considerations in mind. One is that such funds are available. The other is that there are properties in California purchased by the Federal Government for war purposes which will probably be on the market when this war is over.

It follows that if we are to give the proper balance to this additional emphasis of the importance of recreation in our State we must maintain strong programs in furtherance of conservation of wild life. Maximum recreational opportunity in California calls for progressive programs dealing with fish and game. It calls for adequate fire laws and fire prevention services. It calls for State leadership in the development of sound cutting practices in our forests. It calls for reforestation programs and the promotion of further cooperation between the State and the lumbering industry. No State is blessed with greater natural advantages. No State has more reason for such cooperative programs.

Future Housing Needs

As we look to the creation of new opportunities for relaxation for our millions of workers we must of necessity give thought to the community environment in which they live. I find in the patience and the understanding of those hundreds of thousands of our workers residing in sub-standard housing in our congested cities, a distinct tribute to their patriotism. Without such a display of patriotism, California could not have gone month after month, with a very minimum of social friction. It is part of our job to encourage plans which will eliminate wartime hardship. None of us has the right to expect peacetime acceptance of these hardships to parallel that which we have witnessed during the war.

In my opinion, new thought must be directed to the problem of housing. To acquire our new position in the National industry picture, it was necessary to rush to completion new temporary housing costing millions of dollars. Actually, there is more Federally financed war housing in California today than is found in any other State. But the greater portion of this housing is of a type and standard not common to California. It is not in keeping with the type of housing which fits our vision of the future.

The situation raises a question as to whether this war housing can be disposed of until permanent housing of equal or better standard is provided. While I believe it is possible and desirable for private enterprise to meet the low cost housing needs of our future, I also believe there is a matter of public policy and protection involved.

Without question, there will be some extension, when the war is over, of the housing programs which have been initiated by the Federal Government. In the administration of its programs, I am sure the Federal Government will want to deal with the States. At the present time, we have no State agency in a position to deal with the Federal Government or with local governments in these matters.

It would seem to me, therefore, to be appropriate that we establish at this time a commission which can fully acquaint itself with our housing problems throughout the State and which can give assistance to local governments and private citizens and to the Federal agencies concerned with the problem.

Urban Redevelopment

In the course of developing new programs for low cost housing, we should seize upon the opportunity to clean up and eliminate areas of blight and slums in our communities. There is to be presented to this Legislature a proposal to provide for urban redevelopment. It will propose the exercise of the power of eminent domain to acquire the title to blighted areas and to permit their sound redevelopment by private enterprise. I urge that you give this proposal your serious consideration, not alone from the standpoint that our people must be afforded decent housing, but also from the standpoint that slum clearance will lead to the lessening of social friction, crime, and delinquency.

Social Relationships

In my opinion it is part of our immediate responsibility to prepare to deal with every type of extreme which may develop as a hindrance to social and economic welfare during the letdown from war to peace.

After every war letdowns occur, and during these periods there are likely to be upsurges of racial prejudice. Those who have had experience in such matters know how neglect in any single field of human relationship may lead to outbreaks which cast a shadow over an otherwise law abiding community.

We have made progress during the past two years in coordinating the approach of our law enforcement agencies to problems of this type. It has required the voluntary assumption of new responsibility by officials at all levels of Government and the services of many volunteers. But, I know the benefits of such cooperative effort have already been many times proven. Through this increase in general awareness of the cause of friction we have made a beginning.

During this war it has been well illustrated that, in their hearts, our people possess a desire to break down artificial barriers—the barriers which give rise to demonstration of racial prejudice. We recognize that the accomplishment of this purpose will do more to insure lasting peace throughout the world than all other factors combined.

What we strive to do in World affairs, we should most certainly augment by practices here at home. Actually, we have done but little so far in this important field of human relations. The Legislature, in 1937, by joint resolution, requested the Governor to appoint a committee known as the California Race Relations Commission. There are people who take it for granted that this commission is an active force in Government. Actually, there is doubt in my mind if it has any legal sanction at this time, and, if it does, I know it is without the powers and duties with which such an agency should be charged.

I, therefore, recommend that there be created a Commission on Political and Economic Equality for the purpose of studying minority problems. Primarily, this commission should have the responsibility of investigating and reporting to the Governor and the Legislature upon the enforcement of our statutes prohibiting discrimination and upon the necessity for new laws as well as other remedies. Under such a commission we could start to build a foundation for real political and economic equality for every citizen in the State.

Correctional Divisions

Those of you who were members of the last Legislature had a part in bringing about the broad changes which were made in our State Correctional System last year. I know, therefore, that most of you are familiar with my desire that California have an enlightened Correctional System which embodies both sound business procedure and rehabilitating custodial care.

You will remember that we abandoned at that time a program which originated in 1879. During the months which have elapsed since the new system was inaugurated studies of all our institutional problems have continued. There will be presented to you during the weeks to come a number of bills through which we believe further procedural improvements can be brought about. These I will not discuss at this time, but I do want to call your attention to one specific proposal which will be made.

There is serious need in our Correctional System at this time for a new institution to house that group of young men already too mature in crime to profit by the programs offered at Preston School of Industry and too immature in years for confinement in a prison for adults. The Youth Authority has immediate need for such an institution, and the present facilities of the Adult Authority provide no suitable answer.

It is my recommendation that the Legislature give authorization for the establishment of an intermediate reformatory to meet this problem. It is my suggestion that the Department of Corrections be granted authority to plan immediately for this new type of segregation to the end that the system may be under way by the time new facilities have been provided. I urge that you include provision for such an institution in your current State Building Program.

School Administration

During the Fourth Special Session of the last Legislature, provision was made for a survey of the administration, organization and finance of our Public School System in California. Such a study has been made under the direction of Dr. George D. Strayer, recognized authority in public school administration.

The results of this survey will soon be before you. Awaiting opportunity to join with you in the analysis of the conclusions reached in this study, I am at this time withholding comment in regard to some of the problems I know to exist. I am confident the report will suggest many changes in organization. Before us, therefore, is the task of deciding how many of the recommendations included in the report we can accept at this time.

In school matters, as in all other matters, we must look ahead to the postwar period with recognition that our State has both grown and changed and that further changes are in prospect. Few of us can visualize at the moment all the changes which will be advisable in our school system when radio, talking pictures, and television are fully introduced into our Educational Program upon a postwar basis. This we know, however, as a certainty. Education is the bulwark of our representative and constitutional Government and it is our responsibility to see that it is permitted sound progress in every community in the State.

Pensions

In 1943, after thorough study of the subject, we increased old age assistance from $40 to $50 per month. The conditions which brought this increase into being still exist. Our finances are adequate for the purpose and I, therefore, recommend that the increase be continued during the next biennium.

State Financial Needs

During these war years, State revenues have soared to unprecedented amounts. We have frozen many millions for postwar construction to take care of a 10-year backlog of building needs and to cushion employment conditions during the period of reconversion. There will be millions left in our Treasury after these sums have been set apart. Many plans have been submitted for the use of this surplus. Most of them are for desirable purposes, but the question is—are they for essential purposes?

We have over a million and a half new residents in California since the 1940 Census. We expect over 800,000 veterans to return to us at the conclusion of war. This increased population will create new Governmental problems to be met in the future. The price of commodities is daily increasing. Government will of necessity be more expensive as time passes, and unless every dollar of our present income is spent prudently we will soon be operating on a deficit as we did for 10 consecutive years prior to the war. Any new spending habits set up now, must be projected into the future and paid for indefinitely. I, therefore, urge that all requested appropriations, both in and out of the budget, be scrutinized as carefully as though we were not operating on a surplus.

After financing our current Governmental requirements and a Postwar Reconstruction and Reemployment Program, it is my hope that we can freeze the remainder of our surplus in this and the next biennium for "a rainy day." Lean years invariably follow fat ones, and while we hope that California will always be prosperous, prudence and history teach us that the best way to remain prosperous is to guard against adversity. I, therefore, suggest to you that after appropriating necessary funds for the purposes above mentioned, you freeze the remainder of our surplus for unemployment relief, if and when such relief becomes necessary.

I also call your attention to the fact that since the abolition of the S.R.A., there has been no provision in State law for the administration of unemployment relief. I recommend that a system for the administration of such relief be immediately provided, to the end that our State will be in readiness, both administratively and financially, to begin dealing with the relief problem when it again arises.

Taxes

Two years ago we reduced the income tax, the bank and corporation franchise taxes and the sales tax for the period of this biennium. I am advised by the Department of Finance that we can finance the State Government in the manner above mentioned on the existing tax levels and still make provision for a sizeable Unemployment Relief Fund. Believing that State Government should never exact from its citizens more than is necessary to finance present needs and reasonably cushion the future, I recommend that our present tax reductions remain in force during the next biennium.

Highways

The last general reappraisal of our Highway System was in 1927. Since that time our population has increased 66 per cent. In the same period our automobile registrations have more than doubled. During the intervening years the size and numbers of trucking and other commercial vehicles have increased enormously. During the war the heavy flow of war materials is accelerating obsolescence. When the war is over the civilian population and our returning veterans will subject highways to other new strains.

At your last session we appropriated $12,000,000 for plans, specifications, and rights of way, and, before this session ends, preparation will have been completed for an $80,000,000 program of improvements. This is progress, but when we consider that highways are the very arteries of our State, it would seem that this is the time for the Legislature to reappraise the entire system and make certain that we are planning soundly for the future.

Veterans' Welfare

I have discussed at length in this message some of the major services we owe all the people of California if we are to build for them the kind of State to which the veterans of this war hope to return. Now I want to discuss for a moment what we should do to properly receive these veterans and help them readjust to civilian life without confusion, delay, or red tape.

You have already done much. At your last regular session you enacted a Farm and Home Purchase Act, an Educational Assistance Act, Civil Service Preference Act, tax exemptions, and an act assisting veterans in pursuing claims, as veterans, against the Government or this State.

You also submitted to the people at the last general election a constitutional amendment authorizing a $30,000,000 bond issue to provide loans to California veterans for the purchase of homes and farms. This constitutional amendment was adopted overwhelmingly by the people. Studies have made it clear that this money can be loaned at a rate of interest below the 5 per cent rate required under existing law. I, therefore, recommend that action be taken which will make such loans available to veterans at a rate of interest not more than that necessary to service the loans and to protect the State from loss.

We have also frozen available funds for a Building Construction Program at the Veterans' Home. Because of the dilapidated condition of some of the structures, and in anticipation of urgent needs, I am recommending in my budget that improvements to the amount $1,150,000 be made immediately. The remainder of the construction to bring the home up to standard is included in the Postwar Construction Program.

The primary obligation to provide basic funds and programs for the assistance of veterans rests upon the Federal Government. It is a part of the cost of war. These obligations have been assumed by the Government in the so-called G. I. Bill. All necessary interpretations of that voluminous bill have not yet been made, but the departments of our State Government have been instructed to assemble and study all facts which may be of value in adapting State laws to conform with the various programs authorized by that act.

But we must also recognize that it is in our State and our communities that veterans will be seeking to make their adjustment. There is need for organized effort in every community and for centralizing the administration of all services designed to assist veterans in their return to civilian life. In order to better accomplish this result, I recommend that the Legislature establish in the Department of Military Affairs a service of that character. By close working arrangements with other State departments, Federal agencies, the armed forces, local government, veterans, and other organizations, much can be done under State leadership.

Tragic events in all parts of the world add seriousness to our tasks here in these halls. Our boys are winning everywhere but at great sacrifice. They can win faster and at less sacrifice if all upon the home front do their full part.

There has been some premature relaxation, some over confidence, already apparent in this war, and the results have been costly. I sense, today, a renewed appreciation of the job ahead on the part of Californians everywhere. They are responding to the call for unity and increased effort in shops and offices and on the farms. What we do here will affect them in their present tasks as well as in the future. We can show no less determination to work together in common cause, and it is in this spirit that I tender you my cooperation in making this Fifty-sixth Biennial Session of the Legislature a new milestone in California progress.

I. Introduction

Recruitment of California farm workers by rapidly expanding defense industries and the military services during 1942 so depleted the State's farm labor resources that agriculture experienced losses of essential food and fiber crops exceeding for 14 specific crops an estimated $14,500,000.

Legislators, convening in 1943, were confronted with a potentially great curtailment of farm production in the State, in the face of increasing food and fiber requirements to meet military, lend-lease, and civilian needs. Immediate, positive action had to be taken. That action was the passage of the Food and Fiber Production Act, with appropriations totaling $1,800,000 for the ninety-fifth Fiscal Year. The act charged an appointive, nonsalaried directing board of seven members representing citrus fruits, other fruits, dairying, live stock, field crops, truck crops and cotton, with achieving "the maximum production and availability of food and fiber possible from the farms of this State; to provide for the most effective use of existing farm labor and facilities; and to augment such labor facilities."

By this action, California became the first, and in fact the only State, to initiate a broad program, independently of the Federal Government, to enable farmers to achieve their wartime production goals through assistance in solving their extensive and varied production problems.

Somewhat later, the Federal Congress enacted Public Law 45 providing for importation of foreign farm workers, and delegating to the various State Agricultural Extension Services the responsibility of carrying on a Domestic Farm Labor Recruitment and Placement Program. Public Law 229 continued this program through 1944, and recent action by the Congress is continuing the Federal program through December 31, 1945.

Governor Appoints Council

Following his approval of the Food and Fiber Production Act on March 29, 1943, Governor Warren named a board of seven men to serve as the California Farm Production Council, acting in an advisory capacity until the act became effective on June 24, 1943. The members of the council are as follows: Frank M. Shay, deciduous fruits, San Jose, chairman; George H. Wilson, field crops, Clarksburg, vice chairman; Camille A. Garnier, truck crops, Puente; Loren Bamert, live stock, Ione; Joe Hart, dairying, Modesto; A. J. McFadden, citrus fruits, Santa Ana; W. L. Smith, cotton, Buttonwillow.

W. B. Parker served as director or executive officer from April 26, 1943, until July 5, 1944. R. L. Adams has served as director since August 1, 1944. An acting director served the brief, intervening period.

Following their appointment, the council members first met on April 9, 1943, to develop a program which would meet the needs of California farmers. Taking immediate cognizance of the action of the Congress, the council members sought the counsel of representative farm leaders and with their approval urged the two Federal agencies newly assigned to the farm labor field—the Office of Labor, War Food Administration and the California Agricultural Extension Service—to join with the council in the voluntary coordination of their programs. Their desire was to eliminate duplication of activity and to provide for ready interchange of information about their separate problems and activities so as to render a maximum service to agriculture.

Three Agencies Cooperate

Arrangements were made to set up the three agency offices in close proximity. The council members accepted the invitation of Director B. H. Crocheron to act as an advisory committee to the Farm Labor Project of the Agricultural Extension Service. Through its Regional Director, William A. Anglim, the Office of Labor, WFA, gave hearty assurance of its desire to participate cooperatively in the program. This arrangement has continued on a completely cooperative basis since it was initiated.

Under Public Law 45, and later Public Law 229, specific duties were assigned to the two Federal agencies. The Farm Production Council, however, was assigned similar duties, in addition to numerous others, by the State Legislature. So it was agreed that the council would undertake those phases of an over-all Farm Labor Program which were outside the scope of the other agencies.

Federal law made the Office of Labor, WFA, responsible for the recruitment of Mexican national workers, their transportation, and their general welfare. It also made the Agricultural Extension Service responsible for recruiting and placing domestic farm workers, and certifying to the need by individual farmers for Mexican nationals and prisoners of war.

Council Provides Housing

The Farm Production Council has undertaken to provide the additional housing required for the thousands of imported Mexican nationals and other workers, to arrange for their food, to aid in the most effective use of the limited labor supply, and to assist farmers in their other major production problems.

This latter activity involved transportation of workers as well as equipment and farm products; feedstuffs, fertilizers, insecticides and fungicides, priorities for scarce vital materials, bedding and mess gear for housing and feeding farm labor, emergency housing for processing labor, assistance to child care centers, and numerous other matters.

The Farm Production Council has been guided by several broad policies which have changed as conditions have altered. At the initiation of its program, because of the previous year's crop losses resulting from labor shortages, the council felt that immediate development of all possible farm labor housing was of primary importance.

Shortness of time, materials and manpower obviously were not conductive to efficiency in such an emergency operation, the council recognizing that maximum availability of food and fiber was paramount.

Aid Given on Basis of Need

The council determined that assistance should be given farmers and farmer groups only on the basis of actual need and to augment their own maximum efforts. As rapidly as possible, many of the council's earlier activities which could be undertaken by local groups have been transferred to farm labor procurement associations organized with council assistance.

The council has operated its program with the hope that farmers acting cooperatively would continue to provide themselves with the beneficial services which the council has been instrumental in initiating.

From April 7, to June 24, 1943, the council served in an unofficial advisory capacity to the Director of Agriculture, who was empowered by urgency legislation to start the Agricultural Assistance Program immediately. Approximately $25,000 was expended during this period.

Of the original appropriation, the council received $1,775,000 of which $1,489,979 was expended during the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year. At the special session of the Legislature in June, 1944, an additional appropriation of $1,014,882 was made to continue the council activities through the Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year. It is estimated that by June 30, 1945, there will remain unexpended a total of $457,398, which is only slightly less than the $469,354 which it is estimated will be the net budgetary requirement for continuation of the council's program on its present basis until June 30, 1946. This difference is almost certain to be made up by returns from rentals and sales.

Contained herein is a report of these various council activities, describing the activity and services rendered, and also a statement of the cost of rendering these services.

II. Administrative Organization

Under the Food and Fiber Production Act, the seven council members and their executive officer are charged with numerous and broad responsibilities. That they have not undertaken all of the activities permissible under the act results from their decision not to engage in any activity in which any other agency, private, State or Federal, is already engaged in serving agriculture.

Members of the council have met regularly either one or two days per month to set policies, review council activities, authorize all expenditures of over $500, and advise the director concerning administration of the agency.

The council maintains its central office in Berkeley, in close association with the other two agencies in the farm labor field—Office of Labor, War Food Administration, and the Agricultural Extension Service. Its staff of 122 employees is directly responsible to the present director under whom, since the council's reorganization in July, 1944, administrative responsibility has been direct and clearly defined.

Responsibility Clearly Defined

The deputy director is directly responsible for the operation of the three area depots and warehouses at Stockton, Fresno, and Chino. A business manager at the Berkeley office is directly responsible for the acquisition, warehousing, rental, and sale of all material and supplies wholly in line with procedures approved by the State Department of Finance.

Within its organization, the council has several departments responsible directly to the director, or to him through designated assistants. These include the Transportation Department, Contracts Department, Purchasing and Priorities Department, Property Department, Personnel Department, and Fiscal Department. A field staff is maintained for the handling of business directly with farmers and farmer associations.

Camp maintenance and erection is handled out of the area depots. Motor repair departments are maintained at Stockton and Chino.

Fiscal procedure is in line with the requirements of the State Department of Finance and proper controls are maintained for the safeguarding of all State properties.

Legal service for the council is provided by the Attorney General. Assistance has been obtained from the Division of Architecture in the appraisal of buildings and real property offered for sale.

Rental schedules and sale prices of all commodities are set with the approval of the State Department of Finance. Purchases are made through the State Bureau of Purchases.

III. Farm Labor Camp Program

The major, immediate responsibility of the Farm Production Council was the provision of housing for an estimated 35,000 farm workers. In districts where the labor load remained fairly constant through a large part of the year, it was decided that housing should be at fixed locations. In districts where harvest requirements build up to extreme peaks for short periods, it was decided the need could best be met by providing demountable housing. Since a considerable amount of the latter type was required in particular districts during winter months, it was obvious that fairly substantial structures would be required.

Having charted the need, the council had the short period between July 1 and September 1, 1943, in which to achieve a major part of its housing goal. The steps taken were these:

1. Arrangements were made with the State Department of Finance to acquire by allocation from the SRA and State Guard liquidation accounts the former camps of these agencies then available at 18 widely scattered locations in the State.
2. Negotiations were entered into with agricultural district and county fair associations for the conversion of fair buildings for farm labor housing at 11 different sites.
3. Arrangements were made with the United States Army for lease to the council of Japanese assembly camps at the San Joaquin County, Merced County, and Tulare County Fair Grounds.
4. There was acquired by loan from Federal agencies and purchase 1,751 pyramidal tents, for which the council provided tent bottoms.
5. Arrangements were made through the War Food Administration for use of five available Guayule Project camps.
6. A transient camp accommodating 500 persons was purchased at Ryde so as to be available solely for farm labor.
7. Wooden demountable camps having a total housing capacity of 5,000 were purchased.
8. Mess gear, bedding facilities, kitchen gear, et cetera, for the outfitting of these camps, plus that required by farmers who were forced to replace former on-farm workers with transients, were secured by purchase and by transfer from the SRA liquidation account.

Effective operation of this Housing Program required that procedures be set up to determine the actual need for housing applied for by farmers and suitability of proposed sites. These camps had to be transported, erected, and supplied with necessary utilities, arrangements made for conversion of the assembly camp buildings to labor housing, and the State's interest fully protected upon their re-erection at new locations, and staffs recruited and trained in the operation and administration of camps.

The council, with the approval of the State Department of Finance, established a schedule of rental charges for equipment rented to farmers, and assigned members of the staff to handle the rental agreements and collections. In addition, provisions were made for the checking of items sent out from council depots and warehouses, for their periodic inspection in the field, and for rechecking upon their return.

It has been necessary, also, to carry on a Program of Maintenance and Repair in order to maintain equipment and especially buildings in a condition of maximum usefulness.

A. SRA and State Guard Camps

Demountable housing suitable for conversion to farm labor use was received by the Farm Production Council from the State Department of Finance through allocation from the SRA and State Guard liquidation accounts. The transfer included 270 buildings of various dimensions and uses having a total floor area of 297,072 square feet, and an inventory value of $74,268.

This housing was located at the 18 following places: Valley Center, San Diego County; Temescal, Chino, and Big Bear, San Bernardino County; Camp Hopkins, San Pedro, Los Angeles, and Marian Davies Hospital, Los Angeles, Los Angeles County; Crockett, Contra Costa County; Oakland and Calaveras, Alameda County; Camp Placer, Applegate, Placer County; Blythe, Riverside County; Crystal Springs, San Mateo County; Golden Gate, San Francisco; Stockton, San Joaquin County; and Rubidoux, Riverside County.

Partly redistributed to better serve agricultural areas, the housing with a capacity of 2600 workers, is now located as follows: (1) Camp Silverado, Napa County; (2) Marsh Creek Camp, Contra Costa County; (3) Camp Placer, Placer County; (4) Pescadero Camp, San Mateo County; (5) Camp Pleasanton, Alameda County; (6) California Conserving Company Camp, Hayward, Alameda County; (7) Ryde Prison Camp, Sacramento County; (8) Camp Rubidoux, Riverside County; (9) Camp Hemet, Riverside County; (10) Camp Blythe, Riverside County; (11) Camp Redlands Highland, San Bernardino County; (12) Chino Institute for Men, San Bernardino County; (13) Artesia Camp, Los Angeles County; (14) Valley Center Camp, San Diego County; (15) Temescal Camp, Riverside County; (16) Camp Stockton, San Joaquin County; and (17) Camp Ayers, Chino, San Bernardino County. These latter two are used as area depots and warehouses.

Buildings of this type were sold to Jackson-Perkins, Pleasanton, and Leland Williams, Alameda County; Geneva Sunnydale Nurseries, Colma, San Mateo County; Calvert R. Erwin, Harry Harper, Victoria Avenue Citrus Association, and Riverside Farm Production Committee, Riverside, Riverside County, for a total of $4,695.68. Sale prices were set by the State Department of Finance, and funds received were applied to the SRA liquidation account.

The council has leased nine of these camps to farm labor procurement associations, provided farm labor housing for State agencies to Chino Institute for Men and the State Prison Authority at Ryde, and transferred camps to two counties. These latter two are the Marsh Creek Camp operated by the Contra Costa County Sheriff, and Camp Silverado, Napa County.

B. Agricultural Fairs Associations (Other than Stockton, Merced and Tulare)

Farm labor housing facilities were provided for 2,250 workers through the cooperation of the Farm Production Council with agricultural district and county fair associations.

This joint enterprise included the conversion of fairgrounds buildings to temporary use for farm labor housing and providing by the council of mess gear, stoves, refrigerators, water heaters, and other equipment, cots, mattresses, and bedding, so that available housing could be used to a maximum capacity.

In all but two instances, the fair district associations used their own funds, totaling $60,700 in the conversion of buildings. The council aided two associations to the extent of $3,400 for this purpose.

The housing facilities made available by the various fairs were as follows:

	No. of Workers
30th District Agricultural Association, Red Bluff	200
42d District Agricultural Association, Orland	125
Butte County Fair Association, Chico	300
Alameda County Fair Association, Pleasanton	150

21-A District Agricultural Association, Madera	225
46th District Agricultural Association, Hemet	150
El Dorado County Fair Association, Placerville	100

The Farm Production Council made the following cash contributions to fair associations to assist in providing this housing:

Butte County, Gridley Camp	$2,400 00
Alameda County Fair Association, Pleasanton	1,000 00
Total	$3,400 00

Fair associations contributed from their own funds to farm labor housing as follows:

20th District Agricultural Association, Red Bluff	$6,500 00
42d District Agricultural Association, Butte	5,000 00
Butte County Fair Association, Chico	13,000 00

21-A District Agricultural Association, Madera	5,700 00
46th District Agricultural Association, Hemet	5,000 00
El Dorado County Fair Association, Placerville	500 00
Total expended	$60,700 00

The following fairs made funds available, but other housing arrangements were completed which did not require use of these funds:

14th District Agricultural Ass'n., Watsonville	$ 4,500
50th District Agricultural Ass'n., Lancaster	3,500
25th District Agricultural Ass'n., Napa	5,000
Total Made Available	$13,000

C—Japanese Assembly Camps

At about the time the Legislature enacted the Food and Fiber Production Act, the Army transferred thousands of Japanese from various assembly centers in California to relocation centers elsewhere. Three such assembly centers located on the fairgrounds at Stockton, Merced, and Tulare were declared surplus to Army needs.

Inasmuch as they represented potential emergency housing for more than 10,000 farm workers, steps were taken by the Farm Production Council to secure allocation of these assembly centers for farm labor use. The three centers were transferred by the Army to the War Food Administration and in succession to the Farm Production Council.

The council received this property under lease which restricted use of the buildings and accessories to the housing of farm labor, but permitted dismantling and removal of the buildings for this use.

State Must Reimburse United States Government

However, the agreement requires the State of California to reimburse the Government for losses resulting from fire; requires the State, upon termination of the agreement, to deliver the property in the condition received, wear and tear excepted, at such places as the Government may direct; and requires the State to return fairgrounds premises to their original condition prior to Government occupancy.

In connection with these latter conditions of the agreement, the council has incurred obligations which at this time are undetermined, but which may involve substantial expenditures.

Transfer of the property to the State was authorized June 18, 1943, and the council formally accepted the property July 1, 1943.

Buildings acquired by the council, with accessories and fixtures, were as follows:

San Joaquin County Fair Grounds, Stockton:

189	Barracks	20x100	ft.
2	Barracks	20x150	ft.
4	Laundries	20x100	ft.
10	Mess halls	20x100	ft.
20	Latrines	14x16	ft.
20	Shower buildings	20x38	ft.
1	Gate house	5x5	ft.

Tulare County Fair Grounds, Tulare:

152	Barracks	20x100	ft.
1	Office building	10x20	ft.
1	Gate house	20x20	ft.
30	Latrines	8x16	ft.
20	Shower buildings	20x28	ft.
3	Hospitals	20x160	ft.
5	Laundries	20x100	ft.
11	Mess halls	20x100	ft.

Merced County Fair Grounds, Merced:

196	Barracks	20x100	ft.
11	Mess halls	20x100	ft.
3	Hospitals	20x160	ft.
5	Laundries	20x100	ft.
20	Shower buildings	20x28	ft.
30	Latrines	8x12	ft.
1	Post exchange (2 units)	20x100	ft.
7	Sentry towers	6x6	ft. on 25 ft. towers

Buildings in these three Japanese assembly camps have been largely converted into 16x20 foot structures for the housing of farm workers on individual farms or in community units operated by farm labor procurement associations.

From the Stockton camp, 32 growers were supplied with the equivalent of 83 16x20 foot units. These were placed on farms in the following 12 communities: Acampo, Escalon, Isleton, Linden, Lodi, Manteca, Ripon, Santa Clara, Spreckels, Stockton, Thornton, and Tracy.

From the Merced camp, 342 growers were supplied with the equivalent of 980 16x20 foot units. These were placed on farms and in procurement association community centers in the following 41 communities: Atwater, Ballico, Carruthers, Ceres, Chowchilla, Cressy, Crows Landing, Delhi, Denair, Dos Palos, El Nido, Firebaugh, Fowler, Fresno, Gustine, Hickman, Hollister, Hughson, LeGrand, Livingston, Lodi, Los Banos, Madera, Manteca, Merced, Milpitas, Modesto, Oakdale, Orange Cove, Patterson, Planada, San Francisco, Sanger, Selma, Stockton, Reedley, Turlock, Volta, Waterford, Westley, and Winton.

From the Tulare camp, 53 growers were supplied with the equivalent of 677 16x20 foot units. These were placed on farms and in procurement association community centers in the following 19 communities: Alpaugh, Corcoran, Delano, Dinuba, Earlimart, Goshen, Ivanhoe, Kingsburg, Lindsay, Orosi, Pixley, Porterville, Selma, Strathmore, Terra Bella, Tipton, Tulare, Visalia, and Woodlake.

Housing for 11,531 Workers

In all, 427 growers and farm labor procurement associations in 68 communities were supplied from this source with 1,640 housing units. This represents a maximum housing capacity of 11,531 workers.

In the conversion of Japanese assembly camps for housing, some of the camp structures were dismantled to provide ends to close in the 16x20 foot units which were cut from larger structures. Others were dismantled to provide lumber for constructing tent platforms, of which 848 were built, 439 for 12x14 foot tents, and 409 for 16x16 foot tents.

Lumber was also purchased in the amount of $31,228.39 for converting the barracks and other structures into the 16x20 foot units.

In distributing these housing units, it was the council's general policy to supply at the camp site the closed-in units at no cost to the farmer, the farmer bearing the expense of moving and setting up the units, and providing foundation and flooring and such other alterations and additions as were required.

D—Ryde Transient Camp

To insure availability of farm labor housing in the Sacramento River Delta District, the Farm Production Council on July 12, 1943, purchased from Libby, McNeil and Libby a transient farm labor camp at Ryde for $10,145.

The property was originally used for housing employees of a cannery formerly operated at the site by the canning firm. Since the destruction of the cannery by fire, it has been used by transients of various types. The possibility that its facilities would not be available for housing farm workers prompted the council to purchase the property.

When purchased, there were 83 apartments and two other buildings. Twenty-eight apartments in 20 buildings were sold in December, 1943, to nearby farmers for on-farm housing of workers, the sale netting $3,530. The council also declared as surplus to its needs the following equipment at the Ryde Camp: two 90-h.p. Kewanee boilers, one duplex steam pump, one Fairbanks-Morse injection pump, one steel storage tank, above ground, 8x32 ft., one steel storage tank, underground 60x190 in., all connecting pipes, including valves and fittings. This was sold, subject to removal at purchaser's cost, to Sheldon Oil Company, Suisun, for $1,000.

Subsequently there has been expended on the reroofing, painting and repair of the Ryde Camp buildings approximately $12,000.

Originally, the rental rate for the various dwellings was $2.50 per unit, per week. With OPA approval, this has been increased to $3.50 and $4 per unit per week beginning December 1, 1944.

As presently operated, the camp has a capacity of 350, with trailer space available for 200 additional.

There is now pending an offer of $11,100 for purchase of the property by a resident of the district. The Legislature is to be asked to authorize the sale by the State Department of Finance.

E—Camp Construction and Outfitting

Of the total expenditure by the Farm Production Council during the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year of $1,577,858, the sum of $877,609 was spent on camp construction and outfitting.

This fact alone evidences the emphasis placed upon the Camp Program.

The budgeting of $267,879.78 for camp construction and outfitting during the Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year manifests the council's conclusion that the State's critical need for farm labor housing had largely been met, for 1944 at least, and that until it was clearly evident that a new critical housing shortage had arisen, the council would not further expand its housing facilities. Of this, only $106,152.15 has been expended to date, with no additional expenditures for new construction authorized at this time.

Largest single item in the expenditures was purchase of 211,360 square feet of demountable buildings of the Nissen type, costing $277,080, plus electrical and plumbing equipment and accessories, for a total of $337,827.

There has been added to this complement of demountable buildings, five so-called central units, which are supplemented with tent housing where temporary camps are required, costing $33,713. This latter purchase comprises 24,240 square feet of demountable buildings.

The mobile camps have a housing capacity of 5,148 persons.

Briefly, the original purchase of demountable buildings included the following:

	Units
16-Man dormitory, 16x40 ft.	186
Camp manager's office and living quarters	20
Dormitory, kitchen help, 16x20 ft.	20
Mess hall, 20x40 ft.	20
Mess hall, 20x60 ft.	26
Kitchen wing, 20x20 ft.	20
Latrine, wash room, shower, heater room bldgs., 16x28 ft.	40

The five central units consisted of the following:

	Units
Mess hall and kitchen, 20x102 ft.	5
Barracks, 16x40 ft.	5
Office building, 16x40 ft.	5
Latrine building, 16x36 ft.	5
Garbage building, 4x8 ft.	5
Shower building, 20x46 ft.	5

Principal purchases in equipping camps during the Ninety fifth Fiscal Year follow:

Mattresses, bed springs and cots	$ 91,534
Cooking and mess equipment	64,647
Tents and platforms	16,174
Water heaters	3,479
Cooling units	22,282
Heating units	3,100
Additions, betterments to buildings	43,913
Construction crew labor expenditures totaled	$204,769

Principal purchases in equipping camps during the first five months of the Ninety sixth Fiscal Year follow:

Mattresses, bed springs and cots	$ 4,630
Cooking and mess equipment	4,464
Tents and platforms	6,051
Cooling units	2,704
Heating units	1,140
Additions, betterments to buildings	5,301
Construction crew labor expenditures for this period totaled	$ 30,780

This tabulation should be compared with the following items showing amounts budgeted for the entire Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year:

Mattresses, bed springs and cots	$20,750 00
Cooking and mess equipment	26,710 00
Tents and platforms	19,000 00
Cooling units	6,962 00
Heating units	2,000 00
Additions, betterments to buildings	----------

Expenditures for the first six months of the Ninety sixth Fiscal Year as compared with total expenditures for the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year are given in several important items relating to this particular activity:

	95th Fiscal Year	96th Fiscal Year
Repairs and maintenance	$108,940 39	$6,565 07
Property and equipment	633,217 01	29,797 71
Specialist labor, carpenters, plumbers, labor, etc.	233,116 19	38,732 37
Supervision, clerical help, etc.	27,440 83	16,566 03

Under this activity, the council acquired its mobile camp buildings, and the equipment necessary to set up and operate its camps, erect the camp buildings and later disassemble and reerect them at their new sites. Mobile camps were set up and operated at 32 locations in 1943, and at 28 locations in 1944.

Location of equipment essential to camp construction and outfitting, negotiating necessary purchases, assembling the equipment and material and issuing it, and keeping buildings and equipment in proper repair has necessitated the employment of a staff that has been very large for short periods and quite small at others when work has slackened off. Details are presented in another section of this report.

F. Holding Camps for Mexican Nationals

Since the importation of Mexican national workers into California was wholly dependent upon the availability of railroad transportation, it was necessary for the State's labor requirements to be anticipated considerably in advance of the actual need.

That meant that on some occasions workers had to be transported into the State before they were actually required.

In addition, the fact that successive places of employment are often considerable distances apart requires that temporary holding camp facilities be maintained for housing and feeding the workers en route and while new camps are being made ready. As these were not already available, and other agencies seemed unable to provide them, the Farm Production Council retained a part of the camp facilities at the three Japanese assembly centers for this purpose.

These holding camps consisted of the Tulare Camp with a housing capacity of 3,669 workers, the Stockton Camp with a housing capacity of 1,200 workers, and the Merced Camp with a housing capacity of 600 workers, or a total of 5,469.

When required for local labor housing, the camps have been used for that purpose. In addition, as is mentioned elsewhere, the Stockton and Tulare holding camp facilities have been used for housing German prisoners of war.

In connection with the use of these facilities for holding camps, the council has received from the War Food Administration as reimbursement for boarding the workers $9,445.57, a substantial part being returned to growers for advances made by them. Additional claims, now being determined, are pending.

In addition, the council has filed with the War Food Administration a claim for lodging the workers, on the basis of a weekly charge of $1.25 per man. These claims, as of this date, total $3,232, but have been turned down, pending submission of additional evidence acceptable to the War Food Administration.

G. Negro Camp

In its effort to make maximum use of domestic farm labor resources, the Farm Production Council attempted to recruit Negro workers with farm experience and transients from so called "skid-rows" in metropolitan areas, neither project being successful.

On August 20, 1943, the council transported several bus loads of Negro workers from San Francisco to a camp set up at Caruthers. This camp operated for just a month and was closed. It varied in population from 80 to 150. Growers were dissatisfied with the workers and the workers were dissatisfied with the available work. It also was impossible to secure payment for all meals. This activity resulted in a loss to the council of $1,055.27, collection of which is now being attempted

H. Transient Camp

On September 1, 1943, the council opened a camp for transients at Biola with 80 men transported to the camp from Los Angeles. The following morning, after they had eaten breakfast, 40 of these men left camp without paying for their transportation or meals. The camp population varied from 40 to 160 men, but it was apparent that the transients would not provide a dependable source of labor and that the council would not be reimbursed for all meals and transportation. The project was discontinued on September 25, 1943.

I. Student Harvest Camp Assistance

During 1943, in order to make most effective use of volunteer labor, the Farm Production Council authorized the expenditure of $31,686.61 for the employment of 174 supervisors in 30 volunteer harvest camps which were set up with the assistance of the California Agricultural Extension Service. A total of 3,179 boys, girls, and women were housed in the camps, the workers being recruited by seven high schools, the American Women's Voluntary Services, the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., the Boy Scouts, and miscellaneous organizations.

Camps were located as follows: Selma and Kingsburg, Fresno County; Arvin, Kern County; Kelseyville and Lakeport, Lake County; Covina, Los Angeles County; Livingston, Merced County; Calistoga, St. Helena, and Napa, Napa County; Auburn, Loomis, and Penryn, Placer County; Hemet, Riverside County; Courtland, Isleton, and Walnut Grove, Sacramento County; Vacaville, Solano County; Geyserville, Healdsburg, Sebastopol, and Sonoma, Sonoma County; Denair and Hughson, Stanislaus County; Moorpark, Ventura County, and Marysville, Yuba County.

Assistance toward the successful operation of these camps was given on several occasions, particularly in securing allocation of adequate meat allowances to permit the workers to be fed properly. This assistance required the preparation of data and their presentation to proper OPA officials.

J. Prisoner of War Camps

Beginning about August 1, 1944, increasing use of German prisoners of war in agriculture for the two fold purpose of usefully employing the prisoners and to assist in making up a part of the deficit in farm labor ranks has imposed on the Farm Production Council some responsibility for providing housing where other housing is not available.

At present, of the 4,200 prisoners employed in agriculture in California, the council is providing housing for 2,840, as follows:

Camp Ayers, Chino	540
Edwards Ranch, Goleta	250
Tagus Ranch, Tulare County	250
Stockton Holding Camp	1400
Tulare Holding Camp	400

The responsibility of the council to provide housing results from the inability of the Army or the employing growers to secure the necessary housing and equipment on short notice, or from the inability of the Army to provide the necessary housing within the restriction on expenditures imposed upon it.

There are certain obvious disadvantages in the use of prisoners of war. Their rate of production is lower than that of other types of workers. More housing is required in the accomplishment of the same amount of production work. There are certain revenues which the council receives in connection with the use of its housing facilities for other types of workers which it does not receive when prisoners of war are housed. The council feels obliged, however, to provide housing regardless of revenue where farmers must depend upon prisoners of war for necessary farm work.

At the Edwards Ranch and Tagus Ranch, listed above, the council's mobile camps and equipment are rented to the grower at established rental rates. At the Japanese assembly center, no charge is made for the buildings, but equipment is rented at regular rental rates. At Camp Ayers, Chino, the camp and equipment are leased to the Southern California Independent Grape Growers Association.

K. Ryde Prison Camp

To enable the California Conserving Company to employ at its Ryde plant prisoners from San Quentin Prison, the Farm Production Council set up a prison camp for 150 men at the rear of the company's plant.

Buildings included the following:

4—18x88 ft. State Guard barracks
4—18x60 ft. 6 in. State Guard barracks
1—20x60 ft. 6 in. State Guard barracks
1—20x60 ft. 6 in. State Guard mess hall
1—20x100 ft. demountable mess hall
1—20x100 ft. barracks from the Stockton Japanese Assembly Center.

The demountable mess hall has since been removed.

Men in the camp were employed by the conserving company from July 15, 1943, through September 30, 1943, but thereafter until August 1, 1944, prisoners were employed by nearby farmers. Up to 150 prisoners were made available to more than 70 farmers at one time or another.

Rentals for camp equipment, which the council supplied, were paid by California Conserving Company up to August 1, 1943, but thereafter the council permitted the camp equipment to be used under the assumption that the Department of Corrections was in fact responsible for the camp.

Negotiations have recently been entered into to determine the responsibility for rentals, and the camp has been turned over to the Department of Corrections to be operated by that agency.

L. CCC Camps

The Farm Production Council has assisted farm groups requiring farm labor housing in securing three CCC camps declared surplus by Federal agencies: Camp Sebastopol at Sebastopol, Camp Pinto Lake near Watsonville, and Camp Springville near Porterville.

In each case, at council request, the Federal Government has transferred title to the camp to the State of California without reimbursement, and the State, in turn, has made the housing available to the local farmers.

Camp Sebastopol was dismmantled and the 10 buildings in the camp distributed to 13 growers in Healdsburg, Sebastopol, Geyserville, Graton, and Santa Rosa. Removal of buildings and cleaning up of the camp grounds was at the expense of the growers receiving the buildings.

Camp Pinto Lake, including 29 buildings, was turned over to the Santa Cruz County Growers, a farmers' cooperative labor procurement association.

Camp Springville, including 13 buildings, is being made available to the J. G. Boswell Company, Corcoran, for housing farm workers employed by this company and other farmers in the community. The cost of relocating the camp and cleaning up the former camp site is to be borne by the Boswell Company.

M. Camp Commissary Service

At the inception of the Mexican National Camp Program, a major problem was to provide commissary service for the various camps so that acceptable meals would be provided where, when and in the quantity necessary for all workers in Farm Production Council camps. This need resulted in the council entering into contract with several commissary companies to provide commissary services as required.

All meals served, save in special cases involving Mexican national workers in the council-sponsored pool, were on a reimbursable basis, either by the worker or the employer. Commissary contracts were secured by bids, were entered into with five firms serving in different localities and at different periods. Bids were more or less uniform, being either $1.50 per man per day, including State sales tax, or $1.499 per man per day, including State sales tax.

As the council's efforts increasingly resulted in the organizing of farm labor procurement associations, management of the various camps was turned over to these associations on a contract basis and the council terminated its contracts with the commissary companies. On December 15, 1944, the final commissary contract terminated.

During the period of the contracts, approximately 1,169,677 meals were served, representing 389,892 man-days of service. The council paid out for meals a total of $584,738.63, and collected from workers and growers for payment to commissary companies $550,066.34. In addition, it collected from the War Food Administration $3,439.35, and still has claims under consideration which, when and if collected, will be applied to this account.

There is, currently, a discrepancy of $31,232.94 in this account, which represents, in part, charges for meals for which the council paid but failed to make collection, prior to December 15, 1943. Since that date, the account has balanced to the penny.

Lack of proper accounting procedure at the beginning of the program, failure of inexperienced camp managers to check their daily count of meals with those of commissary company stewards, and the unsuccessful attempts to set up a camp for transients at Biola and for Negro workers at Caruthers can be held responsible for a substantial part of the loss which will be sustained by the council in this activity.

Council expenditures and collections for meals by counties were as follows:

County	Collections	Expenditures
Alameda	$ 6,307 56	$ 6,849 48
Fresno	149,895 08	167,892 95
Kern	13,041 17	15,879 04
Lake	9,357 81	9,906 00
Los Angeles	26,248 19	27,527 95
Merced	22,672 46	22,650 96
Orange	409 50
San Benito	33,323 63	35,394 54
San Bernardino	56,401 19	57,113 10
San Diego	6,960 76	7,673 52
San Joaquin	32,030 74	31,641 98
San Mateo	10,786 42	11,027 53
Santa Barbara	6,388 58	7,051 03
Santa Clara	11,179 05	12,586 00
Stanislaus	45,453 50	45,044 58
Tehama	5,602 63	5,766 67
Tulare	37,455 53	40,640 25
Ventura	45,642 00	48,470 02
Yolo	30,910 54	31,623 03

Differences between collections and expenditures in individual counties is largely explained by the fact that growers in one county on numerous occasions received workers from a camp located in an adjoining county.

N. Camp Allocating, Setting Up and Maintenance

In connection with the Council's Camp Program, it has been necessary to use staff members in the Berkeley and area offices and in the field to review grower application for labor camps, inspect the sites and determine the availability of utilities, direct the setting up of the camps, and carry on necessary maintenance of building and equipment.

Until recently, the council also operated the camps for groups of individual growers, pending assistance to growers in forming associations to which the camp management could be transferred.

These activities required a very large work force at the beginning of the operation, including carpenters, plumbers, electricians, and laborers, since it was imperative at the start to set up camps as rapidly as possible. Thus in July, August, September, and October, 1943, this work force employed in camp erection averaged 200 persons, whereas in July, August, September, and October, 1944, this comparable work force averaged only 34 persons.

In October, 1943, the council employed 58 camp superintendents, assistants, and camp aids, whereas in October, 1944, the council had seven such employees.

The expenditure for camp operation in the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year totaled $727,561, against which the council received the following income: $494,744 for meals; $64,363 for operating and housing charges at the rate of 50 cents per man per day; and $132,621 for camp facilities for Mexican nationals in the council-operated pool at the rate of 4 cents per man per hour. The net deficit of camp maintenance and operation for the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year was $35,833.

During the first five months of the Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year, the expenditures for camp maintenance totaled $76,186. In return, the council received for meals $51,796 and for housing and supervision $28,621, a total of $80,418. There was a net profit on this operation of $4,233.

IV. Transportation

During the period July 1, 1943, to December 31, 1943, the Farm Production Council expended a total of $172,821 on transportation. During the next succeeding six months, ending June 30, 1944, it expended $75,361, a total of $248,182 for the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year. During the six months, July 1, 1944, to December 31, 1944, it is estimated the expenditure for this purpose will total $45,681.

During the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year, council passenger equipment operated 639,209 miles, and freight equipment 895,066 miles—a total of 1,534,275 miles. In the first five months of the Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year, council passenger equipment operated 167,295 miles, and freight equipment 222,588 miles—a total of 389,883 miles.

These data are cited to indicate the very large transportation operation in which the council first engaged, the increasing efficiency of this operation as better organization was effected and equipment was bettered, as well as the changing nature of the over all operation.

The council has received from several sources 223 pieces of automotive equipment of various types, ranging from 18-ton semitrailers to passenger cars, and in various conditions of wear and disrepair.

From the State Guard, by transfer, the following was received:

Passenger cars	67
Pickup and deliveries	22
Express trucks and trucks	104
Buses	3
Jeeps	6
Ambulances	2
Trailers	3
Total	207

From the State Department of Agriculture, by transfer:

Passenger cars	5

From the State Board of Harbor Commissioners by transfer:

Passenger car	1
Truck	1
Total	2

From the State Controller by purchase:

Passenger car	1

From the State Relief Administration, by transfer:

Passenger cars	4

From the Adjutant General's Office, by transfer:

Passenger cars	2

From the Adjutant General's Office, by loan:

Semitrailers	2

Today, the council's automotive fleet, following the sale or planned sale of 147 vehicles, transfer to other State agencies, and otherwise, is as follows:

Panel trucks	5
Stake body trucks	19
Sedans	27
Carryalls	1
Buses	4
Tow trucks	2
Sedan deliveries	3
Pickups	5
Semitrailers	5
Station wagons	2
Jeeps	1
Total	74

In addition, it has on loan from the Adjutant General's Office:

Semitrailers	2

Equipment not required by other State departments was sold as follows:

10 frames, 5 motors	$ 205 00
42 Vehicles	9,005 28
4 Truck beds	168 94
Total	$ 9,379 22

There is now pending a sale of 37 vehicles surplus to the council's needs and surplus to the needs of other State agencies.

All equipment acquired was either driven or towed into motor pools previously established by the California State Guard at Oakland and Chino and taken over by the council. These two motor depots had repair shops partially equipped to maintain, repair, and rebuild equipment. Practically all equipment used during the first several months of council operation was put into operating condition at these pool garages. Only those vehicles requiring specialized mechanical operations were sent out to other shops.

Much of the equipment acquired was inoperable or unsafe for highway use. Trucks were immediately required to assemble housing and equipment, and passenger cars for field staff operations covering principal agricultural areas from one end of the State to the other.

This situation required that as many mechanics as could be found be employed for as many hours as they would work to get equipment into safe operable condition, and that drivers keep equipment in use on the highways with as few lay offs as possible.

To indicate the transportation problem, several instances are cited:

Setting up of a single mobile camp is in itself a large transportation problem. As for example, the 200 man camp at Buttonwillow, for which demountable buildings and equipment were supplied principally from the Fresno Area Depot, required 7,700 truck miles of hauling and return trips, broken down as follows in truck loads:

Mobile buildings	20 truck loads
Fire barrels, wire, pipe, poles, plumbing, wash trays, hot water storage tanks, sinks, mess tables, mattresses, cots, ranges, refrigerators, mess, and eating equipment	15 truck loads

This was but a single mobile camp of 200-man capacity. Other camps varied from 150-man capacity to 300-man capacity. Thirty-two such camps were transported and set up in 1943 and 28 in 1944, each involving a comparable transportation problem, varying according to the camp capacity and the distance of the haul.

Items acquired by purchase and hauled from the seller's warehouse to Council camps and assembly depots involved the following:

Items	Number	Truck Loads
Tents	1,800	30
Refrigerators	99	65
Cots	20,831	197
Mattresses	23,014	200
Blankets	41,040	30
Ranges	84	80
Sinks	118	24
Miscellaneous items	------	500

During the first six months of council activity, transportation from metropolitan districts to canneries, farms, etc., was provided for 10,138 workers, 5,551 being employed in canneries in the Oakland-East Bay Area.

During the period July 1, 1943, to June 30, 1944, the council assisted other State agencies by supplying transportation upon demand whenever council equipment was available. Agencies served include the Bureau of Purchases, Department of Finance, Youth Correction Authority, and the Adjutant General. For one agency, the council made 41 round-trip truck hauls from a point in Sonoma County to Fricots City, Calaveras County.

Mattresses formerly rented for farm labor use were required to be sterilized before reissue. This required hauling of such mattresses from the point of use or council depot to a sterilizer and their return following sterilization. Stoves and other equipment requiring repairs or servicing have had to be hauled from depots or camps to repair shops and later returned to the council depots or camps.

On many occasions, emergency trips had to be made with less than a full truck load, either to supply a camp with essential equipment or because the items required were not available at a particular depot.

V. Supplies and Equipment to Growers—Priorities

Farmers have had greatly increased production difficulties during wartime as the result of scarcity of equipment and supplies. In view of this situation, the Farm Production Council has offered all possible assistance to farmers in securing priorities for such equipment and supplies. This has included applications for priorities on their behalf, and presentation of the farmer's particular conditions warranting the issuance of priorities, often involving much correspondence and negotiation.

An example of the handling of a single priority application will indicate the type of assistance given. In March, 1944, the council was informed that an application had been made three months previously for three truck tractors by the California Fruit Growers Supply Company of Los Angeles, purchasing subsidiary of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, a cooperative of 12,000 citrus growers.

The truck tractors were required by the supply company in its logging operations at Susanville and Hilt to provide box shook for packing citrus fruit. The very large Valencia orange crop made the added shook sought absolutely essential.

When the matter came to the council's attention, no action had been taken by the War Production Board. The council immediately telegraphed Senator Sheridan Downey and Mr. James A. Whiteside of the San Francisco Regional Office of WPB, then in Washington, presenting the urgency of the situation. The matter was reviewed for the Governor, who by telegram solicited the assistance of the War Food Administrator.

As a result of these efforts, WPB approval of the truck applications was granted, the general manager of the Fruit Growers Suply Company informing the council that "I feel sure that without your help we might well have suffered delay in getting it (priority for the trucks) or possibly it might not have been forthcoming at all."

Following is a brief listing of the assistance given growers or groups of growers in this field:

VI. Mexican National Farm Labor Pool

During the Fiscal Year 1943-44, the Farm Production Council maintained a Mexican national farm labor pool to serve farmers who had not yet organized their own or joined existing farm labor procurement associations. The pool included 4,033 Mexican nationals, housed in 31 camps in 24 counties and working under 1,144 contracts for 913 different farmers.

The Mexican nationals performed approximately 258,528 man days of work, for which they were paid approximately $2,090,178.10 in wages.

The 24 counties in which growers and grower associations were supplied Mexican national workers from the Council-operated pool are as folows: Alameda, Colusa, El Dorado, Fresno, Kern, Lake, Los Angeles, Madera, Merced, Orange, San Diego, San Benito, San Bernardino, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Stanislaus, Sacramento, Santa Clara, Solano, Tehama, Tulare, Ventura, and Yolo.

The pool operation covered the period July 1, 1943, to December 15, 1943.

It should be explained briefly that the council's setting up of the Mexican national worker pool and its operation for a single season was accompanied by concurrently changing conditions which the council believed did not warrant further pool operation.

Large scale importation of Mexican workers began in 1942 under the Federal Security Administration. Under its regulations, the minimum contract called for 100 workers for 30 days' employment. This precluded use of the imported workers by smaller operators. Through organization of labor procurement associations in many communities, this disadvantage was later overcome.

However, when the council came into being, while the imported worker program had been shifted to the newly organized Office of Labor, War Food Administration, the policies of that organization were not well established and there seemed to be some uncertainty about the availability of the Mexican national workers to farmers operating on a small scale.

The pool operation by the council thus enabled small farmers to be served while they were being assisted in the organization of cooperative farm labor procurement associations, to 67 of which the council has rendered assistance through aid in organization, or otherwise. Recent policy of the Office of Labor, WFA, to contract a minimum of 10 workers for a minimum of 60 days to growers has enabled most employers to meet their needs from this source without undue burden.

The pool was maintained at considerable expense to the council since much detailed accounting was required covering the earnings of workers, deductions transmitted to the Mexican Government, and charges made for food, and camp management. This work was mostly handled in connection with the regular activity of the council's fiscal staff, but at times it required the employment of from three to 10 additional persons.

VII. Property Department

The property department operated by the Farm Production Council serves a threefold purpose, that of properly receiving, warehousing, and accounting for all property from whatever source; that of issuing for rental such housing, mess, sleeping, and other equipment as farmers require, collecting the rentals when due, securing the return of all equipment to council depots, and sale of equipment and making collections therefor.

The following summaries will indicate the extent of these operations:

Sales

Property received from S.R.A. liquidation account 7/1/43 to 12/27/44:

	Items	Returns
Mess gear	27,807	$ 21,383 63
Sleeping gear	42,006	83,404 79
Miscellaneous	3,848	19,155 03
	73,661	$123,943 45

Property purchased by C.F.P.C. and sold 7/1/43 to 12/27/44:

	Items	Returns
Mess gear	56,175	$ 43,527 31
Sleeping gear	15,099	67,139 91
Miscellaneous	1,155	21,215 37
	72,429	$131,882 59
Grand Totals	146,090	$255,836 04

Rentals

	First Half 95th F.Y.	Last Half 95th F.Y.	96th F.Y. to 11/30/44	Totals
Equipment	$ 8,955 96	$28,349 67	$38,386 83	$ 75,692 46
Housing	21,163 54	43,240 10	33,313 89	97,717 53
Totals	$30,119 50	$71,589 77	$71,700 72	$173,409 99

It should be noted that receipts from equipment sales and rentals of both equipment and housing total $429,246.03. Receipts from sale of S.R.A. liquidation account equipment are turned over to the Department of Finance for the S.R.A. liquidation account.

A very large part of the equipment remaining from SRA and State Guard activities, which glutted State warehouses and had been declared surplus by other State departments, was turned over to the council. This is being disposed of at current market values, giving the State a much better return for this merchandise than it had anticipated. The cost of renovating sleeping and mess gear, its transportation, and all costs incident to disposal, have been wholly borne by the council.

As the summaries above suggest, there has been an increasing activity in this department, despite the very large quantities of equipment which the council has made available to farmers since July 1, 1943. Equipment rentals during the first five months of the Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year exceeded those for the entire Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year, while housing rentals the first five months of the Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year were more than half the rentals for the entire Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year.

Supplies and equipment purchased for resale are sold at prices sufficient to cover original cost plus handling charges. Selling prices are approved by the State Department of Finance.

This activity has not resulted from any intention on the part of the Council to engage in supplying equipment in competition with established business firms. The council has sought only to provide such necessary equipment as farmers could not obtain through regular channels of trade.

The property receiving, accounting, and warehousing procedures are all approved by the State Department of Finance, and all personnel handling money or equipment are properly and adequately bonded.

In view of the very large amount of housing and equipment received by the council from the Federal Government, particularly that in the former Japanese assembly centers, and the haste in which it was distributed, the council staff is now engaged in checking the location and accountability of all equipment, including that of Federal origin, and steps are being taken to acquire title to all Federal property received by the council.

VIII. County Farm Production Committees

The Food and Fiber Production Act provides for establishment in the various counties of county farm production committees to assist the Farm Production Council in determining local farm labor, farm housing, and farm equipment needs. Committees have been appointed in 44 counties with a total membership of 504 farmers.

Not only have these county farm production committees been of aid to the council, in most counties they have served as advisory farm labor committees to the Farm Labor Offices of the Agricultural Extension Service, assisting that agency in determining local farm labor and crop requirements and resources.

The act also provides for establishment in the various counties of the office of county farm production coordinator, with the Farm Production Council sharing in the compensation and expense of the coordinator where the council deems it advisable.

Thirty-six counties have appointed county farm production coordinators, nine of them receiving contributions from the council toward compensation and office expense during the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year and 10 during the first six months of the Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year. During the Ninety fifth Fiscal Year, there was expended for this purpose $14,575. During the first six months of the Ninety-sixth Fiscal Year, the expenditure is estimated at $5,890, as against an expected outlay of $23,750.

Counties in which coordinators are partly paid by the council are as follows: Contra Costa, Imperial, Los Angeles, Riverside, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Tulare, and Yolo.

Other counties having coordinators are as follows: Alameda, Butte, Colusa, El Dorado, Fresno, Glenn, Humboldt, Kern, Kings, Lake, Madera, Marin, Mendocino, Merced, Modoc, Orange, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Solano, Stanislaus, Sutter, Tehama, Ventura, and Yuba.

At the start of the council's program, the coordinators aided greatly in supplying the administrative staff with information concerning local labor and housing needs. They assisted in the rapid distribution of mess gear, bedding gear, and housing. They worked closely with local farm groups, explaining the services which the council could or could not render and provided an effective local contact for the council in each agricultural county.

Through these two agencies—the county committees and the coordinators—the council staff has carried on a large part of its work in assisting in the organizing of local farm labor procurement associations and in determining the nature and extent of local production problems.

IX. Child Care Centers

To assist in making it possible for mothers of small children to accept employment in canneries and fruit packing houses, the Farm Production Council has granted limited assistance to child care centers. Since funds in limited amounts have been available for this purpose from other sources, the council has agreed to take care of the deficits of such centers as have met its requirements as to maximum use of other resources.

During 1943, such assistance extended by the council totaled $5,143.68, and in 1944, $1,000.

In 1943, aid was extended to child care centers operated in Oakland and Lodi by the American Women's Voluntary Services. Operation of these two centers released for vital work 3,573 woman-day's work.

In 1944, assistance was confined to the Lodi Child Care Center, the council granting $1,000 toward the center's deficit.

X. Personnel

Personnel requirements of the Farm Production Council have varied greatly with the extent of the operation, dropping from a high of 690 employees in August, 1943, to a low of 119 in November, 1944.

The following table gives the peak employment in the three principal categories and the total for each month of the council's operation:

Month	Administrative	Clerical and Office	Labor, etc.	Total

Maintenance of a competent working staff has been greatly complicated by an excessive high turnover, a characteristic of most war agencies. There have been an average of 8.35 appointments per employee, the highest rate of turnover being 17.3 for camp group supervisors.

The following summary, covering the period July 1, 1943, to November 30, 1944, shows the distribution of personnel by classification:

XI. General

The Farm Production Council has engaged in several other activities of importance to agriculture requiring time and effort on the part of the council members themselves, the director, and members of the staff.

A few of these are cited.

In December, 1943, the council sent Director W. B. Parker to Washington to testify before Congressional Committees on behalf of the Farm Labor Project and its continuance through 1944. It is under this project that the Farm Labor Recruitment and Placement Program of the Agricultural Extension Service and the Mexican national farm worker importation program are authorized and financed. Both of these services have been of utmost importance to California agriculture.

In December, 1944, the council sent Deputy Director Don W. McColly to Washington to appear on behalf of California farmers in appealing for a further continuance of the program.

These efforts were successful on both occasions.

Meat Quotas Opposed

When large numbers of Mexican national farm workers were brought into California in 1943, much dissatisfaction arose among these workers because of the meals served them. The Farm Production Council made a strong appeal to the War Food Administration and the Director of War Mobilization for the relaxing of meat quotas, citing the growing discontent among farm workers. The Office of Price Administration released meat quota restrictions on August 18, 1943. The council does not claim full credit for this accomplishment, but feels its efforts had much to do with the result obtained.

Oppose Butane Restriction

It was disclosed in July, 1943, that Federal authorities proposed to divert butane and other liquefied petroleum gases for the manufacture of aviation gasoline and synthetic rubber. This diversion would have caused extreme hardship among California farmers who operate hundreds of trucks and tractors with these fuels, and also rely upon them for cooking and heating their homes. Statistics were assembled and a protest prepared which were submitted to the Petroleum Administrator for War through the office of Governor Warren. Shortly thereafter assurance was given that essential users of liquefied petroleum gas would continue to be supplied.

Appeal for Feedstuffs

Appeals have been made to the proper Federal officials on behalf of the live stock industry for increased supplies of feedstuffs, particularly protein feeds.

Assistance to Processors

Assistance has been given food processors in recruiting labor, and reports have been compiled during the critical processing seasons on the adequacy of the labor force, crop conditions in the field, transportation facilities, and so forth.

Outlets for Surplus Crops

When it appeared that a considerable tonnage of cling peaches would be unprocessed during the 1944 Season, the council sought new outlets for fruit through processing by home and community groups. A considerable demand was built up, but as canners increased their acceptance of fruit, no supplies were made available.

Surplus Property Disposal

At the urgent request of the State Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission, the council has made preliminary inquiry into the possible services it might render agriculture through aiding in the distribution of Federal surplus property and equipment. Because of the fact that Federal legislation was only recently enacted governing such disposal and that the Federal Surplus Property Board has not been fully constituted, it has not been possible to do much thus far.

However, council staff members have familiarized themselves with agencies disposing of surplus properties in California, noted the type of surplus property being sold, and supplied this information to interested farmers. Anticipating increasing disposal of such surplus property, the council has sought to determine the equipment particularly needed by farmers to assist in routing such equipment to them if and when it becomes available. This is now being done on a limited test basis in Stanislaus County through personal canvass of a specified number of farmers, and through circulation of a questionnaire. Equipment dealers are also being canvassed.

There is no interest or intention on the council's part to enter into wholesale or retail purchase and sale of surplus goods, nor to enter into competition with established business. Its efforts thus far are restricted to fact finding, and fact dissemination among farmers.

Keep Growers Informed

California farmers have looked to the Farm Production Council for information concerning farm labor, farm labor housing, and other production problems. To meet the daily requests for information—and occasionally, guidance—has required that staff members keep themselves abreast of changes and developments in the farm labor field, and informed as to such matters as fertilizers, feeds, seeds, sprays, containers, transportation, and so forth.

Numerous requests have come from various groups for talks about these matters, and members of the council and the staff have met frequently with various groups in various parts of the State to discuss current farm production problems and conditions and to inform them concerning the place, purpose, and scope of the council's work and aims.

In addition, there has been developed by the staff since August 1st, a news letter entitled "Pertinent Paragraphs," summarizing recent actions of the council, new policy changes, and pertinent information on production matters. The news letter is mailed to 750 county farm production committeemen and farm leaders in the State. From time to time, other summaries, such as a recent one indicating farm labor prospects for 1945, are prepared and distributed.

These activities, usually designated as public relations matters, are designed to be of maximum usefulness to farm operators. They include, of course, the preparation of special material for newspaper use and radio presentation.

Volunteer Worker Recruitment
Cooperative Advertising Campaign

During the Summer of 1943, the Farm Production Council took the lead in initiating a State-wide cooperative advertising campaign to recruit volunteer workers for employment on farms and in food processing plants.

The council secured the assistance of the San Francisco and Los Angeles Advertising Clubs, which in turn assigned to N. W. Ayer & Son, a leading National advertising agency, the task of preparing copy for advertisements and billboards as a wartime contribution. Eight hundred portfolios of the advertisements prepared were printed and distributed to newspapers, local advertising clubs, chambers of commerce, and other groups.

Through the efforts of these private agencies and the council, the labor recruitment advertising was inserted by local business firms throughout the State.

Foster and Kleiser and Company, outdoor advertising firm, cooperated in the preparation of billboard advertising copy, which it posted at its own expense on 271 billboards. This firm also secured the assistance of many of its clients, who at their expense posted more than 200 additional billboard advertisements.

This Advertisement Recruitment Program required an expenditure by the council for art work, engraving, printing, et cetera, of $5,684.61.

It is estimated that the resultant advertising secured would have cost in excess of $200,000.

Assist Agricultural Extension Service

The council is regularly called upon to counsel with and assist the Agricultural Extension Service in the consideration of farm labor problems in its special field, and to supply information which is essential to the conduct of its program.

Prepare Organizational Charts

To aid in the better understanding of its organization and activities, the council has prepared organizational charts. These have been supplied as supplements to budget requests.

Agriculture's Remarkable Record in 1944

In concluding this report, the council calls special attention to the remarkable production accomplishment of California farmers in 1944. The State Department of Agriculture tentatively estimates the State cash farm income for the year at $1,650,000,000, 10 per cent above that of 1943, and 2½ times above the 1936-1940 average. Ceiling prices on farm commodities kept this figure substantially below what it otherwise would have been. Several new crop production records are represented in attainment of the figure, estimated at more than 13 per cent of the Nation's farm production.

The same record-breaking production tempo is slated for California farmers in 1945. Crop production goals have already been set for this year. The only significant decreases are in production of poultry, eggs, and early potatoes, products that have but little effect upon the general farm labor situation. Increases are called for in sugar beets, certain seed crops, Ladino clover. There is a likelihood that 1944 returns and labor difficulties may lead to a decrease in the production of tomatoes and onions.

The orchard and vineyard acreages must remain unchanged, and dry farm lands will be planted to grain and hay, as usual, with no material change in requirements for farm labor. There is a tendency for farmers to stick with the crops with which they are familiar and for the production of which they are equipped.

The indications are that farm worker requirements in 1945 will be largely a repetition of what has been needed in 1944. During the first week of September, that need reached a peak of 442,312 workers.

The Mexican Farm Worker Importation Program, financed by the Federal Government, has been assured for 1945 on about the same basis as in 1944, with a continuation of the 1944 Recruitment and Placement Program.

Chief reliance must be placed the coming year upon our normal labor supply, which in 1944 accounted for 76 per cent of agricultural workers. The Mexican nationals, who supplied slightly over 10 per cent of the labor supply, will have to be housed again—and they have been largely taken care of with council facilities. Volunteer workers account for a little over 9 per cent. The prisoner of war supply will doubtless be increased somewhat, accompanied by requests to the council for housing to help care for these prisoners and the accompanying military personnel.

These figures indicate that any shifting of workers from the normal labor supply, either into defense industry or into the military forces, will critically affect the State's entire Farm Production Program. There is a general feeling in agriculture that farmers must expect a tighter farm labor situation in 1945 than they have ever had. In spite of that, it is generally felt that California farmers are confidently going ahead with their plans to plant and harvest another record-setting output of food and fiber crops, the weather permitting, as their contribution to the State's war effort.

Emergency Rubber Project Camps Made Available for Housing Agricultural Labor

During 1943, the Farm Production Council learned of the impending discontinuance of a large part of the Emergency Rubber Project—the so-called Guayule Project. In connection with this project, the Federal Government had established series of camps at various locations in agricultural districts in the State. The council directed an appeal to the Emergency Rubber Project through the War Food Administration to make these camps, not then required by the Emergency Rubber Project, available for housing farm workers. Six such camps were made available for this purpose, as follows:

San Mateo Camp—San Diego County

Orange County Citrus Growers—36 family units from June 12 to September 7, 1943. Donald A. Briggs—12 family units from September 17 to October 14, 1943.

Wasco Camp—Kern County

Poso Land and Products Company—18 family units from June 10 to August 15, 1943. Agricultural Labor Bureau of San Joaquin County—18 family units from June 25 to July 15, 1943.

War Food Administration—Entire camp of 180 family units from August 16, 1943, to April, 1944, at which time the camp was transferred to the WFA.

Rodgers Road Camp—Stanislaus County

Flotill Products Company—Entire camp with capacity of 200 single men from July 1 to November 19, 1943.

Arbuckle Camp—Colusa County

War Food Administration—156 family units from August 5 to September 30, 1943.

Woodland Camp—Yolo County

War Food Administration—Entire camp of 168 family units from August 5, 1943, to February 1, 1944. This camp was leased to the Farm Production Council for the housing of Mexican nationals from August 5 to December 5, 1943.

Camp McCallum—Monterey County

Senate Resolution No. 20

Relating to the death of Charles M. Brown

WHEREAS, God, in his Wisdom, has but recently brought an end to the span of life of one of California's leading citizens, the Honorable Charles M. Brown of Redlands, California; and

WHEREAS, The people of California and the Members of the Legislature have many reasons for perpetuating his memory in the official records of our State; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That when we adjourn, we do so out of respect for the memory of Charles M. Brown; and, be it further Resolved, That this resolution and the remarks of its sponsor be entered in the Senate Journal.

Remarks by Senator Swing Concerning the Honorable Charles M. Brown

Historians have frequently recorded the name of Charles M. Brown as one of those whose vision and foresight has done so much in the development of the citrus industry of our Southland. Mr. Brown was a resident of Redlands, in the Sunkist Valley of California. During his lifetime he was surrounded by a host of friends who frequently sought his advice and counsel in matters ranging from those of National scope to the simplest irritation of the most lowly citizen. Since the adjournment of our last session, the bells have tolled his departure and his soul has departed for the Kingdom of the Almighty. Few men depart this life leaving behind such a host of friends to mourn his departure. Many there will be who will miss the kindly salute of the man who never turned a deaf ear to the call of the needy or the person in distress. In politics he was registered as a Democrat. He was loyal to the party with which he was affiliated; yet, with him, friendship surmounted politics and his regard and respect for those who opposed him politically was never affected by such political differences.

While California has lost a truly great and generous citizen, the people of my county and I, as well as many others, have lost a friend whose place no other can fill. His earthly march with time has ceased, but his deeds of kindness will linger on and our love for him while on earth will continue as a cherished memory of a lasting friendship. While life has ceased, and Charles M. Brown has gone into the Realm of Mystery, it would be unfortunate indeed if we did not here hesitate to give expression of our appreciation of the accomplishments and character of our departed citizen. It is, therefore, with the thought of officially perpetuating this memory, but with sorrow in my heart, that I move the adoption of this resolution.

Senate Resolution No. 20 adopted by a rising vote of the following Senators:

Senators Biggar, Breed, Brown, Burns, Carter, Collier, Crittenden, Cunningham, Desmond, Deuel, Dillinger, Dilworth, Donnelly, Dorsey, Fletcher, Gordon, Hatfield, Hulse, Jespersen, Judah, Keating, Kuchel, Mayo, McCormack, Mixter, Parkman, Powers, Quinn, Rich, Salsman, Seawell, Shelley, Slater, Sutton, Swing, Tenney, Ward, and Weybret—38.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE
SACRAMENTO 3, January 12, 1945

Hon. Frederick F. Houser, President of the Senate
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR SIR: I wish to respectfully suggest that a Committee of the Senate be appointed to cooperate with the Committee of the Assembly to study the feasibility of doing all voting by mail.

This office has received hundreds of copies of editorials from the various newspapers concerning this subject, and they seem to be equally divided for and against the proposal. However, practically all of them seem to agree that a study should be made of this question.

This office will cooperate with the committee to the fullest.

Sincerely yours,

FRANK M. JORDAN, Secretary of State

Report of Southern Counties' Sub-Committee on Postwar Construction and Unemployment

The undersigned members of the Senate Postwar Committee, appointed as a subcommittee to make investigation of and concerning postwar plans of the various public officials and private industries within the Counties of Imperial, Kern, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, Santa Barbara, and Ventura, and ascertaining and determining the probable postwar conditions within such counties as such conditions relate to both public and private construction employment and general welfare, report that we visited each and all of said counties except Ventura and Santa Barbara and held extensive hearings therein, and have ascertained and assembled all available facts and data bearing upon the matters within the scope and purposes of our investigations. From and during such hearings we have assembled large masses of data and information of and concerning the plans of the various public bodies within said counties which required weeks to analyze and study. A condensed summary of data relating to the counties visited by the committee, as it relates to expenditures, man hours, and so forth, is hereto attached and made a part of this report.

Most of the public officials within the various counties have a keen appreciation of the situation which will confront the public entities following the declaration of peace and have conceived and developed plans for various public improvements which normal and anticipated development will of necessity require.

Briefly, and without attempting to segregate into municipal, county, and other public entities, the investigations disclose that, within the various counties within our jurisdiction, plans for improvement extending over a period of approximately six years, and which have been fairly well decided upon, disclose projects, expenditures, man days, costs, and so forth, as follows:

Counties	Total Projects	Cost Estimates	Man Days
Los Angeles	5,867	$897,980,889 00	53,744,113
San Diego	184	80,459,950 00	4,380,159
Orange	158	17,339,943 00	1,074,169
San Bernardino	147	30,426,725 00	2,637,982
Riverside	68	5,689,400 00	264,470
Imperial	63	12,251,557 00	1,039,476
Kern	107	13,521,407 00	646,476

General information in possession of the committee indicates that both Santa Barbara and Ventura are as fully advanced in planning as the other southern counties. It is true the plans for these various projects have not all been fully developed, but each project represents an improvement made necessary by the public interests and demands, as now visualized, and will of necessity be constructed as and when material and man power become available.

In many instances plans for financing have been fairly well developed. In some instances, particularly the smaller cities and in some of the larger ones, a plan for financing the necessary construction will yet have to be developed and depends somewhat on the State's post war program.

With a total expenditure for public improvements within the counties above named during the six years immediately following the declaration of peace, aggregating more than 6,594 separate projects, the expenditure of more than $1,057,669,871 and furnishing more than 63,806,847 man days of labor, a very healthy and bright future may be anticipated for the counties referred to, especially if the State does not fall down on its job of preparing to meet the post war conditions which we may reasonably anticipate.

While these expenditures relate solely to those proposed by the various municipalities, counties and political subdivisions within Southern California, a sound legislative policy for future State construction was initiated at the last session of the Legislature wherein certain proportions of the taxes were earmarked for post war construction uses. Unfortunately, we failed to take full advantage of what might have been done in the way of preparing the State to meet the demands which will be made upon it following the war. However, the Legislature did earmark and set aside an amount now aggregating approximately $115,000,000. This sum, however, is dwarfed by the ambitious plans of the cities and counties of the southern district, and is but a drop in the bucket of what the State must have if it is to do its full duty to its citizens in the way of preparation to meet conditions which will surely confront it following the declaration of peace.

There is not the slightest doubt but that the demands which will be made upon the State for safe and convenient highways, adequate air fields, Governmental expansion, social and economic welfare, to accommodate the great horde of people which hope and will within a comparatively short time flock to California, will require a tremendous expenditure of public funds within a comparatively few years, if we are to take advantage of our opportunities and attain and hold our position as one of the greatest industrial and residential States of the Union. With our present favorable tax structure and the present tremendous buying power of our people, California is in a position to be the leading State of the Union in its postwar construction. A Building Program should now be mapped out and financed to meet future needs rather than wait until we are confronted with the acute problems which increased population of necessity will create. This can not be accomplished without the creation of a Postwar Building Fund far in excess of that which is now available in the State Treasury. A sane and wise policy dictates that this fund should be created during prosperous times when the tax burden can best be sustained and carried.

While the Postwar Building Program of the State, cities, and counties is predicated upon the necessity for and utility of the proposed projects, still the prime and by far the most important thought which prompted and caused the adoption of our Postwar building policy was the providing of employment for men and women of the armed forces upon their return to civilian life. Of course, the ideal situation to which these men and women can return and in which the greatest opportunity for financial and social advancement is offered is free enterprise and private industry operated under conditions of industrial peace, but in the meantime, and until reconversion and reestablishment of private industry, the State can not neglect its obligation to those who have made the sacrifice during this unholy war.

The legislative policy, as established last session, is to provide suitable employment for every returning veteran, man or woman, immediately upon release from service. This policy involves the fulfillment of our promise to these men and women that their services to their Country will not be forgotten. At the last session of the Legislature certain tax reductions were made for a period of two years in the interests of the civilians, but from which the Soldiers received no benefits. It will be up to the Legislature to determine whether these reductions should be continued or whether the taxes should resume their normal rate and thereby provide for a fund which will be necessary if we are to make good our promises to those in the armed service. Tremendous increases in cost of State Government will of necessity be made during the next few years. Salary adjustments, official and employees salary increases, as well as normal increases in cost of Government, will make substantial inroads on any surplus there may now be in the State Treasury. If the Legislature must choose between tax reduction and its established policy of providing peace-time employment for our Soldiers and Sailors, then confessedly we should choose the latter. It is far better that we, who have been and are enjoying warm beds, home comforts, and excessive incomes, carry the little extra tax burden during these prosperous times necessary for a satisfactory Postwar Employment Program than to disappoint a single returning veteran in his hopes for a job and home security.

Not only did we give consideration to the proposed improvements by the public entities, but we likewise made inquiry concerning industry as it relates to postwar reconversion and as to what may be hoped for in the way of employment by industries on the Pacific Coast following the declaration of peace. Practically every Pacific Coast industry functioning prior to the war has converted its facilities into war-producing equipment of some character. New industries have sprung up on the Pacific Coast as the result of war demands. The reconversion of the old plants back to their original purposes and the conversion of the new wartime industries into peacetime industries is one of the serious problems facing California. Yet in the success of such reconversion and the continuance of such industries in the manufacture of civilian necessities lies the future of California. Heretofore the freight rates have discriminated against Pacific Coast States and have created a barrier over which the industries of California had difficulty in hurdling. The future California will, of necessity, have to deal with and provide homes and employment for many more millions of people than now claim that State as a residence. It is not at all visionary to assume that within 10 years the population will exceed fifteen millions of people. These people must be housed. They must have employment. They must have means of subsisting if we are to be a prosperous State. Public improvement offers no satisfactory, permanent solution for the problems which will confront the State and the various political subdivisions in the postwar area. Private industry, and only private industry, can meet the demands which will be made upon us within a comparatively short time in the future. While new markets in the Orient and other foreign empires, have their persuasive influence upon industry in its efforts to meet the situation, this alone will not suffice.

Fair freight rates, such as are now being promised to the Southern States by the Government in Washington, must be accorded to the Pacific Coast. Inducement by the way of fair taxation must likewise be extended if industries are to furnish the employment so necessary for our success, but fair freight rates and reasonable taxation alone can not solve the problem. We must have industrial peace. We must have working conditions under which the employed feel not only secure but adequately compensated for the services rendered. To bring this about some change in our economic system and industrial management, as well as our revenue producing laws, must occur. Most great industries require large capital. Seldom is this capital produced from a single source. The most development is through the instrumentality of a corporate entity, but under our present Federal Tax Laws corporations offer little inducement to capital or to labor. The tremendously high tax rates imposed upon corporate profits discourage new capital venturing into what may or may not prove a successful gamble. To have industrial peace we must have a common interest—a common goal for both management and labor. That mutual interest can best be attained when both share in the profits. The stock of many of the great corporations is generally held by the public. If the corporations which must finance industry could be so taxed that the profits would not be doubly penalized, then the inducement for investment would be more attractive. The man who helps produce could and in most instances would feel inclined to put a part of his earnings back into the plant which he, himself, was helping to operate, enlarge, and expand, and thereby become a part owner, but under the present Federal plan of taxation where the corporate profits are smacked with a heavy tax and the dividends again taxed as income of the stockholder, and the employee again taxed upon his wages, such a plan offers little to enthuse about. With a revised Tax System, so that profits would carry their just share of the tax, but not be doubly taxed, the situation would be entirely different. While we can not control the Federal Government in its plan of taxation, it is to be hoped that there will be a revision of this Tax System as it affects corporations, so that industry as it operates through a corporate entity will be attractive to both capital and labor as a suitable investment.

In conclusion, permit us to say that throughout the southern part of the State we found nothing but commendation for the policy initiated by the Legislature in urging timely preparation for our return to normalcy. Generally speaking, the sentiment is unanimous in continuing our policy of providing an adequate fund for postwar development and construction, not only by the State but also by the various subdivisions. We found very little sentiment favoring a continuation of the present temporary tax reduction, if such continued reduction would prevent the accumulation of an adequate fund for the State to go on a Pay-As-You Go Building Program sufficient to meet all of the present and anticipated needs which changing postwar conditions will develop. Many of the smaller communities hope for real cooperation by the State in carrying on the plans which they respectively have conceived.

It will be the function of the entire committee to map out and recommend to the Legislature a safe and sane policy and program for California. To the policies so adopted, California's future is largely staked. To us has been entrusted this duty, and in the performance of it we must not fail.

Sincerely,

E. GEORGE LUCKY, Chairman.
JACK B. TENNEY,
RALPH E. SWING,
Members of Subcommittee.

Senate Resolution No. 23

Relative to the passing of Charles King

The Senate of California has learned with regret of the passing of Charles King, a former Colleague and friend of many now serving in this body. At the home of his son, Aubrey King of Los Angeles, on May 1, 1944, his full and varied life was brought to a close.

Born August 2, 1855, in Bedford County, Tennessee, he came to California in 1858, arriving in Hanford with worldly possession of only 88 but richly endowed with vision and energy. In a few years he had accumulated considerable means and went into the fruit packing business, following which he dealt in real estate and similar activities.

In 1893 he was active in bringing about the formation of Kings County which was then a part of Tulare County, and in 1909 he greatly assisted in the passage of legislation resulting in the annexation to Kings County of a portion of Fresno County comprising 110 to 115 sections.

Inherently a builder, he began construction of the Hanford and Summit Lake Railroad in 1912 but before its completion the Southern Pacific Railroad took it over and continued the road to connect with their West Side line at Ingle, Fresno County.

In the 1914 primary election he was a candidate on the Democratic ticket for Governor of the State of California but failed to secure his party nomination.

Beginning in 1917 he constructed the Kings Lake Shore Railroad which ran from the City of Corcoran some 15 miles southwesterly into the heart of the fertile Tulare Lake Basin Region, and he operated this road for some years.

Elected to the State Senate from Kings County in 1932, he served during the Fiftieth and Fifty-first Sessions. Had he so desired he no doubt could have continued in such capacity until his passing. His services in the Legislature were faithfully and honorably performed and he retired with the respect and friendship of all who knew him.

In tribute to the memory of this fine gentleman and former Colleague, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That when the Senate adjourns this day it shall do so in memory of Charles King; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to prepare and transmit to Aubrey King a properly engrossed copy of this resolution.

In making this study the committee has had the cooperation of the Assembly Interim Committee on Juvenile Delinquency, appointed in 1943 under authority of House Resolution No. 268. Said report is very comprehensive and shows the extent of juvenile delinquency in the State and the necessity for remedial action.

FINDINGS

Juvenile Delinquency Assuming Serious Proportions

Juvenile delinquency in this State is assuming very serious proportions and it is necessary that steps be taken by the State to prevent boys and girls from becoming delinquent by removing them from environment and conditions which cause delinquency. According to testimony before the committee by Heman G. Stark, a member of the State Youth Authority, last year more than 50,000 boys and girls were arrested in California. Said this representative, among other things, "All those were charged with some offense and records made in the police departments. Of that number somewhere between 25,000 and 30,000 were turned over to the probation department and the juvenile court. The rest were handled in the local community by local police officials usually, sometimes in cooperation with local agencies. I think that gives us some basis on which to judge the size of the problem on a State-wide level."

With reference to the growth of juvenile delinquency in the State, Harold A. Slane, another member of the Youth Authority, stated in part to the committee: "I would like to start back just a little and call attention to the fact that on December 7, 1941, we had approximately 12,500 boys and girls who were wards of the juvenile court of California—a State-wide figure. As of July 1st, this year, that figure was approximately 22,000, an increase of about 80 per cent since Pearl Harbor. The Youth Authority had under its jurisdiction 4,106 boys and girls this year. We are handling over a 100 per cent increase over 1943. I wanted to give you these two figures so you will see the real increase of juvenile delinquency in California."

With reference to the problems of juvenile delinquency in San Francisco, Michael J. Riordan, Deputy Chief of Police, made the following statement: "It might be interesting that we have some statistics showing how the problem has increased in San Francisco. On juvenile arrests in 1942 the average was 60 (per month). The average for 1943 was 139. The average for the first six months of 1944 was 152."

With reference to this problem in Los Angeles the presiding judge of the juvenile court, Judge Samuel R. Blake, stated before the committee: "From the Los Angeles standpoint I brought just a statistic or two here to indicate where the need is in that group. For instance, I find from our studies that were made in the two-year pre-war period, 1940-1941, that arrests were 17,000 in Los Angeles. In the two-year war period, 1942-1943, they jumped to 26,000 arrests, which is an increase of 53 per cent. From 1940 to 1943 there was an increase between the 1943 arrests and 1940 arrests of 100 per cent—that is from 1940 to 1943; 1942 increasing over 1941—so that the total span is 50 per cent. That gives you a barometer of the need in the delinquency field. It has been my observation that we are dropping down in the age of delinquency. I find that crimes of violence are dropping down to the 13, 14, and 15-year-old group. That is an increase in this group, from my experience, over the situation as it was six or seven years ago."

In Contra Costa County the committee was informed by Judge A. F. Bray, in charge of the juvenile department of the superior court, that there is a truancy problem among 3,000 out of 21,000 students in the schools of that county.

In connection with the foregoing, the committee finds that present correctional facilities are hopelessly inadequate and in many cases stimulate juvenile delinquency rather than cure it through placing healthy, normal law-abiding youngsters in contact with habitual truants and incorrigibles. While attempts are being made to punish wrongdoers and to correct the habits of those who are breaking the law, through the Youth Authority and local agencies, as yet little is being done to adequately and properly screen the children coming before the juvenile court, thus to recognize and work with those children who are drifting directly into the juvenile delinquency class.

Large Number of Delinquency Cases Before Juvenile Courts

During recent years there has been a great increase in the number of juveniles brought before the juvenile courts. In order to determine as accurately as conditions would permit the present number of children being brought before juvenile courts the committee has had a table compiled, by counties, showing the number of delinquents sent to detention homes, placed in reformatories, or wards of juvenile courts as of July 12, 1944. This table was compiled from figures supplied the committee by county clerks and probation officers and is as follows:

The figure for Los Angeles County includes the sum of $675.00 covering juvenile and adult probation, the figures not being apportioned between the two.

No figures are included in the above tabulation for the Counties of Del Norte, Madera, Marin, Merced, and Santa Cruz, the figures not being available for these counties. The original reports from which the above table has been compiled are being filed with the Secretary of the Senate and will be available for information.

It is recognized by the committee that the above figures relate to juvenile delinquency in general and include a broader scope than the specific problem assigned to your committee for its study.

The principle involved in the plan being studied by this committee has been approved and the proposed schools recommended by the following organizations in this State, to wit:

Fraternal Order of Eagles in State Aerie meeting,
Loyal Order of Moose in State Convention,
Women of the Moose in State Convention,
Executive Committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in State meeting, Optimist Club in Bakersfield in meeting, and others.

Since the last meeting of the committee the chairman has received a letter from Robert W. Hansen, Grand Worthy President of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and editor of The Eagle Magazine, its official publication, at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, wherein he states that The Fraternal Order of Eagles contemplates recommending the establishment in all States of the Union of such schools as are proposed here.

No Adequate Provision for Certain Juvenile Groups

It has become clear from the investigation of the committee and testimony received that there exists no satisfactory means of dealing with juvenile cases which do not justify commitment to reformatory institutions. It appears that a considerable proportion of the children brought before the juvenile courts are not brought there as delinquents and are not of the type of children who should under any circumstances be sent to reformatory institutions. Judge Samuel R. Blake, Presiding Justice of the Juvenile Court of Los Angeles, stated that in that county 58 per cent of the cases acted upon by the court involved crimes classified as felonies; that approximately 41.4 per cent were not of this class, and that there was a group of 38 per cent where the children were not delinquent and where the term "delinquency" was a misnomer.

It appears further from the testimony given before the committee that in many of these cases there has been no adequate provision for caring for the nondelinquent children and that it has even been necessary on occasion to keep them in the county jail although this procedure is in violation of the law. Said Judge Blake with reference to this problem: "There are 80 in the county jail that are waiting to get into the correctional schools. That is the actual figure obtained this morning. That span has been from 114 to 148 days * * * the boys that should have a 24-hour program are pushed back into the community, so that we have leadership in delinquency in the community. That is going down the scale further and we are getting the predelinquents that should be under 24-hour supervision."

Breakdown in the Home

Said Harold A. Slane, Member of the California Youth Authority, concerning this phase of the problem— "Besides that increase there has been an increase in what you would call predelinquent type cases. Many good teachers will tell you that in the third grade they recognize predelinquent tendencies. They can pick out boys and girls who, if they are not given some type of training, will become delinquent. Many times they come from where there isn't proper guidance at home. The real need in California today is for some type of training to fill the gap at that point, where the boy or girl can be given the advantages of a training program on a 24-hour basis. I recognize it is the fundamental concept that the home is supposed to be the basic unit, but unfortunately we have had a tremendous breakdown in what we like to call the old-fashioned American home, and it becomes necessary for somebody, your school, your county, or district, to step in and prevent that juvenile delinquency. There certainly is a real need."

To meet this problem of proper handling of boys and girls who come before the juvenile court and require assistance, but who have not reached the point that they should be committed to reformatory institutions, most of the counties have conducted experiments. Los Angeles County has a number of schools to which such persons are assigned. The County of San Francisco has a school which they call the Log Cabin Ranch School (since destroyed by fire), which appears to have been very successful. Ventura and Santa Barbara Counties have schools for boys and girls. Kern County has set up what is called a forestry camp, and which has established a very fine reputation and children have been sent to it from counties as far removed as Sonoma. There is, however, no adequate program even in the more populous counties. Such a program is, of course, entirely beyond the financial ability of smaller counties due to the increased per capita cost when small numbers of children are involved. The plan usually used in the smaller county is simply to provide some sort of detention home—usually a private home of persons who are willing to feed and generally look after children. In most of these cases the children are not given the attention which they should receive and the educational opportunities may be very meager. With very few exceptions, all children handled by these means are sent to the public schools in the district in which they reside. The attendance of such children at the local district schools frequently meets with determined opposition of the parents of the district.

Plans Tending to Prevent Delinquency

Believing in the old adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," a system should be adopted which will tend to prevent juvenile delinquency rather than to allow the child to remain in conditions or situations which cause delinquency and then attempt to reform the child by reformatory measures or possibly punishment through penal action. The committee, having in mind the success of Father Flanagan's Boys' Home for Homeless Abandoned Boys, at Boys' Town, communicated with Father Flanagan relative to the proposed schools under study by this committee and in reply received from Father Flanagan under date of September 15, 1944, favorable reaction to the proposed schools, a portion of which reply we quote:

"I have read over your tentative plans for a State training school or schools for boys and girls and I believe it is a step in the right direction. I like your idea that we should spend money to prevent juvenile delinquency rather than allow a child to remain in conditions which cause delinquency and then attempt to reform the child by reformatory measures which are based on punishment—negative treatment—and which in my opinion has proven to be more harmful to the youth because it does not help to rehabilitate the boy or girl.

SUGGESTION AS TO NAME OF SCHOOL

"One suggestion that I would make is that you do not use the title of State Training School as that has a tendency to stamp it as a so-called reform school."

RELIGIOUS PROGRAM AND MILITARY TRAINING APPROVED

"I am sure, however, you are working in the right direction and much good will be forthcoming from such a worthwhile program. Everything should be done to make these youngsters happy and at the same time to help develop their character and to give them an opportunity to secure a good education—both academic and trade, and of course there should be, and must be, in order to have a successful program, a religious program such as you suggest which would take care of the Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish boys and girls in your setup. Military training would offer the boys a wonderful training in discipline and obedience and would have a splendid effect on each of the youngsters."

RECOMMENDS MACHINERY SETUP TO PREVENT JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

"I think it is high time that we realize that there are youngsters who need help such as this legislation indicates and that we spend money for the prevention of juvenile delinquency and not wait until it happens before we start to worry. Let us put the horse before the cart and set up machinery to help boys and girls, a Program of Juvenile Delinquency Prevention rather than keeping the door shut to these youngsters and then trying to help them after it is too late. Keep up this good work."

ACQUIRING OF SITES UNDER WAR SURPLUS PROPERTY ACT OF 1944 WILL REDUCE COST OF ESTABLISHING SCHOOLS

The cost of establishing the proposed schools will be very materially reduced if and when abandoned military camps may be secured from the Federal Government under the Act of the Congress known as the "War Surplus Property Act of 1944" hereinafter referred to. The committee finds that many of the Army camps are geographically properly located in the State and with very inexpensive alterations and remodeling will be admirably suitable for these proposed schools.

The committee received information that there were bills pending before the United States Senate and the House of Representatives which would, if passed, provide for the disposition of war surplus properties, including Army camps and cantonments. The committee ascertained that in the proposed bills there was not proper provision for the acquiring by the several States of the camps situate in those States for the public use. The committee set about to have finally incorporated in the proposed law dealing with the disposition of war surplus properties a provision that would allow the States to acquire such camps for public use, particularly for educational institutions. The committee appointed a representative in Washington to get before the Congress the desirability of allowing the States the right to acquire war surplus properties for such purposes. Through the assistance its Representative in Washington and Members of the Congress from California the committee finally secured a provision in the bill reading as follows:

"Disposal to Local Governments and Nonprofit Institutions

"Sec. 13. (a) The board shall prescribe regulations for the disposition of surplus property to States and their political subdivisions and instrumentalities, and to tax-supported and nonprofit institutions, and shall determine on the basis of need what transfers shall be made. Informulating such regulations the Board shall be guided by the objectives of this Act and shall give effect to the following policies to the extent feasible and in the public interest:

(1) (A) Surplus property that is appropriate for school, classroom, or other educational use may be sold or leased to the States and their political subdivisions and instrumentalities, and tax-supported educational institutions, and to other non-profit educational institutions which have been held exempt from taxation under Section 101 (6) of the Internal Revenue Code.

(B) Surplus medical supplies, equipment, and property suitable for use in the protection of public health, including research, may be sold or leased to the States and their political subdivisions and instrumentalities, and to tax-supported medical institutions, and to hospitals or other similar institutions not operated for profit which have been held exempt from taxation under Section 101 (6) of the Internal Revenue Code.

(C) In fixing the sale or lease value of property to be disposed of under subparagraph (A) and subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, the Board shall take into consideration any benefit which has accrued or may accrue to the United States from the use of such property by any such State, political subdivision, instrumentality, or institution.

(2) Surplus property shall be disposed of so as to afford public and governmental institutions, non-profit or tax-supported educational institutions, charitable and eleemosynary institutions, non-profit or tax-supported hospitals and similar institutions, States, their political subdivisions and instrumentalities, and volunteer fire companies, an opportunity to fulfill, in the public interest, their legitimate needs.

(b) Under regulations prescribed by the board, whenever the Government agency authorized to dispose of any property finds that it has no commercial value or that the cost of its care and handling and disposition would exceed the estimated proceeds, the agency may donate such property to any agency or institution supported by the Federal Government or any State or local government, or to any non profit educational or charitable organization, or, if that is not feasible, shall destroy or otherwise dispose of such property, but, except in the case of property the immediate destruction of which is necessary or desirable either because of the nature of the property or because of the expense or difficulty of its care and handling, no property shall be destroyed until thirty days after public notice of the proposed destruction thereof has been given (and a copy of such notice given to the board at the beginning of such thirty-day period) and an attempt has been made within such thirty days to dispose of such property otherwise than by destruction.

(c) No airport and no harbor or port terminal, including necessary operating equipment, shall be otherwise disposed of until it has first been offered, under regulations to be prescribed by the board, for sale or lease to the State, political subdivision thereof, and any municipality, in which it is situated, and to all municipalities in the vicinity thereof.

(d) Whenever any State or political subdivision thereof, or any State or Government agency or instrumentality certifies to the board that any power transmission line determined to be surplus property under the provisions of this act is needful for or adaptable to the requirements of any public or cooperative power project, such line and the right of way acquired for its construction shall not be sold, leased for more than one year, or otherwise disposed of, except as provided in Section 12 or in this section, unless specifically authorized by Act of Congress.

(e) In disposing of any surplus real property, as defined in Section 23, on or across which highways or streets had been established and constructed and were being maintained by the States or their political subdivisions or instrumentalities at the time such surplus real property was acquired by the Government, and where such highways or streets were vacated, destroyed, or shut off from general public use in order to meet the requirements and serve the purposes of the Government, the States or their political subdivisions or instrumentalities first shall be given a reasonable time, to be fixed by the board, in which to repurchase the original rights-of-way on which such highways or streets were established and in which to purchase such new or additional rights-of-way as may be required for reestablishing, in whole or in part, such highways or streets of greater width or on new and more adequate locations, at a price not exceeding that paid therefor by the Government.

"(f) The disposal of surplus property under this section to States and political subdivisions and instrumentalities thereof shall be given priority over all other disposals of property provided for in this Act except transfers under section 12." (Transfer between Federal agencies.)

It is of course apparent to this committee that the opportunity of acquiring such abandoned camps will not be available until the end of hostilities or at least close to the end of the war. Because of the provision in the War Surplus Property Act of 1944, wherein provision is made that the board handling the disposition of the war surplus properties in determining the sale value of properties to the several States may take into consideration the benefit to the Nation of the use thereof proposed to be made by the States, a very low sale price to the States may be granted by that board. Two of the three board members have been appointed and confirmed by the Senate, viz: former Governor Hurley of Connecticut and Lieutenant Col. Edward A. Heller of San Francisco.

Proposed Schools Would Be of Benefit to Nation

There is before the Congress of the United States a bill, or bills, which if passed will require compulsory military education of the boys of our Country. The age at which the boys would begin their military training may be fixed at 17 or 18 years. Whatever age may be decided, the military training and discipline will be of a standard set by the law or by the military arm of the Government. Whether the training will be of one year's duration or a two-year period will not be known until the passage of the bill.

The result of the military training and discipline and other features of the proposed schools will, without a doubt, be of benefit to the Nation and would be of such benefit as would be considered by the Federal board in fixing the sale value of abandoned Army camps and facilities in disposing of such war surplus properties to the State for school purposes as contemplated by the Surplus Property Act of 1944. The type of military training for the teen-age boy in the proposed schools would be such as to meet the standard to be set for compulsory military training by the Federal Government should the Congress adopt such plan. The boy receiving such military training in the proposed school could be relieved and probably provision would be made to release such students from the military training to be required by such Federal plan.

This committee believes that military training in the proposed schools will be of benefit for both boys and girls. Military discipline teaches good habits, creates the ability to live in harmony with other people and establishes a sterling character. The idea of compulsory military training seems to be approved generally, and particularly by the veterans organizations. On the same theory, military training and discipline in the proposed schools will be of value not only to the Nation but to the boys and girls themselves in preparing them to assume their proper places in society.

Cost of Schools

Notwithstanding the possibility of acquiring Army camps and cantonments and facilities as suitable sites for the proposed schools, the committee has investigated the probable cost of procuring other sites, and finds as a result of its study that the largest school of the type proposed which could be successfully administered, giving proper attention to all students, would be approximately 400 students; that smaller schools would be less economical and would result in a higher cost per student. That a school having a capacity of 400 students, including all buildings such as dormitories, class rooms, and infirmary and administration buildings, based upon experience with other State institutions, would be between $1,400,000 and $1,600,000. This cost does not take into consideration facilities which may be secured from the Federal Government, as hereinbefore mentioned, and which would very materially reduce the cost of such schools. The cost figures given above are those based on the regular index used by the Division of Architecture in computing its postwar construction projects.

It is believed by the committee that the establishment of these proposed schools will keep hundreds of children from being committed to reformatory and penal institutions thus performing a humanitarian service and at the same time will prove an economy measure for our State.

The committee takes the broad view that despite all of the various efforts being made throughout the State in the various cities and counties for the curtailment of juvenile delinquency, the fact remains that there is every indication that juvenile delinquency is on the increase. It is our opinion that the disciplinary type of well ordered 24-hour schools must be established for the benefit of the child who should never be sent to a reformatory, and who, at the same time for obvious reasons in many instances should never be sent back to his own home.

The committee senses the social causes which add to this whole problem, particularly the unrestricted admission of minors to places where intoxicating liquors are dispensed; the broken home, caused by divorce or drunkenness on the part of one or both parents, and the growing attitude of too many youngsters in reviling all the finer things in life and in opposing constituted authority, not only in the home and the school but also in relation to police administration and other legal restrictions.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Establishment of Schools

The committee recommends the establishment of 24-hour schools by the State (not a reformatory or penal institution) to which, through proper legal procedure, a boy or girl between the ages of 8 and 16 years may be admitted without stigma or any unsavory record. The student shall be one whose situation is such that he or she must be removed therefrom to prevent probable delinquency. The school will provide 24-hour supervision, discipline, and training. The school for boys shall include within its curriculum military training and discipline, academic subjects, vocational training, physical culture, and such other subjects of training as may be determined by the board of governors as proper and suitable. The school for girls should have included within its curriculum military training and discipline, academic subjects, vocational training, home economics, and such other subjects and training as may be by the board of governors deemed proper and suitable. Proper provision should be made for sports in both boys' schools and girls' schools, including football, baseball, handball, tennis, and such other sports as may be deemed proper by the superintendent or principal of the institution; also swimming pools may be provided with proper instructors.

The purpose of these schools will be to care for and train children who require special care and supervision that they may become good and useful citizens. The committee believes that the necessity of some provision being made for such children has been definitely established and that this can not be done satisfactorily through present State organizations or agencies or through county or local facilities; further, that in the smaller counties it is impossible for such counties to provide the proper facilities at reasonable cost, nor is it feasible for a combination of counties to provide such facilities. The proper handling of such situation is of State-wide concern, hence should be adopted as a State-wide activity.

The disparity in resources and the uneven burdens resting upon communities make it impossible to regard the prevenion of delinquency as merely a local problem. The committee, after studying these proposed 24-hour schools, deems it necessary that the State of California do something to assist in preventing juvenile delinquency and thus decrease delinquency in this State.

No Interference with Local Activities

The proposed schools will not interfere in the slightest degree with local activities such as the work of local authorities, the schools, churches, parents, youth clubs and other agencies. Such activities should, of course, continue.

NUMBER OF SCHOOLS

While the committee feels the success of such schools will require a larger number, yet, at the outset, we recommend that three schools be established, one for boys to be located in Northern California, one for boys to be located in Southern California, and one for girls to be located in Central California.

It is further recommended that the capacity of the schools should be approximately 400 students and that one of the schools for boys have reasonable facilities for agricultural training and the other school have reasonable facilities for mechanical training. This latter system would provide expanded vocational training rather than to have smaller like facilities for each of the schools.

TRAINING SHIP OR SHIPS

Due to the fact that an appreciable number of boys attending the schools will have a desire to become Sailors and it also appearing to the committee that after the war there will be a big demand for seamen in the Maritime Service in this Country, it is recommended that consideration be given to the ultimate establishment of a training ship or ships or other training facilities to equip the older boys for seamanship. We also have in mind that these boys, upon being trained to the proper standard for seamen and exhibiting a talent for officer's training may be promoted to the California Maritime Academy now maintained by the State of California for the training of officers in the Maritime Service through such procedure or provision as may be hereafter established.

ADMISSION OF STUDENTS TO SCHOOLS

Provision should be made for the admittance of children from 8 to 16 years of age brought before the juvenile court, after investigation by the juvenile court through the machinery already set up under the Juvenile Court Law, where the court finds that such child should not be committed to a reform school and no other proper provision can be made for the welfare of the child other than its admittance to the proposed schools. In such case, the juvenile court shall dismiss the proceedings and by proper legal procedure refer the matter to the probate court for the appointment of a guardian for such child, thereupon the guardian shall apply to the superintendent of the schools for admittance of such child as a 24-hour resident student in such school.

Admission should be made upon application to the governing head of the school nearest and most accessible to the county from which the child comes, who should have discretion to determine whether additional students could be admitted and also determine whether the particular student for whose admittance application is made, should be admitted in fairness to the students already in the schools. The superintendent could have before him the report of the probation officer who made the investigation for the juvenile judge. Any student refused admission should be referred back to the juvenile judge for other disposition of the case. The superintendent of the school should have the discretion to release a student from the school when in the judgment of such superintendent such release may be in the best interest of the student.

ADMINISTRATION OF SCHOOLS

Governing Board

It is recommended that the school be placed under the administration of a board of seven governors, the board to consist of the Superintendent of Public Instruction ex officio, and the Adjutant General ex officio, the remaining five members of the board to be appointed by the Governor for staggered terms. One of these members should be a doctor of medicine specializing in psychiatric cases. Of the remaining four members two should be women. Members of the board should receive no salary but should receive actual traveling expenses plus their per diem for the time actually spent in attendance at meetings. The appointment of board members to be made with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Rules and Regulations of Board

The board should have the usual and customary authority of adopting rules and regulations.

The committee recommends a full-time director over all the schools, acting under and by direction of the board of governors, and who shall have had not less than five years' experience in directing schools of the character proposed in these recommendations, and such other qualifications as may be adopted by the board of governors; a superintendent or principal for each of the schools who shall have had not less than five years' experience in the management and operation of similar schools as proposed here, whether public or private, and subject to the qualifications as may be prescribed by the board.

The board of governors should have authority to determine the number and qualifications of the personnel of each of these schools, subject to the authority of the State Personnel Board.

Teachers and instructors in such proposed schools should be selected from the standpoint of efficiency in the particular line or subject to be covered by such teacher or instructor.

Nonsectarian

The proposed schools should be nonsectarian in character. For the boys, it may be well to have chaplains, possibly volunteers from the communities in which the schools may be situated. No doubt, a Catholic priest would himself volunteer or select a volunteer for a Catholic chaplain. The ministerial association of the Protestant churches would, no doubt, provide a volunteer for a Protestant chaplain. Should there be any Jewish boys attending the school, a Rabbi in the community would probably volunteer to serve in that capacity. The chaplains would conduct the devotional exercises in such school.

The schools for boys should be conducted as nearly as practicable along the lines of the high-standard private military schools. The fine character of the boys graduating from the private military schools should prove an incentive for believing that the establishment of such proposed schools will be an investment worth to the State many times the cost of construction and maintenance.

FUNDS FOR MAINTENANCE OF SCHOOLS

The committee feels that it is not in a position to make final recommendations concerning acquisition of funds for support of the schools recommended, but suggests that consideration be given to the assumption by the State of primary responsibility for support, with provision, however, for contribution by parents who are financially able and by counties and by donations and endowments from private sources.

Provision also should be made for the transfer of the State support based on average daily attendance and of State aid for orphans and half orphans who may be students of these schools.

BUDGET

The schools should be supported by a regular biennial budget.

SCHOOLS TO BE ESTABLISHED AT THE FIFTY-SIXTH SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE

The committee recommends the establishment of the proposed schools at the Fifty-sixth Session of the California Legislature. It is quite apparrent that the installation of the schools must be accomplished as a Post-war Project, one of the reasons being that it would be probably impossible to obtain priorities for the construction of buildings during the war period and, further, that definite information as to the availability of military camps suitable for sites of these schools will not be available until after the war, or at most, a short time prior to the end of hostilities, and, further, that the acquiring of such suitable abandoned military camps and facilities will result in a considerable saving to the State.

It is further recommended, in view of the foregoing, that if and when such schools are established, the Property Acquisition Board, or other person or agency should be charged with the responsibility of negotiating with the Federal Government for the acquisition of abandoned military camps with authority to select the camps and facilities most suitable and available for these schools, and if the proposed plan to acquire such Federal property should for any reason fail, then such Property Acquisition Board or other agency or person should be authorized to acquire other suitable sites in the general locations hereinbefore recommended. The fund should be set up through appropriate legislation that money may be readily available with which to acquire such abandoned Army camps and equipment and to provide for any alterations, repairs, or remodeling that may be necessary after acquiring the same. It is quite apparent that a definite sum can not, in advance of purchase, be determined as the amount necessary therefor hence it is the view of this committee that an appropriation be made of a sum sufficient to acquire other sites, the construction of buildings and the purchase of necessary equipment in the contingency that such Army camps can not be acquired at a price deemed reasonable by the Property Acquisition Board or other agency authorized to negotiate for the purchase of such abandoned camps.

It is the recommendation of the committee that appropriations be made to cover the following:

$150,000 00 for sites (land) for three (3) schools;
250,000 00 for equipment for these schools;
2,800,000 00 for buildings for two (2) boys' schools;
1,400,000 00 for buildings for one (1) girls' school.

In addition to the foregoing an appropriation should be provided for the maintenance of these schools for the first biennium of $2,080,000.00.

The above mentioned figures for maintenance are based upon the information given the committee by the Department of Finance of expenditures of certain institutions such as the California Military Academy, Ventura School for Girls, Fred C. Nelles School for Boys and Preston School of Industry, which data will be filed with the Secretary of the Senate following the presentation of this report.

The committee reserves the privilege of filing a supplemental report should the same be deemed advisable.

The committee recommends as an appropriate name for such schools, "California Academy at _____" (adding to the name of each school the name of the city nearest its location, the city so honored to be selected by the Board of Governors).

APPRECIATION

The committee expresses its appreciation for the assistance rendered it by the Judges of the juvenile department of the superior court in and for the various counties; juvenile probation officers; county auditors; county clerks; private military schools; State Department of Finance; State Controller's Office; California Maritime Academy; State, county, and public school officials, and all officers and citizens who appeared as witnesses at the various hearings conducted by this committee.

Respectfully submitted.

MOTION TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Motion carried.

A REPORT ON INVESTIGATION OF THE DISEASE BEARING MOSQUITO HAZARD IN CALIFORNIA

Submitted to the Governor and to the Fifty-Sixth Session of the California Legislature Pursuant to Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11 by the State Department of Public Health—January 1945

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH
SAN FRANCISCO (2), CALIFORNIA, January 19, 1945

His Excellency The Governor of California and The California Legislature
State Capitol
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11, we are submitting a copy of our Report and Recommendations on the Disease Bearing Mosquito Hazard in California.

Sincerely,

WILTON L. HALVERSON, M.D.
Director of Public Health

REPORT ON INVESTIGATION OF THE DISEASE BEARING MOSQUITO HAZARD IN CALIFORNIA

Prepared by the State Department of Public Health in Accordance With Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11

SUMMARY AND RECOMMENDATIONS

MALARIA

(1) Malaria in California is now being reasonably well controlled by the combined efforts of the local mosquito abatement districts and the wartime activities of the United States Public Health Service, through the State Department of Public Health.

(2) The effect of the return of large numbers of malaria carriers from combat areas can not be accurately assessed. Plans must be made to meet this problem.

(3) The Malaria Control Program of the United States Public Health Service around military establishments employs 35 to 40 men with completely equipped trucks and includes two mobile units immediately available in the event of a malaria outbreak anywhere in the State.

(4) Existing Mosquito Control Programs should be maintained and expanded to assist in control of other mosquito-borne diseases.

OTHER MOSQUITO-BORNE DISEASES

(5) Other mosquito-borne diseases, including yellow fever, dengue fever, filariasis and encephalitis, might be imported but only the last is considered a public health problem in California.

(6) Both the St. Louis and Western equine types of encephalitis have been known to exist in California for many years and have been recently demonstrated as transmissible by common domestic mosquitoes.

(7) The reported deaths from encephalitis for the past 10 years have averaged 45 per year as compared with five per year for malaria.

(8) Japanese "B" and other types of encephalitis may be imported into California, and if not recognized and promptly controlled, the results might well become catastrophic; for example, the 1924 Tokyo epidemic caused 6,000 cases and 3,797 deaths.

(9) Advance of battle areas toward Japan and Eastern Asia will expose our military personnel to Japanese "B" encephalitis, and with rapid air transport unrecognized cases could easily reach California.

(10) The only practical method for control of our present encephalitis and Japanese "B" encephalitis is mosquito control, since effective vaccines or chemical prophylactics are not available for humans.

(11) The highest incidence of encephalitis as well as malaria in California is reported from the great Central Valley and the State should develop a Mosquito Control Program for counties in that area.

(12) Since equine encephalomyelitis (horse brain fever) is also transmitted by mosquitoes, a control program would be advantageous for economic as well as public health reasons.

(13) A plan is needed for quick assembly of State and local health and mosquito control agencies for work in any area affected by imported mosquito-borne disease such as malaria and Japanese "B" encephalitis.

MOSQUITO CONTROL

(14) The long established techniques of mosquito control must still be used since recently reported advances including the use of D.D.T. (Dichloro-diphenyl-trichloroethane) were developed for military purposes and are not yet available for civilian use.

(15) Present mosquito control work in organized districts is limited to 3 per cent of the area of the State and within the districts fairly good control of pest mosquitoes is accomplished with an expenditure of $363,000 annually.

(16) Wartime malaria and mosquito control in the immediate vicinity of military establishmems is effective with an expenditure of $67,000 annually.

(17) In other areas of the State, except a few in which local health departments carry on relatively small local programs, no mosquito control work is done.

(18) A State-wide and State-operated program designed to control pest as well as disease bearing mosquitoes, is not considered feasible, and the results obtained would not justify the cost which is estimated to be between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 per year.

(19) A State-operated Mosquito Control Program, limited to areas having the highest incidence of mosquito-borne disease, would not be desirable, particularly in those sections now carrying on local control work, because it would be difficult to avoid parallel organizations, overlapping jurisdiction, and other vexatious problems. The cost is estimated at $850,000 per year.

(20) A Program of Mosquito Control, supervised by the State, with subventions to local governmental agencies meeting minimum standards of personnel and operations, limited to areas having the highest incidence of mosquito-borne disease, and with two mobile units for State-wide use is considered most desirable. Effective operation would require the expenditure of approximately $500,000 per annum.

(21) A program of State promotion of local districts with technical field staff and mobile demonstration units would possibly accomplish good results if enough time were allowed. This would be less effective than a program including subventions. The cost would be about $75,000 per annum.

(22) Formation of mosquito abatement districts under the existing act and with the restrictions of the District Investigations Act of 1933 is extremely difficult and cumbersome and causes delay in working out any program. This should be remedied, by amendments to both the Mosquito Abatement Chapter of the Health and Safety Code and the District Investigations Act of 1933.

Recommendations

It is recommended that:

(1) A Program of Mosquito Abatement be planned and developed for all sections of the State now having mosquito-borne disease problems.

(2) Subventions be made to local agencies meeting minimum standards for personnel and operation on an equal matching basis.

(3) A sum of $500,000 per year be made available to carry out this project including the following items:

	First Year	Second Year
Training Program	$12,000 00	----------
Administration	50,000 00	50,000 00
Equipment for Mobile Units	8,000 00	1,600 00
Field Personnel	15,000 00	15,000 00
Materials and Supplies	2,000 00	2,000 00
Transportation	2,000 00	2,000 00
Travel Expense	8,000 00	8,000 00
Contingencies	3,000 00	3,000 00
Subventions to Local Agencies	400,000 00	418,400 00
	$500,000 00	$500,000 00

(4) A plan be developed for quick assembly of State and local health and mosquito abatement agencies for work in any area affected by imported mosquito-borne disease such as malaria and Japanese "B" encephalitis.

(5) The Mosquito Abatement Chapter of the Health and Safety Code be amended to provide a procedure for initiation of formation proceedings by resolution of the county board of supervisors.

(6) The District Investigations Act of 1933 be amended to provide that it does not apply to mosquito abatement districts.

REPORT

Introduction

This report is prepared in accordance with Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11, adopted in the Senate June 12, 1944, and in the Assembly June 13, 1944. The resolution reads as follows:

> Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 11—Relating to the investigation of the malaria hazard in California.
> WHEREAS, Records show that malaria has been endemic in California since the earliest settlers arrived; and
> WHEREAS, Anopheline mosquitoes, which are the vector of malaria, are widespread in the State, being especially prevalent in the irrigated areas of the great Central Valley; and
> WHEREAS, The State Department of Public Health and the University of California started the control of malaria and of Anopheline mosquitoes more than 30 years ago and have continued to foster the development of mosquito control through local agencies, particular mosquito abatement districts under an act of the Legislature in the year 1915, all of which has resulted in a marked control of malaria in peacetime; and
> WHEREAS, The returned of the armed forces from tropical theaters of war is and will continue to be a threat to the public health of the people of California, because of the high incidence of malaria infection among discharged personnel and convalescents on furlough; and
> WHEREAS, The normal measures for the control of malaria may become insufficient under war or postwar conditions; now, therefore, be it
> Resolved, by the Senate of the State of California, the Assembly thereof concurring, That the Director of the State Department of Public Health is hereby respectfully urged to consider existing and alternative methods of mosquito control and abatement, including an evaluation of the comparative effectiveness, feasibility and cost of each such alternative method and to submit a report and his recommendations to the Governor and to the Legislature not later than the Fifteenth Legislative Day of the Fifty-seventh Regular Session of the Legislature; and be it further
> Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is hereby directed to forward a copy of this resolution to the Director of the State Department of Public Health.

This report is concerned with the threat to the public health of the people of California from mosquito-borne diseases now existing in the State and those which may be introduced hereby returning military personnel. The discussion of disease hazards will, therefore, be divided into two parts, the first dealing with malaria and the second with all other mosquito-borne diseases which have been or may be introduced into California. Time has not permitted a detailed study of "existing and alternative methods of mosquito control and abatement," but from department records and conferences with local officials, sufficient data have been obtained to make this report.

Malaria

Malaria is the best known mosquito-borne disease, and annually affects over 20,000,000 people throughout the world. The malarious areas are widespread within the Tropic and Temperate Zones. The theaters of war in the Pacific are all located in highly endemic areas. In the early days of the war, malaria in these areas caused more casualties than those from actual battle, and practically every military person was affected with the disease. The Army and Navy, in order to make their military efforts effective, have instituted anti-malarial campaigns including mosquito control, thus reducing the incidence of malaria among certain overseas military units from approximately 960 per 1,000 to 40 per 1,000. This reduction is important as the number of potential malaria carriers returning to this State has been greatly reduced.

This history of malaria in California clearly indicates that the control of mosquito breeding, a general improvement of irrigation practices in the use of water, and improvement in housing conditions of the people have reduced the importance of this disease locally, thus eliminating the important foci of infection. To justly appreciate the effect of this change in the malaria history, it is wise to consider the habits of the malaria-carrying mosquito (Anopheles freeborni) in California. The female of this species, before it can lay its eggs, must have a blood meal, and obtains it by biting an animal or human. As a result of this biting habit, malaria is transmitted from one human to another. Recent extensive laboratory studies have shown that about 4 per cent of the mosquitoes with blood meals have ingested human blood, 60 per cent have ingested bovine blood, and the remainder had blood from other animals, or gave indefinite reactions.

ENCEPHALITIS IN CALIFORNIA

During the Gold Rush Days, the miners lived in the open, close together on the stream banks, and there were very few domestic animals. The female mosquitoes, therefore, had to get most of their blood meals from humans, and this may have been one of the reasons why malaria was hyper endemic.

Area of Endemic Malaria Before Any Control Activities

With the advent of agricultural development and the careless use of water for irrigation, malaria remained prevalent. Later, the use of irrigation water became better controlled, and the breeding of mosquitoes was reduced. With the introduction of stock grazing, mosquitoes had more opportunity to bite animals than humans. Along with these changes, anti-malarial control measures were undertaken in highly endemic areas of the State, eliminating many foci of infection. The accompanying graph (Figure 1) shows the number of malaria cases and the number of malaria control districts formed, by years. The map (Figure 2) shows areas of the State formerly having the highest incidence of malaria.

The small outbreaks of malaria occurring during the past 10 years were due to the importation of infected carriers from other States along with migration of agricultural workers to certain areas in this State. These outbreaks were due in part to poor housing conditions of the persons affected. All outbreaks occurred in areas having no mosquito abatement program. Here we have an example of malaria carriers entering unprotected areas in California, and causing small localized outbreaks but no widespread epidemic.

MALARIA HAZARD FROM RETURN OF ARMED FORCES

The return of large numbers of the armed forces from overseas theaters of war will greatly increase the number of malaria carriers in the State. Studies by the United States Public Health Service have demonstrated that our local Anopheline mosquitoes can transmit imported malaria and hence are a definite threat to the public health. Their studies are continuing. In California, any increase in malaria would be expected in the great Central Valley where the disease was formerly endemic. Protection against this malaria hazard can be best provided by an expansion of present activities in malaria and mosquito control.

MALARIA CONTROL IN WAR AREAS PROGRAM

As a protection to the personnel of military establishments in endemic malaria areas, the United States Public Health Service, under the direction of the State Department of Public Health and in co-operation with the Army and Navy, has undertaken active anti-malarial control programs around these establishments. The program is known as Malaria Control in War Areas (MCWA).

The control of Anopheline or malaria-bearing mosquitoes is confined to malarious areas contiguous to military establishments, areas where large numbers of military personnel congregate, and areas adjacent to essential war industries or essential war housing.

Operations of Malaria Control in War Areas in California were first undertaken in August, 1942, when the State Office was organized in the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering, after an intensive survey of war areas was instituted to determine where active malaria control operations should begin.

Control operations were undertaken by MCWA in September, 1942, in one-mile zones about the Visalia and Porterville Army Air Fields in Tulare County and the Merced Army Air Field at Merced. At approximately the same time, inspectional service to determine the presence and numbers of Anopheles freeborni (the California malaria vector) mosquitoes was begun about the Rankin and Sequoia Army Flight Instruction Schools in Tulare County; the Army Hammond General Hospital at Modesto; and the Yuba City-Marysville Area, the recreational center for nearby Camp Beale. The inspectional service about the Hammond

General Hospital and at Marysville subsequently showed the presence and breeding of A. freeborni in sufficient quantities to constitute a potential malaria hazard and anti-Anopheline control was begun about these locations in March and April of 1943. The Army De Witt General Hospital at Auburn was completed for occupancy in January, 1944. Inspectional surveys about the hospital during the fall of 1943 showed the breeding and presence of malaria vectors here in sufficient numbers to constitute a potential hazard in view of the probability of malaria cases being hospitalized there and the epidemic history of malaria in this region. Anti-Anopheline control measures were begun in the mile zone about this hospital in November, 1943. In June, 1943, anti-Anopheline work was discontinued about the Army Air Fields in Tulare County due to the failure to show the presence of A. freeborni in sufficient numbers to constitute a malaria problem.

In line with the problems arising due to returning malaria carriers in military personnel and carriers in prisoner-of-war camps, the MCWA established in February, 1944, two Mobile Malaria Control Units to operate in California. One has operated in Northern California and the other in Southern California during 1944. Each of these units has been under the direction of a commissioned United States Public Health Service entomologist. They have consisted of a small crew with a truck equipped to undertake limited control about the general hospitals and prisoner-of-war camps where malaria vectors have been present in appreciable numbers.

The control program has consisted of larviciding with Diesel oil or paris green and minor and major drainage of water areas. The effectiveness of the larviciding work has been continuously checked by inspectors assigned to each control zone.

The MCWA Program in California is an integral part of the State Department of Public Health, and all work done by its men is in cooperation with the local health officers in each area in question. Six United States Public Health Service officers, three office workers, and a field crew of four area supervisors, four area inspectors, and a varying number of laborers, depending on the season, are employed on this program. Since the inauguration of the work, 42 military areas have been carefully surveyed for the presence of Anopheline freeborni. Anopheline control procedures have been carried on in 17 of these war areas.

Other Mosquito-borne Diseases

In the present Pacific War Theater our Soldiers and Sailors are now being exposed to other mosquito-transmitted diseases, including yellow fever, dengue fever, filariasis and, as the Pacific Theater moves forward, our men will move into an area where Japanese "B" encephalitis is endemic and where many severe epidemics have occurred. Japanese "B" encephalitis is a type of insect-borne virus disease closely related to the Western equine type and the St. Louis type of encephalitis which have been recognized in California within the last 15 years. Other virus infections which might be introduced into California are the Eastern equine type and the Venezuelan type of encephalitis.

YELLOW FEVER AND DENGUE FEVER

Although yellow fever and dengue fever are important in the Pacific Area, these two diseases are transmitted by mosquitoes not known to be present in California. Hence, it is assumed there is no threat to the public health of the people of California from these two diseases.

FILARIASIS

Filariasis which, as a result of repeated infections, develops into elephantiasis, has been the cause of many fears among our Service Men in the Pacific Area. Infected military people are hospitalized and returned to this Country immediately. Several common species of our ordinary so-called pest mosquitoes are capable of transmitting this disease. Thousands of these cases have been returned to this Country but as yet there is no knowledge of the transmission of the disease from these cases. The infective agent in this disease is a worm which develops in the lymph glands and the larvae of these worms enter the peripheral blood-stream and only when present there can this disease be transmitted by mosquitoes. Several thousand returned patients have been tested, but, in an exceedingly small number of cases have larval forms of the worm been found in the peripheral bloodstream. Filariasis cases are kept under careful observation by the Medical Departments of the Army and Navy and most of them are considered non-infective. Hence, filariasis brought to California by returning military personnel is not considered to be a public health threat.

ENCEPHALITIS

Studies carried out in the past few years indicate the method of spread and the animal hosts of Western equine and St. Louis types of encephalitis. Because of the great public health importance of these two diseases in California, they will be discussed in some detail.

The Western equine type was previously thought to affect only horses, but studies of recent outbreaks in the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys have shown that this disease also may be transmitted to man. In human cases, the early symptoms are familiar to poliomyelitis. Many investigators believe that about 25 per cent of the cases diagnosed as poliomyelitis are in reality cases of encephalitis.

Mosquitoes have been known for some time to be capable of transmitting the encephalitis viruses in the laboratory, but in 1943 it was demonstrated for the first time in Kern County, California, that mosquitoes were infected in nature and those species found infected were capable of transmitting the disease. Mosquitoes were demonstrated repeatedly to be infected. At the same time it was demonstrated that domestic fowl and other birds are the common source of mosquito infection, although these birds show no evidence of infection. Extensive field and laboratory studies of these infections are being continued by research workers of the Hooper Foundation, University of California Medical School. Our knowledge at the present time definitely incriminates as vectors several species of the common so-called "pest" mosquitoes of California, particularly Culex tarsalis. Culex pipiens, Aedes dorsalis, Culiseta inornata, and Anopheles freeborni have all been found infected in nature. Most of these mosquitoes breed in greatest numbers in foul waters, such as cesspools, sewer farms, dairy barn, and farm drainage.

Although domestic and wild fowl, acting as a reservoir, are not affected by this disease, mosquitoes biting these fowl may transmit it to larger animals or human beings, causing equine encephalomyelitis in horses and encephalitis in humans. It has been definitely proved that the mosquitoes do not transmit the virus from one large animal to another or to a human but must pick up the virus from a fowl. The accompanying tables (Table I and Table II) show the number of human cases of encephalitis in California in recent years. The disease occurs in all sections of the State. The highest incidence has been reported in 16 counties of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Valleys, as shown on the map (Figure 3).

EQUINE ENCEPHALOMYELITIS

Although not of public health importance, the loss of live stock is of economic importance and should be considered. For this reason, data relative to the incidence of cases of equine encephalomyelitis in California and the United States are given in the accompanying table (Table III). The economic loss to the State is considerable. Fortunately, a successful animal vaccine against this disease has been developed and since its use the number of animal cases has been reduced. It is important to note that human vaccines have not commonly been used.

JAPANESE "B" ENCEPHALITIS

In the study of encephalitis in California, the types found in other areas also have been studied. These studies brought out that the Japanese "B" encephalitis occurring in Japan and Eastern Asia, is caused by a virus similar in certain ways to the strains found in California. This disease is also transmitted by many species of mosquitoes, some of which are commonly found in California. With this virus the reservoir for the disease is the human carrier or large animal. On the eighth to tenth day after a person is bitten by an infectious mosquito, he carries the virus in his bloodstream and is a potential source of mosquito infection. He may or may not become ill. Prior to the advent of rapid transoceanic transportation, this disease would have been of no consequence, as the period during which the virus circulates would have been completed before the patient could arrive in this Country. With trans-Pacific crossings by airplane in a few days, it is possible for infected persons to enter this Country without the disease being recognized. With the presence of uncontrolled mosquitoes capable of transmitting this disease, a definite threat to public health of California people might exist. Should this strain of encephalitis be introduced, the results might well become catastrophic. This disease has a high fatality rate. Its presence in Japan was reported as early as 1900. More than half the cases of the Tokyo epidemic of 1924 were fatal, 6,000 cases being reported, with 3,797 deaths.

EASTERN EQUINE AND VENEZUELAN ENCEPHALITIS

Other types of encephalitis may be imported to California, and may be also transmitted by our common mosquitoes. They include the eastern equine type found originally in eastern United States but recently found in Texas; and the Venezuelan type. Both of these diseases are similar to those types already in California but their effects are more vicious.

PREVENTION OF ENCEPHALITIS

The only possible method for prevention of the spread of the various types of encephalitis now known is through mosquito control, since safe vaccines or chemical prophylactics are not available for humans. Mosquito control for the prevention of these diseases is without precedent. Due to recent discovery of the method of transmission of these diseases, mosquito control for this purpose would be amply justified.

Activities of Mosquito Abatement Agencies in California

Mosquito control and abatement methods used in California are all based on the elimination of larvae breeding. Larvae are the immature forms of the mosquito. The elimination of breeding areas by drainage, filling, or diking is well established, and is generally used where permament control is desired. If breeding areas can not be eliminated, then breeding must be controlled by the use of larvicides (including oil), fish, or otherwise making the body of water unsuited for the development of mosquitoes. In addition, individuals may protect themselves from mosquito bites by screening doors and windows and using sprays indoors. This attack by individuals on adult mosquitoes has little or no effect on the mosquito population of the area, but if universally practiced, can reduce mosquito-borne diseases.

Mosquito Abatement Districts in California

There have been no recent changes in these basic methods, except for recent developments by the Army and Navy which have been successfully used for mosquito control. Included are new repellents, the aerosal spray, and D.D.T. (Dichloro-diphenyl-trichloroethane). These materials are not available now for civilian use. Only D.D.T. appears to have value for mosquito control in large areas. Since D.D.T. has not been available, no investigations have been made to study its adaptability for this purpose in California. It is hoped that D.D.T. will be available in 1945 for experimental use here. Due to its residual toxic effect, when sprayed on buildings, D.D.T. may offer an effective method of adult mosquito control. Its use in this manner will be exceedingly valuable in controlling localized outbreaks of mosquito-borne diseases. Other than this emergency use of D.D.T., no changes in mosquito control methods can be expected before the end of the war.

Twenty-six mosquito abatement districts, two pest abatement districts and at least ten health departments are doing mosquito control work in California. The accompanying map (Figure 4) shows the location of abatement programs in California, and brings out the small areas encompassed compared to the area of the county in which each is situated.

Twelve districts, all in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, were organized for malaria control, but have also carried on work against pest mosquitoes. One small district in Sacramento County has become inactive because malaria is no longer a problem, and income from taxes is not sufficient to carry on effective control of pest mosquitoes. The map (Figure 2) shows the widespread distribution of the Anopheles vector of malaria transmission in the Central Valleys where malaria was formerly endemic.

The effectiveness of the work done in each area varies with the available funds, the interest of the taxpayers and the interests of the trustees and employees. In general, it may be concluded that districts in sections of the State where malaria was formerly endemic have effectively controlled the disease, and those around San Francisco Bay and in other sections having pest mosquito control problems have, in most cases, obtained satisfactory control. In all districts property values have increased, and the health and comfort of the residents have been materially benefitted.

Data on the districts are given in the accompanying table (Table IV) showing area, population, assessed valuation and annual budget.

The problems of mosquito abatement are so complex that they are not subject to simple analysis. For example, costs per square mile, per person, per $100 assessed valuation, or any other basis are not comparable. The density of population, the irrigated area, the cost of water, and the habits of the people are all extremely variable in these districts. The biting and breeding habits of mosquitoes found in each area and even the standards of comfort of the people, play a large part in determining the control program and its cost.

Alternative Mosquito Control Program

Without detracting in the least from present malaria programs aimed at the control of Anopheline mosquitos and in fact urging improvement in these programs, it is important to pay attention to the recent incrimination of several common species of mosquitoes in the spread of human encephalitis and animal encephalomyelitis in California. Hence, control programs now need to be put on a broader base. So far as the cases of human encephalitis are concerned, the highest rates are reported in 16 counties of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys. A large portion of the program should operate in these counties. It has already been shown that existing control programs on a limited scale are carried on in 10 of the 16 valley counties where human encephalitis is most prevalent. Current expenditures for mosquito control within these 10 counties amount to approximately $281,000 per year. Of this amount, $214,000 are expended by local districts and $67,000 by the United States Public Health Service through its Malaria Control in War Areas Program. These sums do not permit more than an incidental gain in combatting encephalitis. A radical expansion is needed to obtain control of the mosquito vectors of this disease.

State-wide Mosquito Control

State-wide and State-operated mosquito control has been suggested from time to time by various persons, but this is an unnecessary, impracticable, costly, and hence undesirable project. The cost could hardly be less than $5,000,000 per annum, and might reach $10,000,000; under present conditions, the results which could be obtained would not justify such costs. Furthermore, experience indicates that local participation in carrying a large share of the costs of mosquito abatement, and in carrying on the work through local official agencies, has many advantages in practicality and expediency over State-operated abatement, even in emergencies. The proposals made herein therefore contemplate the fullest possible use of the facilities, personnel, and financial resources of local agencies, with supplemental aid from State funds, and with technical and administrative advice and supervision from the State to insure adequate coverage of the problem, and adequate results.

State-Operated Mosquito Control

A State-operated Mosquito Control Program has been considered for areas having the highest reported incidence of mosquito-borne disease. In this area, comprising the great Central Valley of the State, 11 mosquito abatement districts are now carrying on control work. The districts' activities are limited to small areas and outside these small areas no control work is done. A State-operated program might either take over all of the work in the area including that of the existing districts or supplement that work. In either case, friction would almost certainly occur due to parallel organizations, overlapping jurisdiction, and other vexatious problems. The cost to the State would approximate $850,000 per year. This project is not considered advisable.

Proposed Mosquito Control Program

It is concluded that State funds in the order of $500,000 per year are needed to extend present malaria control work and to offer prospects of control of human encephalitis in California. The main elements of the program comprise (1) an intensified Training Program for Supervisory Personnel, (2) promotion and guidance of the program by a small State administrative force, and (3) an allotment of control funds through subventions to existing or newly formed public agencies. The estimated cost of this program for the first two years is as follows:

	First Year	Second Year
Training Program	$12,000 00	$
Administration	50,000 00	50,000 00
Equipment for Mobile Units	8,000 00	1,600 00
Field Personnel	15,000 00	15,000 00
Materials and Supplies	2,000 00	2,000 00
Transportation	2,000 00	2,000 00
Travel Expense	8,000 00	8,000 00
Contingencies	3,000 00	3,000 00
Subventions to Local Agencies	400,000 00	418,400 00
	$500,000 00	$500,000 00

Such a program is proposed and should be undertaken on a continuing basis. The first year the actual control measures would be largely larvicidal and of temporary value. In succeeding years, permanent measures of control such as drainage would increase. Experience in mosquito control in California indicates a gradual reduction in annual cost of control after original equipment is purchased and permanent works are constructed.

With respect to protecting the State against imported mosquito-transmitted disease, Japanese "B" encephalitis is one of the most fearsome. The threat is as yet in a speculative stage. Nevertheless, the plague-like consequences of the disease are such that the opinion of experts is that agencies with facilities for mosquito control should be made ready to roll into action within 24 hours after the virus of the disease is detected in this State. The program outlined above for meeting the prevailing hazards of mosquito-borne disease, supplemented, of course, by local aid, should provide such an action agency which could be thrown quickly into combat against any of the imported and highly dangerous mosquito-borne diseases.

State Promotion of Local Districts

The State has been carrying on through the State Department of Public Health and the University of California limited activities in the promotion of mosquito abatement districts. This work might be expended with technical field staff and mobile demonstration units and would possibly accomplish good results after several years. The cost would be about $75,000 per year. This program is considered less desirable than the program proposed above.

Laws Relating to Mosquito Abatement Districts

Chapter 5 of the Health and Safety Code provides for the organization and management of mosquito abatement districts. The formation of a district can be initiated only by a petition signed by at least 10 per cent of the registered voters, based on the votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election. After suitable hearings before the county board of supervisors, the district may be formed. Proceedings would be simplified and time saved in emergencies if the county board of supervisors could by resolution initiate the formation of a district. Precedent has been established in the formation of sewer maintenance and county sanitation districts (See Health and Safety Code, Sections 4871 and 4710). Appropriate legislative action should be taken.

The District Investigations Act of 1933 (Act 2119, Deering's General Laws 1941) requires detailed investigation for the information of property owners prior to the formation of certain districts, including mosquito abatement districts. This has delayed formation of several new districts. Hearings must be held before the county board of supervisors in advance of the formation of a new mosquito abatement district and it seems ample opportunity is thus given for protests by property owners. In several other kinds of districts the investigation is not required. A great stimulus to proposed districts would be given if the District Investigations Act were amended so it would no longer apply to mosquito abatement districts.

CREATION OF THE COMMISSION[2]

The California Commission on Interstate Cooperation was established in 1939 (Cal. Stats. 1939, Chap. 376). This act makes this State a participating member of the Council of State Governments, and is substantially identical to the uniform act under which similar commissions have been established in 43 other States. The present statutory authority of the commission is found in Title 2, Division 1 of the Government Code (Secs. 8000-8011).[3]

FIELD OF ACTIVITY OF THE COMMISSION

The primary function of the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation is to furnish a means whereby California can join with the 43 other States now having like commissions in dealing with interstate problems not coming within the purview of Federal jurisdiction, and which are so broad in scope as to not lend themselves to as effectual solutions if dealt with by the States individually. These involve—interstate compacts contemplated by Article I, Section 10 of the Constitution of the United States, the adoption of uniform and model legislation by the various States, promotion of regional programs beneficial to the States within the area, and reciprocal administrative acts or agreements. Participation in, and acting upon, such matters are among the goals which this commission seeks to accomplish in order to develop interstate unity among the States. In addition, this commission has aided in promoting a clearer understanding of many Federal-State problems.

The wisdom in establishing Commissions on Interstate Cooperation has been clearly demonstrated by the magnificent contribution of the States to the war effort through intergovernmental collaboration. In recent months this unity of action has been responsible for the preparation of sound and responsible programs in anticipation of the impacts of postwar demands.

The following will serve to illustrate how active the California Commission has been in realizing the goals of speeding victory and winning the peace.

CHRONOLOGICAL RECORD OF INTERSTATE CONFERENCES

The commission, in addition to its 11 regular meetings within California, participated in six interstate conferences during the past biennium. Some idea of the importance and variety of interstate problems considered is indicated by the group of conferences.

January 24-26, 1943—Baltimore, Maryland

SIXTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COUNCIL OF STATE GOVERNMENTS

Four hundred and thirty-six officials from 40 States met to review the progress made by the States in contributing to the war effort, to further augment their activities in this field and to lay general plans for postwar. California was represented at this conference by Senators Ed Fletcher and Jesse Mayo; Assemblymen Harrison W. Call, and Ralph C. Dills; Gordon Garland, Director of Motor Vehicles, Attorney General Robert W. Kenny, and Dixwell Pierce, Secretary of the State Board of Equalization.

April 30-May 1, 1943—San Francisco, California

WESTERN REGIONAL CONFERENCE ON POSTWAR PROBLEMS IN THE STATES

Sixty-five representatives from six Western States participated in this conference which was one of four regional meetings devoted to the development of postwar plans. Governor Earl Warren and Attorney General Robert W. Kenny represented the California Commission in the discussions on the postwar development of natural resources, the administration of Governmental agencies in the postwar period, and methods to improve the operation of the State postwar agencies. In line with the action taken at the other regional conferences, five representatives were designated to serve on a 20-member Interstate Committee on Postwar Reconstruction and Development. Williard Keith, Director of the War Council, was named from California. Subsequently, he was replaced by Alexander R. Heron, Director of Reconstruction and Reemployment.

At the conclusion of addresses by Governor E. P. Carville of Nevada, Governor Earl Snell of Oregon, Governor Earl Warren of California, Attorney General Grover Giles of Utah, and Representative Clinton S. Harley of Washington, resolutions were adopted for the relief of the gold mining industry of the West, and for the compiling and furnishing of suitable information relating to the use of land.

October 1-2, 1943—San Francisco, California

WESTERN REGIONAL CONFERENCE ON POSTWAR PROBLEMS IN THE STATES

Thirty-five officials from six States met to review the work and recommendations of Interstate Committee on Postwar Reconstruction and Development[4] and to discuss such important topics as postwar public works, unemployment compensation, postwar agriculture, postwar fiscal policies, postwar veterans' problems, and postwar legislation. In this meeting, the California Commission was represented by Senators Randolph Collier, R. R. Cunningham, and Jesse M. Mayo; Assemblymen Harvey Hastain, Gardiner Johnson, Jack Massion, and James Thorp; Administrative members Attorney General Robert W. Kenny, Charles H. Purcell, Department of Public Works; and Executive Secretary W. C. Jacobsen.

After hearing from such speakers as P. Hetherton, Washington State Planning Council; Silas Gaiser, Oregon Unemployment Compensation Commission; Robert A. Allen, Nevada State Planning Board; and Senator Grant Macfarlane of Utah, resolutions were adopted urging the Defense Plant Corporation to make known the terms and conditions upon which Government-owned plants would be disposed of; stressing that the waters of the streams in the Western States should be administered under the laws of said States; calling upon the States to carefully reexamine their unemployment compensation laws in the light of possible postwar demands; advocating continued use of the present Federal aid formula in public works programs; and asking for the removal of all trade barriers.

February 11-12, 1944—Carson City, Nevada

INTERSTATE CONFERENCE ON POSTWAR INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE WEST

The Commissions on Interstate Cooperation of California, Nevada, Oregon, and Utah called a conference when the War Production Board suspended construction of the structural steel mill at the Geneva Steel Plant in Provo, Utah. The purpose was to determine what steps could be taken to encourage the completion of this mill, and to review the whole general problem of the postwar future of Government-owned war plants in the West. The California Commission was represented by Senators Randolph Collier, R. R. Cunningham, and Ed Fletcher; Assemblymen Harvey Hastain, Gardiner Johnson, Jack Massion, and James Thorp; Administrative members James S. Dean, Gordon Garland, Warren T. Hannum, Robert W. Kenny, Charles H. Purcell as well as W. C. Jacobsen, Executive Secretary.

Senator Pat McCarran, Chairman of the United States Senate Committee on the Centralization of Industry, made a special trip to attend this conference and participate with other speakers such as Governor E. P. Carville of Nevada and Dr. J. H. Mahoney of the University of Utah. The continuation and extension of the Geneva Steel Mill was advocated, and the resolution relating to the disposal of Government-owned plants, adopted in the San Francisco Regional Meeting on October 1-2, 1943, was reaffirmed. In addition, resolutions were adopted urging the Federal war agencies to include greater representation from the West; the early resumption of mining operations; the continuation of the existing method of rate making by the Interstate Commerce Commission; and urging that the Commissions on Interstate Cooperation of the Western States be provided with sufficient budgets so as to make possible legislative participation in interstate conferences.

September 29-30, 1944—Salt Lake City, Utah

WESTERN CONFERENCE ON POSTWAR PROBLEMS AND LEGISLATION

Seventy officials from eight Western States took part in the discussions which centered around specific programs and postwar action by the States as well as the development of some general legislative recommendations for the 1945 Sessions of the State Legislatures. The California Commission was represented by Senators R. R. Cunningham and Ed Fletcher; Assemblymen Harvey Hastain, Gardiner Johnson, and Jack Massion; Administrative members Warren T. Hannum, Robert W. Kenny; and W. C. Jacobsen, Executive Secretary.

Governors Herbert B. Maw of Utah and John Vivian of Colorado, Joseph Bursey, Director of the New Mexico Tourist Bureau, Joe D. Wood, Idaho Commission of Public Works, Robert A. Allen, Chairman of Nevada State Planning, B. L. Flanagan, Acting Executive Director of the Utah Department of Employment Security, Colonel Alexander R. Heron, Director of the California Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission, Senator Thomas Stirling of Wyoming, and Joseph S. Weppner, Purchasing Agent of Wyoming, discussed such important basic postwar State problems as promotional activities; conservation programs; highway and airport policies; unemployment compensation programs; and surplus property. Resolutions were adopted asking that Western industries not be discriminated against in the elimination of Government wartime emergency controls; urging our Congressional Delegations to greater participation in the formulation of a sound National policy for the current and postwar guidance of agriculture; resisting the future extension of Federal ownership of land; insisting on retention by States of unemployment compensation, and the return of the employment services to the States after the cessation of the war in the Pacific; and asking that WPB Order L-208 be rescinded.

The legislative recommendations are so important that they have been set forth in full as follows:

I. Highways

"Since the Congress has crystallized its ideas on highways, the Senate has passed the Hayden Bill, S 2105, and the House Roads Committee has unanimously reported out the Robinson Bill, HR 4915, we urge the very early consideration of Federal aid road legislation so that the States may be advised of the extent to which they will have to provide cooperating funds.

II. Airports

We endorse in principle the Federal Aid Airport Act as introduced in the House by Congressman Randolph, since it parallels the Federal Aid Highway Act which has been so beneficial in satisfying the traffic needs of our people. The act provides for 50-50 cooperation with the States and offers joint benefits and responsibilities to the States.

We recommend a study be made of the Federal Aid Highway Act as it applies to the public land States with the view of applying this principle to any Federal Aid Airport Act and its financing by the States and Federal Government.

We recommend that States explore and investigate the provisions of airport legislation and put their houses in order at their next legislative sessions to provide the necessary cooperative airport legislation and funds.

We recommend that the States guard against the raising of artificial barriers that will retard and impede air transport development.

We recommend close cooperation between the Public Roads Administration, the Civil Aeronautics Authority and the States in the formulation of any State airport plan to the end that we build only to meet the traffic needs of our people.

We recommend that in any plan of flight strip or airport development the States utilize to the fullest extent their respective Highway Departments whose skill in design and supervision has been developed at the cost of the people during the last three decades.

We recommend the linking together of roadbuilding and airport construction to provide a well constructed and maintained system of roads and airports for public use.

III. Unemployment Compensation Insurance of States

Since unemployment compensation is definitely a matter for State solution, it must stay on State level.

We recommend the return by the Federal Government immediately upon termination of hostilities of local State employment agencies to the Unemployment Insurance Departments of the States.

We recommend the devising of an effective and uniform method of handling postwar claims and the prompt payment of benefits.

We recommend the closest cooperation by the States in the furnishing of detailed and uniform information in respect to out of State claimants in order that every safeguard be maintained to preserve the principle of unemployment compensation.

IV. Development to Tourist Travel

We recommend that the Legislatures of the 11 Western States study the advisability of forming interstate compacts to foster cooperatively the development of the tourist business in the West.

V. Flood Control

We recommend that activities of the United States Engineer Corps be enlarged and extended to the study of flood control projects for the prevention and control of soil erosion and that States provide suitable cooperative legislation.

VI. Surplus Property

We recommend that the member States designate one central State agency to appraise the available surplus war property, study the needs of the States, its various subdivisions and coordinate the surplus with the demands.

VII. Interstate Compacts

Recognizing constant efforts by the Federal Government to create Federal authorities to control natural resources of the States and believing the centralization of authority in Federal hands is unsound and that States should exercise maximum control under State laws; we recommend that States should be compact or uniform laws create their own machinery to carry out such purposes."

Those attending the Utah meeting were given an opportunity to inspect the operating Geneva Steel Mill, thereby adding visual emphasis to the importance of the industrial interrelationships of the Western Area.

December 8-12, 1944—Phoenix, Arizona

WESTERN REGIONAL CONFERENCE ON WAR AND POSTWAR LEGISLATION

Governors, Legislators, and other public officials from nine Western States met to discuss a series of model bills and uniform laws designated to cope with pressing wartime problems and future postwar demands. The California Commission was represented by Senators Randolph Collier, and Ed Fletcher; Assemblymen Harvey Hastain, Jack Massion, and James Thorp; Administrative members James S. Dean, Gordon Garland, Warren T. Hannum, and Robert W. Kenny, as well as W. C. Jacobsen, Executive Secretary.

The following model bills there discussed are mentioned by title[5]:

Acknowledgments and other Notarial Acts by Service Personnel Act.
Aeronautics Department Act.
Airports Act.
Airport Condemnation Amendment.
Airport Zoning Act.
Conservators for Missing Personnel Act.
Enrichment of white bread and flour legislation.
Evidence of Death or Other Status of Missing Persons Act.
Exchange of Tax Information Act.
Flour and Meal Container Act.
Investment of Public Funds Act.
Powers of Attorney Act.
Proof of Wills Act.
Public Construction Labor and Material Statistics Act.
Purchases of Federal Surpluses Act.
Revised State and Local Postwar Reserve Funds and Planning Acts.
Second Injury Fund Act.
Speed Limits Adjustment Act.
State food, drug, and cosmetic legislation.
State Plane Coordinate System Act.
State Veterans Service Officer Act.
Temporary Licensing of Physicians Act.
Unauthorized Wearing of Military Uniforms Act.

All of these measures have been approved by the Drafting Committee of the Council of State Governments of which Assemblyman Gardiner Johnson of the California Commission is a member, and which met in Washington, D. C., on November 11, 1944. Because of existing statutes in California, some of these measures may not be necessary. The majority of them, however, are worthy of serious consideration, and the California Commission plans to have its Legislative Committee, headed by Senator Thomas J. Keating, review them carefully and determine which should be introduced.

[5] For the complete text of these proposals see Reports Nos. 1 and 2 of "Suggested State War and Postwar Legislation for 1945" and the recommended Uniform State Aviation Codes drafted by the National Association of State Aviation Officials.

ACTIVITIES OF THE CALIFORNIA COMMISSION ON INTERSTATE COOPERATION

During the past biennium, the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation has done an outstanding job of encouraging and assisting the State of California to work in harmony and in cooperation with the other forty-seven States in promoting an all-out war effort and in developing adequate postwar plans.

War Emergency Legislation

Action taken by the California Legislature in its regular session in 1943 demonstrated the sound and farsighted vision of this commission. Sensing the grave danger inherent in the dark days of 1942, the California Commission assisted the Council of State Governments in sponsoring a Western Regional Conference on War Legislation in Los Angeles on December 8, 1942. At this conference, certain war emergency legislation was thoroughly discussed, and it is interesting to note that the following suggested bills were subsequently incorporated into actual statutes as indicated:

Armed forces, powers of attorney (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 413).
Acknowledgments by military personnel (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 365).
Amendments to State bank loans limitation statutes (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 281).
Child care centers (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 16).
Military Traffic Control Act (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 734).
State Emergency War Powers Act and Executive Statuary Suspension Act (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 1, 1st Ex. Sess.).
State Postwar Reserve Fund and Planning Act (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 631).
War housing legislation (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 798).

As mentioned above, the California Commission expects to take a very active part in sponsoring the new measures relating to military personnel which were approved in 1944 by the Drafting Committee of the Council of State Governments and which were thoroughly discussed at the Interstate Conference at Phoenix in December, 1944.

Uniform State Laws

Pursuant to an agreement between the Council of State Governments and the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, the various Commissions on Interstate Cooperation have undertaken to work with the several Commissions on Uniform State Laws in the adoption of those proposals considered beneficial to the particular State involved.

The California Commission on Uniform State Laws is composed of Professor Max Radin, Chairman; Martin Dinkelspiel, Richard Olson, and Fred B. Wood, Legislative Council. In December, 1942, it recommended several measures to the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation [6] but only certain parts of the Uniform Veterans' Guardianship Act were adopted during the 1943 Session.

[6] See report of the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation to the Legislature, January 10, 1943.

On December 9, 1944, the California Commission on Uniform State Laws recommended that the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation sponsor the following measures:

Uniform Simultaneous Death Act
Uniform Veterans' Guardianship Act (additional amendments).

Naturally, the California Commission desires to promote greater uniformity in legislation among the States, but without seeking to jeopardize California statutes designed to meet local conditions.

Interstate Trade Barriers

It will be recalled that former Chairman William J. Cecil of the California Commission conferred at Olympia, Washington, in August, 1942, relative to certain interstate trade barriers affecting the wine industry of California. At that conference a recommendation was made at the request of the Washington authorities that the requirement of "date of packing" on apple containers as required by California law, be eliminated.[7] It should be noted that during the 1943 Session of the California Legislature this statutory trade barrier was repealed (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 270).

During the 1943 Session, Assembly Bill No. 1387 was introduced making unlawful the importation of "single-trip" beer bottles although not prohibiting their manufacture within the State of California. After this bill had been passed by the Legislature, Governor Warren, after consultation with Chairman Kenny of the California Commission, vetoed this bill both as a trade barrier and as an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power.[8] His veto was sustained by the Legislature.

On March 16, 1943, Governor Warren, at the request of the wine industry of California, wrote to Governor Bricker of Ohio asking that he take steps to prevent the enactment of pending legislation which would have discriminated against tank car shipments of wine. This legislation never became effective.

Two bills were passed by the New York Legislature (S.B. 885; A.B. 1162) during the 1944 Session which sought to control the tendency toward interlocking relationships between liquor, wine, and beer producers and distributors but which raised possible questions regarding the ability of California wineries to obtain licenses for resale in New York. The California Commission undertook to communicate certain facts to Governor Dewey relative to these measures, and on April 14, 1944, he disapproved both bills asking that they be studied more fully.

Soldier-Sailor Voting

A matter in which the California Commission can take particular pride is the leadership it displayed in promoting the improvement of absentee ballot procedure for members of the Armed Forces. It will be recalled that the California Legislature added certain sections to the Election Code to relax its rather strict provisions on absentee voting in order that members of the Armed Forces would have a better opportunity to cast their ballots. (Cal. Stats., 1943, Chap. 865). Because of the length of time involved in the transmission to many overseas theatres, a movement to support a Federal ballot in place of a State ballot overseas made considerable headway. The proposed Federal measure soon became involved in a very bitter fight in Congress and, in the meantime, the Council of State Governments at the Board of Managers meeting in November, 1943, devoted considerable time to the discussion of what the States should do and subsequently published a brochure setting forth the various State laws on the subject.[9]

Assemblyman Harrison W. Call, California's designee to the Board of Managers of the Council of State Governments, reported at length on its deliberations at the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation meeting on December 7, 1943, and as a result, the commission unanimously adopted a resolution which was forwarded to Governor Warren urging that he include in the agenda for the contemplated special session in January, 1944, a request that the Legislature adopt a comprehensive Soldier-Sailor Voting Law.

At this special session, Governor Warren, in his message to the Legislature, referred to the action taken by the California Commission, and the Legislature did adopt one of the most comprehensive State Soldier-Sailor voting laws in the Country.

Postwar Problems

Reference has already been made to the participation by the California Commission in various interstate conferences dealing with general and specific problems of the postwar readjustment and development of the States. In addition, the California Commission and its members have taken an active part in the formulation of the memoranda developed by the various special committees as well as the Interstate Committee on Postwar Reconstruction and Development of the Council of State Governments. The commission, therefore, is in full sympathy with the following general postwar recommendations formulated by these committees of the council:[10]

"1. That the States cooperate with the National Government in developing improved machinery for job recruitment and for employee placement and transfer.

2. That the States appropriate adequate funds to finance research and investigations by State universities and other suitable agencies relative to the discovery and commercial utilization of natural resources, the development of new industries, the conversion of war plants, and the readjustment of war boom towns to maximum use of their new facilities.

3. That the National Government and the States should adequately support services and facilities necessary to conserve and develop timber, mineral, and other natural resources, and should adopt policies which permit the sound utilization of such resources to promote private employment.

4. Appropriate State agencies should be charged now with the responsibility of conducting studies and investigations relative to the effect of existing fiscal and other legislation on the incentive to invest. Consideration should be given to the feasibility of interstate agreements designed to prevent predatory and uneconomic interstate tax competition.

[10] See "Wartime and Postwar Problems and Policies of the States," The Council of State Governments, May, 1944, pp. 19-22.

5. The States should continue their efforts to eliminate interstate trade barriers, discriminatory freight rates, and all other monopolistic practices which serve to restrict new investment.

6. Each State which has not already done so should give consideration to the designation or establishment of an agency with adequate funds to aid and assist the small business man in solving his engineering, production, sales, financial, and other problems.

7. The States and localities should consider now what changes in educational programs, administrative organization, and methods of finance are needed to provide equal access for all of the types of education and training best adapted to promote democracy, full employment, and a high standard of living, and should begin now to prepare an effective method of providing transition for youth from school to responsible employment.

8. In collaboration with the National Government, the States should begin now to prepare a diversified program for vocational training and retraining for returned veterans and former war workers.

9. In collaboration with the National Government, the States should consider what further development of their programs for old-age and other public assistance and what changes in organization and methods of finance will provide adequate assistance to all recipients throughout the country.

10. In collaboration with the National Government, the States and the localities shall consider what changes in administrative organization and methods of finance are required more adequately to conserve the health of the Nation and to minimize the economic drain resulting from preventable sickness and premature death. The States and their own health, hospital, or medical services, and the extent to which Federal hospitals, built for war purposes, might be taken over and adapted by the States or localities and incorporated into their present hospital systems.

11. Relief needs arising from the liquidation of war activities are a Federal responsibility and should be financed by the National Government. Such relief, however, should be administered by the States and localities as part of their general relief program. All work relief should be operated by the States as part of their general shared relief program.

12. In respect to services in the financing or administration of which two or more levels of Government participate, financial support from the National Government to the States or from the States to the localities should be allocated on a basis which reflects both the need and the financial ability of the recipient units.

13. Policies and programs should be developed cooperatively.

14. All levels of Government should participate financially.

15. General policy and over-all programs should be set forth in Federal statutes after due consideration by Congress, so that the respective parts of the program to be performed by the several levels of Government are clearly defined and due recognition given to the rights and duties of each.

16. The immediate supervision and direction of the program should be in the hands of the States.

17. Responsibility for local operation should be given to the localities.

18. Necessary authority should be commensurate with responsibility and lines of command and direction should be scrupulously followed."

Agriculture

One of the important postwar challenges to the States is that of developing a sound and effective postwar program relating to agriculture. In an effort to be of assistance to the States, the Council of State Governments, through its Interstate Committee on Postwar Reconstruction and Development, has formulated some comprehensive recommendations as follows:[11]

"1. Maintenance of full employment in industry.

2. Expansion of international trade in certain agricultural products.

3. Removal of domestic trade barriers.

4. Constructive land policies.

5. Proper policies for new settlement on farm lands.

6. Adequate conservation of resources.

7. Improvement of marketing practices.

8. Extension of agricultural education and research."

The Agriculture Committee of the California Commission, under Assemblyman James E. Thorp, has been studying the postwar utilization demountable war housing, now under the control of the Federal Public Housing Authority, for agricultural purposes. This committee assisted in the adoption of a resolution by the California Legislature in a special session in June, 1944, urging such a program. It was also responsible for the passage of a resolution at the Interstate Conference at Salt Lake City on September 29-30, 1944, calling upon the Congressional Delegations of agricultural States to coordinate their efforts, based upon advice from official and unofficial organizations and agencies in their States, toward the development of a sound National policy for the stabilization of farm production, so that goals would be responsive to actual food supply needs, and to guide stored surplus disposal away from conflict with postwar domestic farm production.

Aviation

The two model codes relating to establishment of a State Aeronautics Department and the promotion and development of State airports have already been referred to, but it should be noted that these measures were formulated cooperatively by the National Association of State Aviation Officials, the Council of State Governments, the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers and other interested organizations. Subsequently these bills were approved by the Aviation Committee of the council as well as its Board of Managers which had previously adopted a model State Airport Zoning Act, which has also been referred to before. Naturally, because of the expected increase in postwar air traffic with consequent need for adequate airport facilities, all States are determining whether present statutes adequately provide for postwar contingencies.

The California Commission has devoted several of its meetings during 1944, to discussions of various phases of aviation and in this field, Assemblyman Harrison W. Call, who is also a member of the Aviation Committee and the Board of Managers of the Council of State Governments, has been of considerable assistance.

[11] See "Wartime and Postwar Problems and Policies of the States," May, 1944, pp. 61-72.

Crime Control

Unfortunately, one of the major postwar problems that must be met by the States is that of the inevitable resurgence of crime after the war. For this reason, the Council of State Governments established a Committee on Crime Control headed by Attorney General Robert W. Kenny, Chairman of the California Commission, to make a thorough study of the whole problem of crime and delinquency with a view toward making some general recommendations for State action. These recommendations covering preconviction procedures and agencies, postconviction procedures and agencies, and principles for improvement of correctional systems and administration of criminal justice are set forth fully in a committee memorandum which is included in the report of the Interstate Committee on Postwar Reconstruction and Development already referred to earlier in this report.[12]

Because a Youth Authority has been established in California, the California Commission has sought to point out the advantages of such an agency to other States, and has urged them to consider the model act suggested by the American Law Institute.

Forestry

One of the most important committees of the Council of State Governments is that devoted to the study of forestry problems. This committee has studied such problems as the exhaustion of timber supply, forest management, public ownership of land, and forest fire protection. In addition, it has drafted a model Forest Cutting Practices Bill which, together with its report, is being submitted to the Seventh Annual General Assembly of the Council of State Governments at St. Louis in January, 1945. Senator Ed Fletcher represents the California Commission on this important Nationwide Committee headed by Governor Earl Snell of Oregon.

Planning Agencies and Public Works

The Council of State Governments has done much to encourage every one of the 48 States to develop some sort of postwar planning machinery, and to undertake some measure of public works planning to meet postwar demands. The council, through its Interstate Committee on Postwar Reconstruction and Development, has made the following recommendations:[13]

"1. That a central agency, adequately staffed and financed, be designated or established in every State to concern itself definitely and specifically with postwar problems.

2. That the State Agencies for Postwar Reconstruction and Development thus designated or established include in their membership representatives of State and local governments, industry and commerce, labor and agriculture.

3. That State Agencies for Postwar Reconstruction and Development be charged with the following duties:

a. To conduct over-all studies and investigations relative to the social and economic reconstruction and development of the State.

[12] See "Wartime and Postwar Problems and Policies of the States," The Council of State Governments, May, 1944, pp. 73-82.
[13] Ibid., pp. 15-16.

b. To stimulate and assist postwar preparation and research by individual business concerns in respect to such matters as potential new products, production techniques, and markets.

c. To encourage, guide, and assist postwar preparation within the operating departments and agencies of State Governments.

d. To energize and to establish continuing contacts with local or regional planning agencies, planning agencies in the National Government, and similar bodies in the fields of commerce and industry, labor, and agriculture for the purpose of exchanging information and assistance, harmonizing proposed plans, policies, and programs, and securing proper timing in their execution.

e. To encourage community self-appraisal programs so that the problems peculiar to each community may be recognized and effectively met through planning at either the local or State level.

f. To collaborate with business and labor groups in devising ways and means of assisting business concerns in the conversion of war plants, development of new industries, utilization of State resources, readjustment of war-boom towns to maximum use of their new facilities, and guidance of the migration of stranded war workers.

g. To publicize all findings and recommendations sufficiently in advance of the time at which legislative or other action on them will be required in order to permit the development of an informed public opinion on all issues involved.

4. That where necessary, States pass enabling legislation permitting local governments to establish postwar planning bodies."

This Nation-wide Committee has also laid special stress on advance public works planning through the following recommendations:[14]

"1. That appropriate State agencies be designated or established to prepare portfolios of needed postwar public works, including the following types of projects:

a. Maintenance and repair projects necessary to restore normal public services to their peacetime standards.

b. Public works such as transportation facilities, public utilities, etc., which will facilitate the conversion of war industries to peacetime use.

c. Projects for future development and expansion conforming to an over-all or master plan.

2. That all necessary arrangements, including the preparation of engineering designs and specifications and the provision of funds, be made now to permit such public works projects to be put into immediate execution when the appropriate time comes.

3. That specific projects should be selected and timed for execution with a view to promoting employment stability.

4. That the States should aid their local subdivisions in adopting similar public works programs through the enactment of permissive legislation and the furnishing of technical and other assistance.

5. That, in programming long-range projects for future development and expansion, States and localities should give consideration to the modernization of highway and other transportation facilities with special emphasis on the provision of express highways and off-street parking in urban areas. Consideration should also be given to the development and financing of integrated systems of airports designed for both passenger and freight service."

To implement these general recommendations, the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation has brought to the attention of the other States, particularly those in the Western Region, the outstanding work being performed by the California Senate Interim Committee on Postwar Construction Programs, the California Assembly Interim Committee on Postwar Rehabilitation, the California Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission, and the California State Highway Department, particularly in public works planning and construction as well as in the establishment of postwar reserves by California and its political subdivisions, and the investment of these reserves in Federal securities.[15]

Particular note should be made of the Postwar Committee of the California Commission headed by Assemblyman Jack Massion, which took an active part in the development of material for the Interstate Conference on Poswar Industrial Development of the West held at Carson City on February 11-12, 1944, relative to the Geneva Steel situation. Subsequently, this committee assisted in the adoption by the California Legislature in a special session in June, 1944, of a resolution urging the War Manpower Commission and the War Production Board to make manpower available for the Geneva Steel Plant. It has also had under study the possible establishment of a research and standards bureau which would serve industry in the Western Region on a basis similar to the activities of certain institutes now located in other regions of the Country.

Taxation and Fiscal Policy

For some time, the Council of State Governments has been advocating a sound fiscal policy for States and local governments in the light of war conditions and postwar possibilities. Some of the specific measures recommended by its Board of Managers in November, 1942, still offer sound advice to the States:[16]

"1. Rapid retirement of debt.

2. Restriction of expenditures to war activities and necessary governmental functions.

3. Improved management to conserve manpower and materials.

4. Legislation to permit surplus financing.

5. Establishment of reserves for emergency and postwar use.

6. Maintenance of tax rates to permit the building-up of reserves.

7. Removal of interstate trade barriers.

8. Reappraisal of all Government activity, particularly with respect to its relation to the War Program.

9. Preparation of programs and blueprints for public works, and the means of financing them to offset possible postwar depression."

[15] For complete review of California's postwar legislation see "California's Legislature Girds for the Battle of Postwar Employment," State Bar Journal of California, Volume XIX, page 195.

[16] See "Wartime and Postwar Problems and Policies of the States," The Council of State Governments, May, 1944, page 35.

The California Commission has been wholly in accord with these objectives, and recognizes that the California Legislature and administrative departments have accomplished practically every single one.

The Taxation Committee of the California Commission, headed by Senator Randolph Collier, has been studying the problem of duplication and conflicts in State taxation in the Western Region with a view toward working out some solutions to these problems through interstate cooperation. In addition, Mr. Dixwell Pierce, a member of this committee, is also a member of a committee established by the Council of State Governments which is presently cooperating with the Civil Aeronautics Authority in studying conflicting State taxation of airlines.

Unemployment Compensation

The Council of State Governments has been in large part responsible for the retention of the unemployment compensation systems in the States. At the same time, however, it has sought to encourage the States to improve their systems to meet postwar contingencies.[17]

The California Commission has watched with interest the work of the California Senate Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance, headed by Senator John F. Shelley, and has sought to make available some of the suggestion contained in its report[18] to other States particularly in the field involving interstate cooperative action. It also established a committee of the commission on the interstate problems of unemployment insurance headed by Administrative Member James S. Dean at a meeting in Sacramento on June 10, 1944.

Mining

As a result of the active interest of General Warren T. Hannum, chairman of the Commission's Conservation Committee, a resolution embodying the recommendations for the development of the Western mining industry set forth in the report to the Governors of the Eleven Western States and South Dakota (San Francisco, Augus 10-11, 1944) was approved by the commission, and later by the Salt Lake City Conference emphasizing there the recision of War Production Board, Order L-208 which had closed down gold mining.

FINANCES

Your commission believes that the benefits derived from its activities and participation in the work of the Council of State Governments justifies continued and expanded support. The record of the past two years has demonstrated that interstate cooperation is paying major benefits in effective prosecution of the war and the establishment of a firm postwar future that have more than repaid the investment made in its activities during the past biennium.

Your commission supports the recommendation, that the California Legislature continue at least the sum provided during the current biennium and again submitted to allow for its operation in the budget now being considered. Then it can effectively operate during the 1945-1947 biennium by continued participation in the many conferences, meetings, and other functions which have proven to be of much practical benefit to the State of California, and also meet its proportionate share of the cost involved in supporting the many important and vital activities of the Council of State Governments in rendering outstanding service to the States.

SUMMARY

Your commission feels that in presenting this report, it has shown the constantly expanding progress being made in the broad field of interstate cooperative action. It also feels that the necessity for further endeavor is apparent.

Continued effective participation by California with other States in National programs designed to keep the war effort at full speed and to lay a foundation for real postwar progress, must be extended. In addition, the ever increasing need for regional unity in the West to meet postwar demands will require the full and effective participation by California with the other Western States to develop sound and effective programs for the development and betterment of Western agriculture, mining, and industry.

Already, interstate machinery has been established to bring about these objectives. The Western Governors, it will be recalled, have revitalized their organization, and have held meetings in Salt Lake City, Denver, and Phoenix during the past two years. The postwar directors of their States have formed a group which can be the means of effective interstate solution and solidification of major Western postwar problems. At the recent Salt Lake City Conference on September 29-30 a committee was established composed of one representative from each Western State for the purpose of preventing any undue discrimination to the West in the relaxation of Government controls at the end of the European War. Naturally, the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation is anxious to work with and assist these various groups to achieve the great goal of postwar prosperity in the West.

The time is rapidly approaching also for the establishment of cooperative interstate macinery in the form of continuing committees composed of representatives of each Western State which could help solve major interstate problems in such fields as State truck regulations, State taxation, State agricultural barriers, fisheries, and migratory worker relationships. The effective force of the Commission on Interstate Cooperation in each State will be to carry out the recommendations of such continuing committees by the adoption of necessary legislation within each State. The California Commission is, therefore, most willing to assist in encouraging the establishment of Commissions on Interstate Cooperation in those Western States which have none at this time, namely: Arizona, Idaho, and Washington.

It is obvious that an increasing burden of work must be assumed by the Executive Secretary who has performed this function for the Commission in addition to many other duties in connection with his official capacity with the Department of Agriculture. The commission may, therefore, find it necessary in the very near future to employ at least a part-time assistant if its work continues to increase at the present pace.

The Regional Representative of the Council of State Governments Headquartering at San Francisco has been outstandingly helpful and cooperative on all matters, having furnished much data and counselled on interstate problems whenever opportunity between his travels to other States permitted. The contribution made from commission funds to the council has redounded most beneficially and has proved to have completely justified California's financial participation in its support.

PRELIMINARY SUMMARY OF REPORT OF THE CALIFORNIA FORESTRY STUDY COMMITTEE

Statutes 1943, Chapter 1086

Geo. M. Biggar, Chairman

THUMBNAIL SKETCH OF SUMMARY

A waning supply of old-growth timber, much of it still being logged without sufficient regard for replenishment; 5,000,000 acres of the best and most accessible timber already reduced to cutover or burned lands; the bulk of the cutover lands reproducing a forest inadequately or not at all; losses from insect attacks now exceeding the losses from forest fires; a taxing system that operates against private forestry the highest per capita lumber consumption in the United States; and some lesser problems, conspire to threaten California with a shortage of home-manufactured lumber, with the loss of an important industry paying out each year $35,000,000 for pay rolls and $2,000,000 in taxes, and with impairment to watersheds, recreation and scenic values.

The severity of these problems can be ameliorated through remedial legislation and other aids directed toward improved logging practices; insect and disease control; intensified fire protection; reforestation of the more promising cutover land; reducing the wastes of lumbering and developing uses for unavoidable wastes; the strengthening of the technical and protection staffs of the State Division of Forestry; staggered terms on the State Board of Forestry to achieve continuity of policy; and demonstration areas for developing reforestation practices and old-growth and second-growth forest cutting and management methods.

Forest ownership and reforestation should be encouraged as private enterprises, but where promising cutover lands can not be reforested by private owners, and where second-growth lands are threatened with premature logging, it may be necessary to acquire them for a comprehensive system of State forests.

The forest counties suffer most from the loss of the forest and forest industries, but have done the least to correct the current situation. County forest surveys by county officials are seriously needed.

The committee has acquired enough information to convince it of the gravity of the forest situation and of the need for immediate action. Some phases require further study.

The committee recommends favorable action by the 1945 Legislature on the bills suggested at the end of the summary.

EXTENDED SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

For the time at its disposal, the committee feels it has made a thorough study of the forest situation in California. It made four field trips, totalling 18 days, and held 17 hearings prior to December 31, 1944. While it feels that still further study should be given to the subject, it believes that its own studies so far prove the forest situation to be of such seriousness that immediate action is necessary by the Legislature for certain legislation and, by the State Board of Forestry for strengthening the Division of Forestry, and that its recommendations, to be set forth hereinafter, are fully justified.

The findings of the committee are summarized below. Support of these findings appears in the body of the report. We find that:

Forest Depletion

1. Depletion of timber supplies by cutting, fire, and insects has steadily accelerated, particularly since 1900.

2. The most accessible and best stands of timber were cut first, and while timber of comparable quality still remains, cutting is progressively being transferred to the lighter and less accessible stands.

3. Concurrently with logging and other human uses, losses by fire and insects have mounted rapidly. Losses by fire outside the National forests are now being held in check by the State Division of Forestry. Insect losses in the pine region are still great and exceed those due to forest fires.

4. The State Division of Forestry has developed a large fire fighting organization, and we find that it is currently making desirable changes to make its fire suppression more effective. It needs funds to develop fire prevention work, to reduce suppression costs.

5. The State is not adequately taking care of insect losses. Insects are constantly at work killing trees in the pine region, and certain ones frequently reach epidemic proportions.

6. The "white pine blister rust," an imported tree-killing disease attacking sugar pine, is spreading southward in the pine region. Control measures were inaugurated early, and losses to date are small. The State has cooperated in control measures and should continue them.

7. In the redwood region there are, at present, no tree-killing insect or disease problems.

8. As a result of past depletion by cutting, fire, and insects, there is now an insufficient volume of timber to provide, at past average rates of depletion, for uninterrupted or continuous supplies of lumber and other forest products, thus making the lumber industry impermanent and threatening a shortage of lumber within a generation.

9. The situation described under No. 8 is definitely related to depletion without accompanying measures for replacement. The old-growth forest makes no net growth. It is static over large areas because growth is balanced by natural losses. New growth can be expected only from cutover lands. New growth is inadequate.

10. Of the 13,655,000 acres of commercial forest land in the State, 5,002,000 acres have been logged or burned; 8,653,000 acres of old growth remain. This acreage of old growth averages lighter stands per acre, higher per cents of the less valuable species, and much of it can be harvested only after very expensive access roads are built solely to reach the timber.

Lumber Consumption

11. California, for 30 years, has had the highest per capita lumber consumption in the Country. Prewar per capita consumption was 560 board feet. The average for the entire United States was 221 board feet in 1940 and 275 board feet in 1941. The consumption in Southern California exceeds the average for the State as a whole. If estimates of future population and industrial development in California are correct, the per capita requirements can be expected to exceed the present rate.

12. California is already a lumber importing State. It consumed in 1941 approximately 3,784,000,000 board feet, but produced only 2,292,000,000 board feet. It shipped out of the State approximately 880,000,000 board feet and consequently had to import, largely from Oregon and Washington, 2,372,000,000 board feet. The State is thus not now self sufficient and is likely to become less so. At the same time, the production in Washington has dropped far below its one-time peak, and mills have moved to Oregon, where production is already being developed beyond the capacity of the forests to maintain.

13. By far most of the forest land already logged is, or was (about 1,000,000 acres have been acquired by the United States Forest Service) in private ownership. Of the 13,655,000 acres of commercial forest land in the State, 6,799,000 acres was reported in 1941 to be in private ownership. Deducting 550,000 acres cutover in the redwood region, where there is very little public commercial forest land, it is evident that the private pine region timber is about 70 per cent cutover, leaving the National forests with their generally lighter and less accessible stands to carry the burden of lumbering when present private supplies are exhausted. The redwood region, practically all privately owned, is approximately 35 per cent cutover.

Cutover Lands

14. The cutover lands are not contributing what they should, and can, to replenish timber supplies already cut. Fortunately, more than 1,000,000 acres, because of early-day logging methods, have reproduced voluntarily and well, but, unfortunately, these lands are not, in general, in stable ownership and are already being cut. The timber varies from 50 to 90 years old and the stands are generally understocked. Such lands should be held in reserve for the time the old growth is exhausted. In the meantime they should be carefully protected, and managed for improved quality production. Lands logged in the high-speed steam-logging days, is generally very deficient in young growth, but still is potential forest growing land.

15. The lack of volunteer young growth on much of the cutover land is due largely to clear cutting methods occasioned by the use of high-speed donkey-engine and cable systems of logging which pulled down immature trees and potential seed trees. Some of the non-reforesting lands have been reduced to this condition of forest fires. These non-reproducing or poorly reproducing lands are practically idle, are growing up to brush species, and are not contributing growth for prospective timber trees.

16. Clear cutting, except in a few instances, mostly in second growth, has practically disappeared in the pine region, and has been reduced by about one-half, since 1934, in the redwood region. Because of more difficult logging conditions, tractors were not widely adopted in the redwood region until the development of the more modern Diesel powered tractor; the war, making required additional tractors unavailable, has slowed the change-over from clear cutting.

17. Improvement in logging methods since 1920 has served to reduce the rate of increase in the area of low or non-reproducing cutover land.

18. Legislation is necessary to set up certain minimum standards to be followed on logging operations. These standards should be arrived at through close consultation with the owners and operators to achieve practicality and as much self regulation as possible, but final approval of standards should rest with the State Board of Forestry. The committee believes that the State should go no farther in regulating private cutting practices than to demand that the land be left in a productive condition. It is anticipated that, when rules to achieve this end are adopted and put into practice, the owners themselves are bound to give more thought to the matter and will learn more of what is possible and feasible, and gradually evolve increasingly better practices without the necessity of compulsion.

Selective Logging

19. The most promising type of cutting method, as to leaving cutover lands productive, is the one known as "selective logging" whereby only mature and overmature trees are removed and the remainder are left unent for the dual purpose of (1) making further growth and high quality logs, and (2) providing a source of seed for natural reforestation.

20. Selective logging should be encouraged wherever possible. It is being practiced as a matter of good business by some operators; it may need fostering by the State in some cases, and compulsion in a few others unless a satisfactory substitute method can be offered.

21. Since there are all grades of selective logging from heavy (approaching a seed tree system) to light, standards should be progressively raised to approach the grade most certain to bring about the earliest and most complete stocking of the cutover land and yet provide for maximum growth of the residual immature trees.

22. Selective logging, to be effective, must be accompanied by fire protection, insect control, and, where sugar pine is present, by blister rust control.

23. To depend solely on selective logging in remaining old-growth stands will not assure continuity of lumber supplies. The old cutover lands must be brought into full productivity and existing young stands must be conserved.

Stimulation of Forestry Practices

24. The problem of guaranteeing future lumber supplies is complicated by ownership problems, yearly becoming more serious as large units are broken down by sales. There appears, therefore, to be needed some incentive for holding on to and keeping forest tracts intact. Some owners are not able to or interested in holding their cutover lands past the first cutting. Such lands are often sold to stock ranchers for whose use they are burned and seeded. Ordinarily they make poor and impermanent livestock ranges.

25. Because of the long deferred income from newly reforested lands, an additional incentive is needed to stimulate private reforestation.

26. Timber ownership and production should be encouraged as a private enterprise to keep the land on the local tax rolls, to benefit from the ingenuity and resourcefulness of private initiative, and to keep the public out of business as much as possible.

27. The lumber industry itself is an important contributor to State and county income. Its investment exceeds $140,000,000; it pays out annually for labor more than $35,000,000; it pays in taxes, other than income taxes, nearly $2,000,000; and, including planing mills, the value of its products approaches $100,000,000. The value added to raw material exceeds $35,000,000. It is an important industry, therefore, to preserve, quite aside from the public's need of its products. It is important also for the local forest counties that depend for a large part of their tax reserves upon lumbering.

28. Several owner-operators have set up their properties as "Tree Farms." These are favored by a strong financial condition, ample old-growth timber reserves, productive cutover lands, and good growing conditions. Such owners merit official recognition, and, if they give reasonable guarantee of devoting their lands to timber growing in perpetuity and practise a superstandard of forestry, they merit special public compensation in some way in payment for such guarantee, perhaps by taxes based on yield and better public fire protection and pest control. This latter subject requires further study.

Acquisitions for State Forests

29. The fact that much cutover land is sold for live stock ranches of dubious permanence and value, and much more is held in idle condition awaiting sale or trade for stumpage, points to the need for the public to acquire such lands for eventual reforestation and creation of managed State forests.

30. It is expected that as much as 1,000,000 acres may have to be so acquired, reforested, and managed if the lands are to be made to produce timber again. They are valuable for little else, although they have accessory recreation, wildlife, scenic, and watershed values. This large area will not be in one or a few large blocks. Preferably, it should be in blacks of 10,000 to 50,000 acres each, depending upon the region. But smaller areas, sometimes of only a quarter section (160 acres) in the proximity of ranger stations, should be considered for use as demonstration plots of reforestation, management, and second-growth management methods.

31. Should the State make such acquisitions it should center this activity on lands of real promise rather than on lands that are too far gone. And, in view of the real need for future timber supplies, timber growing should be made the main objective and the lands acquired with that in mind, but accessory and incidental uses should not be ignored.

32. We believe that, if purchases are made wisely, the State should reap not only timber but a profit on its investment. The initial total cost of acquisition and reforestation should not exceed a total of $15 per acre; at the end of 50 years the crop alone should be worth not less than $100. Intermediate returns are quite possible from pulp wood, poles and pilings, providing additional returns.

33. Reforestation work is a desirable activity for jobless men in unemployment emergencies, prisoners, and Youth Administration boys. It is healthy and inspiring. It is wealth producing, and entails very modest maintenance charges.

34. In making purchases, priority should be given to lands, part of which carries a volunteer stand of young growth so that (1) initial reforestation charges are reduced; (2) management practices for young growth can be developed; (3) demonstrations can be offered to private owners, particularly small owners; (4) earlier returns can be obtained to offset in part initial charges and, most important, (5) conserve such young growth which may otherwise be sacrificed to fire or premature and clear cutting; furthermore, (6) employment can be given to key State fire protection employees in the non-fire season.

35. No lands should be acquired whose ownership already is in strong hands and is likely to be cared for adequately by their possessors. The early reforestation of such lands may, on further study, be found to warrant some State assistance such as free seed or planting stock and tax alleviation.

36. Along with inadequately reforesting cutover lands and second growth lands, the State should acquire also a few moderate-sized tracts of old growth for trial and demonstration of various cutting practices. It would be desirable if such old growth blocks are close to or contiguous with cutover land for greater economy in administration.

37. Tax deeded lands have been suggested for State forests. The area of such lands suitable for State forests seems at present to be rather small. A preliminary study is nearing completion to determine the probable area and condition of the lands.

County Interests

38. Under present laws, lands acquired by the State are removed from the local tax rolls. The committee has given this extra study but feels the subject should be gone into more deeply and in consultation with the counties. Answers to this problem considered by the committee include legislation permitting (1) the State to buy as a private buyer, paying an annual fee equivalent to the tax, and (2) paying nothing annually but giving the county a good share of the proceeds when harvests are made. The second method shows promise of being the most profitable to the county in the end. At present, the tax return is small and insecure. The lands may ultimately be abandoned for taxes, and, certainly, many of them will not be put to a permanent high use under the present tax system.

39. The forest counties have shown little concern over their future tax structure. They seem to believe that other resources will offset the loss occasioned by depletion of the timber. None have been found to have given serious thought, certainly no action, to making timber a continuing tax source. Very few counties have analyzed even in small part the effect of depletion. The annual tax loss from depletion is far greater than would be the loss of cutover land taxes should part of the cutover be taken over by the State.

40. The Ad Valorem Tax System is not fitted to continuous forest production. In every forested State it has contributed to bringing pressure for early and often premature liquidation. In not a few cases in California, investors in timberlands have paid into county treasuries more than the value of the timber. Taxation, it would seem, should be related to the productivity of the land. Old-growth poses quite a different problem than young growth for taxation. Severance taxes have been proposed for both classes, but they appear to have been unsatisfactory for old growth, and more adapted to young growth.

Present State Lands

41. The Latour Forest of 9,173 acres, in Shasta County, already owned by the State for the Department of Education, not now productive of returns, can be made productive, and continuously, if put under forest management. It would make a desirable nucleus for a State forest in that locality.

42. The State also owns some school lands of a grazing character which need consolidation and management.

State Division of Forestry

43. The State Division of Forestry has developed into a purely fire protection agency, with grass, grain, and structural fires absorbing much of its time, effort, and resources. Obviously, these resources must be protected as well as are forest and watershed brush lands, but the question has been raised as to whether it is the job of a forestry organization, and if it should be charged to forestry. This subject requires further and thorough study.

44. The Division of Forestry has on its staff a number of well trained and able technical foresters but they have little opportunity to gain practical experience in forest management problems as long as the State owns no State forests.

45. The State's fire protection effort is seriously impaired by having to hire new men each year for key positions such as truck drivers and crew foremen. Employed for only the fire season, there is no incentive for making the job a permanent vocation. Year-long employment for the key men would greatly increase the effectiveness of the personnel. In the nonfire season they could be employed on forestry work as State forests are acquired.

46. The growing of a forest is a long-time process. It requires stability of policy. Fire protection is in a similar category. Stability is not assured under the present system permitting a complete change of the State Board of Forestry each four years. Overlapping terms would more nearly approach the desirable continuity of policy.

Southern California Watersheds

47. Commercial timber growing is possible only in northern California. The southern part of the State, however, has protection problems of a special and acute nature. The chaparral cover burns fiercely, leaves the easily eroded soils bare and subject to heavy erosion should a heavy rain follow fire. Catastrophic floods and erosion are a periodic menace to life and property. Currently, fire protection is handled separately by three southern counties, Los Angeles, Ventura, and Santa Barbara, but cooperatively with the State by others. There is a lack of uniformity of cooperation. This requires solution without delay. A study has been recommended by the State Board of Forestry to determine the degree of the State's responsibility.

Federal Relations

48. Considerable concern has been expressed by some counties and citizens over the mounting acquisition of forest lands—virgin and cutover—by the United States Forest Service without immediate compensation to the counties. While the effect on local taxes is no different than if the State should acquire the lands, without such compensation, it seems dangerous to permit the acquisitions to go on unchecked. Already nearly one-half of the State is owned by the Federal Government. Pressure by Federal forest officers on private owners and on county supervisors for approval of transfers have been reported.

Livestock Range Protection

49. A controversy was found between foresters and live stock men. The stockmen demand rather broad freedom to burn their stock ranges at frequent intervals to remove brush to encourage grass and browse. The foresters, while not opposing such burning, feel it should be conducted plan-wise, under control, and at times when fires are not likely to get out of hand. Stockmen also feel they should not be held liable for fires that escape to adjoining lands. Foresters argue that reasonable effort should be made to confine the land-clearing fires to the owner's own lands. The foresters also aim to keep fires out of cutover lands not formally devoted to stockraising. A Trespass Law or a Fencing Law to keep range stock off reforesting lands has been suggested by some. This subject should be given further study particularly a cooperative one between foresters, fire-control agencies, and range live stock men to determine the most economical and safe burning methods; the effect of burning on soils and slopes and exposures of various kinds to determine the effectiveness of burning and the effect on long-range soil productivity. Progressive ranchers want such a study.

Education

50. The State has not been effective as an educational force on forestry matters. Several recommendations have come to the committee suggesting the State develop some educational programs to promote better care of forest land and to prevent fires.

Forest Products Studies

51. Waste of valuable trees and parts of them seems to be concomittant to logging. It develops from felling breakage, logging damage, broken down immature trees, and the like. Its reduction should have the effect of prolonging the life of the virgin stands. The utilization of the unavoidable portion of the debris should add new industries and should sweeten the realization from the logging operation. Studies in both fields are required in close cooperation with interested owners. The committee has been advised that the University of California has in prospect a Forest Products Laboratory for postwar construction for such studies. Testimony of witnesses at committee hearings indicate that forest operators are keenly interested and hopeful that the completion of the laboratory will not be delayed, as soon as war needs permit.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Notwithstanding the need for further study of the State's forest situation, the committee believes justified in making the following recommendations for legislation. The bills recommended are not affected by further study, and because of the seriousness of the situation, favorable action by the 1945 Legislature is recommended.

Proposals for Legislation

1. A bill setting up machinery to establish and enforce cutting and protection practices in privately owned old-growth and second-growth forest stands; such practices being designed to promote a prolongation of the remaining virgin timber, and such management as will leave the cutover land in a productive condition. Since the Maryland Law, which provides for a large measure of self regulation, fits California needs so well, it is recommended that our legislation be patterned on that law. It calls for dividing the commercial forest area of the State into forest districts, each with a forest district committee of local people who are required to initiate the rules of cutting and protection practices. Such rules are to be transmitted to the State Board of Forestry, and, if adopted, have the force of law.

2. A bill providing for the acquisition of forest lands for demonstration areas and State forests. It should carry an appropriation sufficiently large to enable the State Forester to make surveys and appraisals of desirable properties during the current biennium, and funds should be earmarked for eventual purchases. The bill should clearly state the intent and purpose of such demonstration areas and State forests; define desirable lands; provide for compensating the counties for loss of tax revenues; provide for reforestation, for cutting, administration and management, and for the disposition of the income from sales.

3. A bill providing for the transfer of the LaTour Forest in Shasta County from the Department of Education to the State Division of Forestry, to be incorporated in the State Forest System, and managed as such.

4. A bill providing for State cooperation in the control of tree-killing forest insects.

5. A bill providing for staggered terms of membership on the State Board of Forestry; clarifying duties and powers of the board and defining its membership.

6. A resolution for continuing the committee and the study.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were offered:

By Senator Dillinger:

Senate Resolution No. 42

Respecting the Discovery of Gold at Coloma

WHEREAS, January 24, 1945, is the official Ninety-seventh Anniversary of the Discovery of Gold at Coloma, by James Wilson Marshall; and

WHEREAS, As a result of that discovery, many of the Nation's finest came to California and, upon their arrival, made the further discovery that California held not only gold, but a wealth of other resources as well; and

WHEREAS, During the period of nearly 100 years that has elapsed since then, this great State has reached a high place within the aggregation of our several States; and

WHEREAS, We have become more and more engrossed in our daily round of duty as the days go by, it becomes more and more fitting that we should pause in the turmoil of our daily lives, to reflect upon the achievements and the high ideals of those pioneers who carved from the vastness of forest and plain this great State that we love, and to draw from their precept and example renewed inspiration to sustain and guide us as we face the problems before us now. Not all the pioneering has been done. We face today some of the most gigantic and perplexing problems that have ever faced any people, so let us now, in the light of those high ideals, consecrate ourselves this day to the tasks that lie before us, that we may prove worthy of our heritage and wisely administer our trust.

It is not alone for the accidental discovery of gold that we mark this day. Rather, it is for the momentous events that flowed therefrom. The voice of the golden siren called to the shores of the broad Pacific the very flower of the Nation's manhood. None but those of the highest courage could dare the great adventure and none but the fittest could survive its hardships; therefore, be it

Resolved, That when the Senate does this day adjourn, that we do so in commemoration of the discovery of gold at Coloma, and out of respect to the memory of James Wilson Marshall and those rugged pioneers who have bequeathed us this priceless heritage.

Resolution read, and on motion of Senator Dillinger, adopted.

By Senator Fletcher:

Senate Resolution No. 43

2. The committee shall report to the Senate not later than April 1, 1945, and shall include recommendations in their report.

Resolution read, and on motion of Senator Fletcher, adopted.

Motion carried.

REPORT OF THE JOINT LEGISLATIVE INTERIM COMMITTEE ON FISH AND GAME

Foreword

Your Committee on Fish and Game created under Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 46, relative to the investigation of fish and game problems, submits the following report to the Legislature:

Game Birds and Big Game Animals

Your committee, after having traveled over a great deal of California, and after having met with and consulted with the Fish and Game Commission on several occasions, and having met with sportsmen's groups throughout the State, would report as follows on wildlife conditions.

Deer are perhaps more plentiful now than at any time since any attention has been given to conservation. The leading factor in this increase has no doubt been the protection given to does and fawns not only by laws and law enforcement but increased efforts toward predatory animal control work. Coyotes, bobcats, and panthers (mountain lions) take a heavy toll of deer throughout the State and at all times. The Fish and Game Commission and the livestock men are, at the present time, working very harmoniously on predatory animal control, and such work is proving very beneficial to all concerned. In a great many sections of the State, deer have become so plentiful that they are a burden and a nuisance to the farmers. They are very destructive to young trees and vines and will continue to strip them of their foliage until they finally kill them. They are also very destructive to all grain crops, alfalfa, and vegetables.

In pheasants, we perhaps had the peak of good hunting in the 1943 season. The laws governing pheasant hunting had been greatly liberalized, perhaps too much so. However, the birds had increased so that in a great many sections they were becoming very destructive to a great many farm crops, and some thinning down did not seem out of order. The 1944 hunt rather indicated that too many birds had been taken in the 1943 season; also that the full protection to hens was a mistake. The 1944 hatch was very unsatisfactory, a great many nests being found that did not furnish chicks, presumably for the lack of sufficient roosters. These birds do not seem to segregate themselves in a satisfactory manner; in some localities will be found a great predominance of hens and in another area there will be an over-supply of roosters; they just don't seem to get around enough to understand the convenience and necessity of a proper sex ratio. These birds are not a native of California, and have been established only after careful and persistent attempts. They are just getting established in a great many counties and are overly abundant in other counties. An uniform law for the taking of these birds is not the proper procedure. Rather, the Fish and Game Commission should exercise the powers it has and regulate the take in accordance with the birds available and the desirability of increasing or diminishing them. The same is perhaps true of deer; in the areas where they are overly abundant, the Fish and Game Commission should in some way endeavor to regulate the deer herds, not to the point of extermination, but to the extent that these animals would realize that they are looked upon as being wild and that for self-protection they belong in the back country where they can hide away from mankind and survive; that they are not barnyard pets like the chickens and other domestic animals. One of the most consistent complaints we have heard from sportsmen is against the recent action of the Legislature providing that tags must be obtained before hunting pheasants, and we recommend the elimination of the pheasant tag.

The history of the valley quail in Northern California for more than 40 years has been one of gradual disappearance until at the present time they have been reduced to a point where they are no longer an item in the sports world. There have been a great many attempts to rehabilitate them; none have been very successful and they are still on the decline. Hardly two persons will agree on the reason for this gradual disappearance. There is no doubt more than one element enters into the picture. There is no bird that has as many predatory enemies as this most beautiful of all game birds, and these predators are, perhaps, more responsible than any other agency for the gradual disappearance of this species of wildlife. Any attempt of rehabilitation, if successful, must have in mind, primarily, feed, shelter, and water and the nearer these three come to being under the same roof, the more successful will be the venture. This choice morsel of food can not venture far from its shelter without falling prey to one of its many enemies which include the following well known predators—coons, foxes, coyotes, house cats, bobcats, ring-tailed cats, ground squirrels, snakes, hawks and owls, Geococcyx californianus, not mentioning the man or boy with a gun. This bird should be removed from the open season list in most of the State. Again, the Fish and Game Commission should exercise its authority and allow killing only in spots that can take it. The quail is one species of wild life that even in the days of great abundance did but little damage to farm crops.

Your committee has found that ducks are doing almost unbelievable damage to crops in various parts of the State. This is especially true in the Sacramento, San Joaquin, and Imperial Valleys. This condition, which is deplorable in normal times, is doubly so at this critical time when food conservation is of such vital importance. In the Imperial Valley, in 1944, more than $750,000 in crops was lost due to the damage, mainly in fields of rice, lettuce, and alfalfa which were completely destroyed. The depredation was greatest in January, February, and part of March. Since there is comparatively little that can be done about this situation by the State Fish and Game Commission, since migratory birds are under the control of the Federal Government, your committee is making the following recommendations to the commission:

1. That they endeavor to make arrangements with the United States Fish and Wildlife Service to permit feeding, under proper control, on duck club grounds in order to attract ducks from the rice fields during and prior to harvest season;

2. That they urge the United States Fish and Wildlife Service to operate its refuges to the maximum degree as resting places for migratory waterfowl.

3. That they operate their refuges to the maximum degree as resting places for migratory waterfowl.

4. That they endeavor to establish a plan through the War Production Board under which the U.S.D.A. County Boards be authorized to again approve purchase of ammunition for farmers to use in herding or dispersing waterfowl in the protection of their crops.

5. That consideration be given to unrestricted feeding, as to areas, prior to, and subsequent to shooting season.

6. That in an area over which shooting will be engaged during the season, unrestricted feeding should be stopped prior to the shooting season, except on those areas where feeding is permitted under permit and which held as loafing ponds for non-shooting; the Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service to fix the date of cessation of feeding prior to the shooting season on those areas where shooting will be permitted.

7. That the Federal Government be urged by the Fish and Game Commission to permit feeding of waterfowl within 200 yards of gun clubs during the open season on waterfowl.

Antelope have always existed in California. In the early 1840's and 50's, there were great herds of antelope in the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys. They were gradually killed and driven back to a limited area in two or three northern counties. Only in recent years has any attempt been made to conserve the species, and such attempt has been very successful. At the present time, we have 12,088 head in Lassen, Siskiyou, and Modoc Counties with a few scattered small herds in other localities. In the last three years, there has been noted a substantial increase in all localities, and in some localities they have doubled. This increase has taken place in spite of the fact that the Fish and Game Commission has allowed the killing of 500 bucks for the past three seasons. There have been several complaints from farmers regarding damage done to alfalfa hay stacks and to growing alfalfa crops by antelope. They visit such stacks and fields in herds, the entire herd traveling together. The count made in 1944 reports more than 1,100 in one herd. It is not hard to visualize the damage that would be done to a stack of hay or an alfalfa field when visited by a hungry herd of antelope or even a much smaller herd.

The establishment of an elk herd in California has not met with much success. The herd on Prairie Creek, Humboldt County, has been the cause of a great deal of complaint from the farmers in that locality. The herd in Yolo County, that at one time contained about 300 head, became such a nuisance that the Fish and Game Commission found it necessary to allow the killing of a limited number of them. The herd has been gradually reduced to about half of the herd; this half has moved back into rough mountainous and brushy area and is doing well and fast increasing. The Kern County herd became so destructive that it was found necessary to confine it to a well fenced area. The herd in Inyo County, where the Commission allowed the taking of a limited number of bucks in 1943, has become such a burden on residents of that county that they are asking the Fish and Game Commission to remove them to some other more suitable area.

Your committee would recommend that the Fish and Game Commission use every endeavor to protect the farmers from damages caused by wildlife of all species.

The committee found that the hatcheries might be classified as:

1. Those that use cold water for the hatching and rearing of fish, and
2. Those that use warm water for this purpose.

Hatcheries Using Cold Water: In these, the temperature of the water used ranges from 34 degrees to 50 degrees Fahrenheit. This group includes the major number of the hatcheries of the State. The committee found that in this cold water, a period of 90 days is required in hatching trout eggs. The small trout are held and fed in small narrow troughs, one end elevated at an angle to allow water to flow from top to bottom, with a screen mesh or barrier to prevent the escape of the young fish. The overflow is carried off in an aqueduct leading into some adjacent stream. Food is scattered through the troughs, and the committee found that there was considerable loss due to the flow of the water, carrying it off into the overflow. In this cold water, and under this method of feeding, the small fish grow very slowly, reaching a size known as "fingerling," or approximately one inch in length, at the age of a year. During this period in which the trout are held in these hatcheries, they never come in contact with the sunlight, and receive their food only as man gives it to them, and so are raised in unnatural surroundings. Committee members were informed that the mortality among these small trout, after planting, ranged as high as 92 per cent. This high mortality is caused by predators, such as large fish, water snakes, etc., and also by the inability of these fingerlings to find food and protection for themselves.

The investment in these cold water hatcheries by the State of California has run into many millions of dollars, both in the initial investment and in the upkeep. An outstanding example is the Mt. Shasta Hatchery. The committee was informed that it took 18 men to completely staff the hatchery, and that the initial cost was $182,000.

Hatcheries and Rearing Ponds Using Warm Water: In these, the temperature of the water is uniformly between 55 degrees and 64 degrees Fahrenheit throughout the year. This group is made up of the Fillmore Hatchery, Hot Creek Hatchery and Black Rock Rearing Ponds. The committee found that in this warm water, trout eggs hatch in a period of 21 days. Very soon after hatching, the young trout are placed in rearing ponds. The rearing ponds at Fillmore and Hot Creek Hatcheries are constructed of a series of small streams separated from each other by cement walls or barriers, and fed from a main underground stream. The water in each rearing pond averages about one foot in depth. Any one of these ponds may be cut off from the others, should disease in any form break out within it. Black Rock Rearing Ponds are different from Fillmore and Hot Creek in this respect: There are two or three large ponds, several feet in depth and each covering an area of several acres. The small trout are brought from the Mt. Whitney Hatchery or from the Hot Creek Hatchery and placed in these rearing ponds. The trout in these warm water rearing ponds are fed the same kind of food and in much the same manner as in the cold water hatcheries. However, since the water in these rearing ponds is moving much more slowly than in the troughs in the cold water hatcheries, and the ponds are much larger than the troughs, very little of the food is carried out of the ponds, but drops to the bottom and is picked up by the trout over a period of time. The food is also supplemented from natural sources such as insects, plant life, etc., found in the ponds. Since the ponds are in the open, the fish are subjected at all times to conditions under which they will live in the streams and lakes where they will be planted. The committee found that the trout in these rearing ponds grow at the rate of approximately one inch per month. It is customary to plant these trout in the streams and lakes when they are from 5 to 10 inches in length, which means when they are from 5 to 10 months old. The mortality rate of these fish caused by predators is comparatively low, being from 2 per cent in some localities to 20 per cent in others. The cost to the State of these warm water hatcheries and rearing ponds is very reasonable. For example, Fillmore had an initial cost of $75,000 and operates with a staff of 10 men. Black Rock cost approximately $3,000 and requires a personnel of five men.

After considering the faster rate of growth, the lower mortality, and the lower cost involved in raising trout in warm water hatcheries and rearing ponds as compared to those in cold water hatcheries, the committee recommends the development of more warm water hatcheries and rearing ponds if suitable sites can be secured. Where these sites are located in areas where cold water hatcheries now operate, the committee recommends the closing of said cold water hatcheries.

In this connection, the committee investigated the Baum Ranch located near Burney in Shasta County. Description of the Baum Ranch Hatchery site is as follows:

> That certain parcel of land situate in Sec. 32, T. 36 N., R. 4 E., M. D. B. & M., bounded by a line which begins at a point distant North 26 degrees, 48½ minutes East 806.4 feet from a monument marking the South quarter corner of said Section 32 (said point of beginning being on the 2997 contour, Pacific Gas and Electric Company datum from bench mark which is an iron bolt at the end of the transformer track at Hat No. 1 power house, elevation 3013.27 said datum), and runs thence North 25 degrees 12 minutes West 112.73 feet; thence North 87 degrees 33½ minutes West 138.13 feet; thence North 53 degrees 50¾ minutes West 200.02 feet; thence North 21 degrees 08¼ minutes West 508.75 feet; thence South 77 degrees 28½ minutes West 138.29 feet; thence South 83 degrees 53¼ minutes West 230.31 feet; thence North 68 degrees 26¼ minutes West 359.14 feet; thence North 11 degrees 14 minutes West 484.87 feet; thence North 59 degrees 50½ minutes East 82.00 feet to a point in said 2997 contour; thence easterly, southerly and westerly, along said 2997 contour, to the point of beginning, containing 34 acres more or less.

Since the conditions here are so promising, the committee recommended to the Fish and Game Commission that it take the necessary steps to lease this property. Within the last 60 days, a 40-year lease is under negotiation with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, owners of the property.

It is estimated by the officials of the Fish and Game Commission that if this hatchery is properly constructed, it will produce approximately one-half million pounds of trout per year, and will be one of the largest trout hatcheries in the world.

The Interim Committee on Fish and Game wishes to commend the Fish and Game Commissioners, and especially Mr. Nate F. Milnor, who was responsible for much of the experimental work being carried on, for the fine work done in developing the warm water hatcheries.

Below is a comparison of the costs per pound of raising trout in cold and warm water hatcheries. These figures were compiled under the supervision of Mr. A. C. Taft, Chief of the Bureau of Fish Conservation in the Division of Fish and Game.

[1] Eggs are valued at $1.25 per M. for Rainbow.
Eggs are valued at $0.50 per M. for Eastern Brook.
Eggs are valued at $0.50 per M. for Loch Leven
Eggs are valued at $0.50 per M. for Steelhead.

Fingerling fish transferred form one hatchery to another for sizing valued at $2 per pounds.

[2] As Black Rock is operated under Mt. Whitney, there are no direct costs. Prorated cost $23,932.40

Following is an explanation of these cost figures taken from a report of Mr. A. C. Taft, Chief of the Bureau of Fish Conservation.

This year in preparing the table we have added Columns 2 and 3 which attempts, on the one hand, to give credit to each hatchery for major items of services and materials rendered to other stations and, in turn, to charge the latter with the costs of those items. For instance, Mt. Shasta, Hot Creek, and Mt. Whitney produce most of the rainbow eggs we use and ship to other stations. It greatly increases their costs to feed and care for the brood stock that produces these eggs. Another type of adjustment is necessary in the case of Black Rock where all of the labor equipment and feed is supplied by Mt. Whitney and we have had to make as careful a breakdown and allocation of the costs as possible. Again, we have one man at the Fillmore Hatchery who spends two-thirds of his time procuring fish food for Hot Creek, Mt. Whitney, and Black Rock, and it is only proper that this should be charged against those stations rather than Fillmore, as it shows on the Accounting Department books.

In making comparisons of the final figures with those of last year, these changes should be kept in mind. In addition, in making comparisons between hatcheries, it should be kept in mind that they are of three general types. First of all, there are the newer stations such as Hot Creek, Black Rock, and Fillmore that were designed for the production of catchable sized trout; second, an intermediate group such as Tallac, Sequoia, Brookdale, Coy Flat, and Kern that are operated to produce fish about four inches in length; and third, the remaining group of older stations that are equipped only to rear fingerlings.

It is no more proper to compare the costs of stations in Group 1 with those in Group 3 than it would be to compare the costs on a pound basis of a man raising baby chicks with those of one raising poultry for the market. It is, of course, useful to us to know the comparative costs of rearing fingerlings as compared with catchable fish, but the relative values can only be assessed in terms of the final results obtained from planting the two sizes of fish.

Within each separate group, it can be seen that it costs us 40 to 52 cents per pound to rear and plant catchable sized trout at Fillmore, Black Rock, and Hot Creek. I do not believe that the differences between those stations are of much significance and result from temporary conditions that fluctuate from year to year. The costs in the second group of stations, Tallac, Brookdale, Sequoia, Coy Flat, and Kern, rise to $1.14 to $2 per pound. The increase arises partly from the fact that water conditions at these stations are not so favorable as at those in Group 1, and secondarily from the fact that they are for the most part seasonal in operation, and, therefore, are not capable of the mass production found at Hot Creek, etc.

In Group 3, the costs are, with one exception, all above $2 per pound. The exception is Fall Creek on the Klamath River where a large part of the production is salmon. It is within this Group 3 that I believe we should scrutinize the figures most closely. In each case where the costs are high it generally means that the hatchery is located on a poor water supply with cold temperatures prevailing throughout a greater part of the year. It is, therefore, within this latter group that improvements in location are most urgently needed and as rapidly as more satisfactory sites can be obtained these high cost hatcheries should be replaced.

Food for Trout: In many of our lakes of California, the food for trout is very limited, and it is recommended that the Fish and Game Commission make a study of this and, wherever possible, fresh water shrimp and vegetable material should be planted in lakes to increase the food supply.

Patrol

More Fish and Game Wardens: From our investigation, we have found that, at the present time, the Division of Fish and Game, Bureau of Patrol and Law Enforcement, is understaffed. We further found that the staff was doing as well as could be expected with the manpower at its disposal.

We recommend that the number of wardens in the field be increased as soon as the manpower requirements permit, and we recommend further that the increase be in such a number that the Bureau of Patrol will be able properly to enforce the Fish and Game Laws and to carry on a successful and comprehensive Conservation Program.

We further recommend that the Division of Fish and Game be permitted to purchase airplanes for the purpose of assisting and aiding the wardens in law enforcement, and for the purpose of obtaining information and conducting surveys of fish and game within the State with the objective of maintaining a Conservation Program. We believe that the use of airplanes in law enforcement will greatly increase the efficiency of the fish and game wardens and will reduce the cost of operation from an over-all point of view.

We also recommend that, in connection with the use of airplanes and automobiles, that two-way radios be installed in order to enable the patrol to meet efficiently the modern problems of law enforcement.

Housing for Fish and Game Wardens: We recommend that suitable housing facilities be provided for fish and game wardens where permanent headquarters will be established. A rental may be charged for such facilities furnished.

Reducing Retirement Age of Fish and Game Wardens: We recommend that the compulsory retirement age for fish and game wardens be reduced from 70 to 65 and be optional at 60 after 20 years of service.

Commercial Fishing

Your committee investigated the commercial fishery of the State of California as part of its investigation on the fish and game problems of the State. The committee held meetings in most of the important fishing ports of California including San Diego, San Pedro, Monterey, and Bodega Bay. The committee also attended many meetings of the Fish and Game Commission during the years of 1943 and 1944, at which the problems of the commercial fishing industry were discussed before the commission. At these meetings all elements of the industry had the opportunity to discuss their problems.

Description of the California Fishery: The committee desires to emphasize the value of the California fishery from a commercial as well as a sporting point of view. The size and extent of the fishery off the coast of California and its inland waters has never been properly presented to the public. There are 120 species of fish in California which are of commercial importance. Among the most important of which are the sardine, tuna, mackerel, and salmon.

The size of the California commercial fishery, both in volume of production and in value of dollars and cents, is the largest in the United States, including Alaska. It also is the most diversified fishery in the United States, including Alaska, in that more commercial species are taken and sold on a commercial basis. The following table showing the extent of the commercial fishery in California from a production and value point of view as compared with the rest of the Nation and Alaska, will conclusively establish the truth of these statements.

Total Catch of Fish in United States (Latest Figures Available Are for 1940)

	Total Catch in pounds	Per Cent of Total	Value	Per Cent of Total
United States, including California	3,495,836,041	86	$88,344,844.00	89
Alaska	536,687,959	14	10,612,156.00	11
Total	4,059,524,000
1940 California catch	1,290,445,900	32	$20,159,876.00	20.4

A further comparison of the size of the California fishery may be obtained from the following figures which show the total production in California for the year 1943:

Total catch in pounds	1,229,754,615	Value	$31,950,769 00
Cases of fish canned	6,698,134
Tons of fish meal produced	86,151	Value	$70,496,100 00
Gallons fish oil produced	14,016,179

Thus it can readily be seen that the commercial fishing industry in California, from a point of production alone, is one of the most important industries in the State. In addition to the value of the production in dollars and cents, the industry provides work and a livelihood for a large number of men and women in this State. In the year 1943-1944, there were over 11,000 fishermen working in California. This figure is abnormally high due to the high war prices. A more normal picture would be presented by the number of fishermen in the years 1941-1942 which was 9,344. In the year 1941, there were 14,632 employees working in fish packing plants. The above figures do not include the number of people engaged in handling fresh and frozen fish, which figures were unavailable at the time of writing this report. It is estimated that the total number of employees working in fish packing plants and the number of people engaged in handling fresh and frozen fish would approximately be 17,000.

The capital investment of the plants required to process and can the commercial fish of California is estimated, for the year 1943, to be $16,043,790. This does not include the plants handling fresh fish only. It is estimated that the value of the fresh fish plants would be at least two-thirds of the fish processing plants making a total value of approximately $25,000,000. In addition to the investment in processing plants, there is a large investment in commercial fishing boats. The records show that in 1941, the last normal year, there were 3,202 licensed commercial fishing boats. There were also 553 licensed party boats which were used to take sportsmen out fishing, 344 of which were also licensed as commercial fishing boats. The value of these boats is estimated at approximately $30,000,000.

Most of the commercial fishing, with the exception of tuna, is done off the Coast of California as far out as 50 or 60 miles. In the case of tuna, the fishery extends from the Coast of California as far South as the Galapagos Islands off the Coast of Equador and South America.

The most important commercial products supplied by the California fishery are canned fish, fresh fish, fish meal, and fish oil. The importance of the canned fish pack of California to the war effort is illustrated by the fact that the United States Government has taken 100 per cent of the 1945 pack of sardines and mackerel. The fish meal produced in California is highly important to the poultry and dairy business in California because it supplies the most valuable protein supplements for live stock and poultry feed.

The foregoing resume is necessarily brief and incomplete, and is merely intended to give the reader a brief picture of the size and importance of the California fishery. It should also be pointed out that, in addition to the commercial fishing, there is a tremendous business in sporting fishing in California, and, although it is difficult to obtain any accurate information as to the size and value of the commercial phase of sport fishing in California, it is the opinion of this committee that it is as large if not larger than the commercial fishing in California. When the value of the California fishery is considered from both its commercial and sporting aspects, it can readily be seen that it is one of the largest and most valuable resources in the State of California.

In the conservation of a resource as large as the California fishery, it is natural that the administrative agency charged with the duty of conserving and preserving that resource should be confronted with many vexing problems. On the whole, it can be said that the administration of the California Fish and Game Commission has been sound and progressive. There are, however, several important problems facing the commission and the commercial fishing industry. In order to solve these problems, it is necessary for the commission to maintain, through the Division of Fish and Game, a program of scientific study of the commercial and sporting species of fish. For the purposes of this portion of the report, a discussion of a few of the problems of the more important marine species will demonstrate the nature of the problem confronting the commission. The sardine represents the biggest percentage of the commercial catch in California by volume. A very careful scientific investigation of this species has been carried on by the technicians of the Division of Fish and Game. This study should be completed, and the proper technical assistance should be supplied so that the investigation could be completed.

In the case of tuna, the scientific investigation of that species has just scratched the surface. Because of the wide distribution of the species, and because of the international aspect of the problem, it will be necessary to carry on investigations which will require the cooperation of this State with other States and Territories of the United States and with foreign countries. The tuna fishery represents the biggest percentage of the California fishery in value. It is, therefore, necessary that a scientific investigation be made of this species of fish in order to determine what conservation measures will be necessary to insure the enjoyment of a continued production for the future. Further scientific investigation is required to properly determine the nature of the regulations which should be applied to mackerel. In the past, this species has been subject to violent fluctuations in the volume of the catch.

The immediate problem confronting the salmon industry is probably the most critical problem facing the commercial and sporting fishing industry in California. The salmon is a fish which spawns in fresh water and grows to maturity in salt water. Because of this fact the projects for the conservation and development of the water resources of California which require building dams on the rivers of the State, threaten to destroy the salmon in California for either commercial or sporting purposes. The problem is at its critical stage at the present time. The building of Shasta and Friant Dams in the head waters of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers, respectively, has materially reduced the salmon spawning areas on two most important salmon breeding streams in the State of California. The United States Bureau of Reclamation of the Department of Interior, the Federal agency charged with the construction and operation of these dams, has taken steps to remedy the loss of spawning beds by the building of hatcheries and by the regulation of the remaining spawning beds below the dams. The extent of the success or failure of this salvage program can not be determined for at least two years. In the meantime, the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army has proposed to build a number of dams in the Sacramento-San Joaquin watersheds lower down on these streams and their tributaries. If the program of the Corps of Engineers is carried out as presently planned without a satisfactory salvage plan, most of the remaining salmon spawning beds on the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers will be cut off and the salmon run in these rivers and their tributaries will be destroyed. The proposed Table Mountain Dam on the Sacramento River above Red Bluff clearly demonstrates the seriousness of this problem. Practically all the remaining spawning areas on the Sacramento River lie between the proposed site of the Table Mountain Dam and Shasta Dam. At the present time, this area represents the largest single salmon spawning area in California. The Coleman Hatchery, constructed by the Bureau of Reclamation on Battle Creek at a cost of $1,200,000, for the purpose of salvaging the salmon run which was cut off by Shasta Dam, is also above the Table Mountain site. Not only will the remaining spawning areas in the Sacramento River be destroyed, but also the salvage program already in operation will be rendered useless by the construction of this dam. The destruction of this species will mean a loss of an important part of the California fishery. The value of the commercial catch of salmon in California is well in excess of $1,000,000 annually, and it is estimated that the value of the salmon catch by sporting fishermen exceeds the value of the commercial catch. The State of California should do everything in its power to prevent the destruction of this valuable natural resource, and it is recommended by this committee that provisions be made for the protection and conservation of salmon and other valuable fish-life in the streams of California before any final plans are made for the construction and operation of any dam across any stream in this State, and that the Fish and Game Commission be recognized as the State agency which must approve any plan for protection and conservation. It is further recommended that in the determination of the economic feasibility of any dam that the loss or damage to the fish resources of the State caused by said dam be taken into consideration by the agency constructing the dam.

One of the most important problems now confronting the technical staff of the commission is to scientifically determine the size and extent of the resource so that the exploitation of that resource may be regulated to conserve and perpetuate the resource for the future. At the present time, manpower restrictions make it difficult if not impossible to maintain a qualified staff of sufficient size to cope with this problem. We recommend that, as soon as manpower restrictions permit, properly qualified technicians be added to the technical staff in sufficient number to complete the necessary scientific investigation to determine the extent and scope of the fishing resources of California.

One of the biggest problems of the California fishery is the relationship between the commercial and sporting interests which exploit the fishery. In our opinion there is room for both. The fundamental State and legislative problem is to maintain a proper balance between both interests in order that the resource may be exploited for the maximum benefit and utility of the people of California. The extent of exploitation must be limited by the State in order to conserve and maintain the fishery for future generations of California citizens. The question of balance between commercial and sports fishing is one which belies a categorical answer. This question is a continuing question and its answer must depend upon the conditions of the resource at the particular time. It is the opinion of the committee that the relationship between commercial and sporting interests at the present time is better than it has been in many years and that both factions have a better understanding and conception of the problems of the other. It was one of the purposes of this committee to give a forum to all interests so that their respective problems could be discussed openly and frankly. In many places where this was done the result was very satisfactory.

The policy of the State with respect to its fishery should be one of sound conservation and all State regulations should be designed to accomplish this purpose. We believe that a control of the total catch on sound logical scientific basis should be the State's first interest in conservation. Within the scope of this principle the commercial fishing industry should be allowed to develop economically under the competitive system of free enterprise.

General Recommendations

A critical condition exists in the Division of Fish and Game because of the shortage of manpower. At the last regular session of the Legislature, the Governor signed a bill providing for "duration" appointments and the establishment of "duration" lists by the State Personnel Board.

We recommend that for the duration to compile "duration" lists, the State Personnel Board continue to rate applicants upon their experience, using the same method employed by the Federal Civil Service during the emergency. These people gain no permanent rating and the holding of examinations under normal procedure is not only a waste of time and energy but by the time lists are established, particularly for low-paid positions, such as Assistant Fish and Game Warden, those who qualify in the examination may have obtained other positions. Inasmuch as people selected for duration appointments must serve a probationary period, the appointing power has an adequate check upon their services.

Survey of Positions and Salaries Paid Employees of the Division of Fish and Game: The business of fish and game in California is one of the largest in the State, and, in order to regulate and control that business properly, the State should have competent technicians and employees. In our investigation, we have found that the salary schedules paid by the State for technicians is not comparable with the salaries paid by other Federal and State agencies which deal with the same problem.

We recommend that the Division of Fish and Game be permitted to establish salary schedules for technicians which will enable it to compete with other State and Federal agencies which deal with the same problem.

Controlled Burning of State Forest Lands: We find that in certain areas of the State that the uncontrolled growth of brush on the feeding grounds of upland game birds and browse-feeding game animals has destroyed these feeding grounds of that type of birds and animals so that they have been forced to seek feed on agricultural lands, causing damage and depredation to those lands.

We recommend that the Division of Fish and Game cooperate with the Division of Forestry in a program of controlled burning in order to improve feed conditions for upland game birds and browse-feeding game animals.

Prohibit Spear Fishing: We recommend that spear fishing be prohibited in any and all parts of the State of California.

Opening of Pheasant and Quail Season Simultaneously: It is recommended that the pheasant and quail season should be opened simultaneously in those areas where there are sufficient birds to warrant an open season.

Better Control of Predatory Animals: The committee endorses the predatory animal control work that the Division of Fish and Game is now doing, and recommends that it expand and increase its activities in this work.

Fish Screens: The committee recommends that the Division of Fish and Game make every effort to develop a successful fish screen and if they are unable to develop a screen which operates effectively, it abandon the expense of maintaining the unsuccessful fish screens.

Mudhens: The committee recommends that the Fish and Game Commission urge the Federal Government to open the season on mudhens, and to eliminate the restrictions in California on the take of these birds.

License Distribution: A survey of the license distribution shows that the present methods being practiced are not satisfactory. At times, usually at the opening of various hunting and fishing seasons, a shortage of licenses occurs. At the present time, the law authorizes the distribution of licenses either by the agency paying cash in advance for the value of licenses required or the agency may be bonded and licenses distributed on consignment and settling for the licenses after the sale had been made. It appears that the shortage of licenses in the field is in most instances caused by the "cash agent" not purchasing a large enough stock of licenses to meet the requirements of the sportsmen. As a rule, most cash agents do not possess enough capital to make the necessary investment of licenses.

Therefore, it is recommended that the Fish and Game Commission take the necessary action to have all license agents placed on the consignment method of distribution.

Summary of Recommendations

1. The Fish and Game Commission should exercise its powers to regulate the take of pheasants in accordance with the available supply of birds.

1a. Amend Fish and Game Code to eliminate pheasant tags.

2. The Fish and Game Commission should exercise its powers to regulate the deer herds.

3. The Fish and Game Commission should exercise its power to prohibit the taking of quail in certain sections of the State where population is depleted.

4. The Fish and Game Commission should endeavor to make arrangements with the United States Fish and Wildlife Service to permit feeding, under proper control, on duck club grounds in order to attract ducks from the rice fields during and prior to harvest season.

5. The Fish and Game Commission urge the United States Fish and Wildlife Service to operate its refuges to the maximum degree as resting places for migratory waterfowl.

6. The Fish and Game Commission operate its refuges to the maximum degree as resting places for migratory waterfowl.

7. The Fish and Game Commission endeavor to establish a plan through the War Production Board under which the United States Department of Agriculture county boards be authorized to again approve purchase of ammunition for farmers to use in herding or dispersing waterfowl in the protection of their crops.

8. That consideration be given to unrestricted feeding as to areas, prior to, and subsequent to, shooting season.

9. That in an area over which shooting will be engaged during the season, unrestricted feeding should be stopped prior to the shooting season, except on those areas where feeding is permitted under permit and which are held as loafing ponds for nonshooting. The Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service to fix the date of cessation of feeding prior to the shooting season on those areas where shooting will be permitted.

10. That the Federal Government be urged by the Fish and Game Commission to permit feeding of waterfowl within 200 yards of gun clubs during the open season on waterfowl.

11. The Fish and Game Commission use every endeavor to protect the farmers from damages caused by wildlife of all species.

12. Development of additional warm water hatcheries and rearing ponds, if suitable sites can be secured; and if such sites are located in areas where cold water hatcheries now operate, such cold water hatcheries should be closed.

13. Division of Fish and Game make a study of food for trout and, where possible, plant freshwater shrimp and vegetable materials in lakes to increase the food supply.

14. The number of Fish and Game wardens in the field be increased as soon as the manpower requirements permit.

15. Airplanes be secured for patrol work and conducting surveys of fish and game.

16. Airplanes and automobiles be equipped with two-way radios.

17. Suitable housing facilities be provided for fish and game wardens where permanent headquarters are established.

18. Compulsory retirement age of fish and game wardens be reduced from 70 years to 65 years.

19. Study of the sardines should be completed and proper technical assistance supplied so investigation can be completed.

20. Scientific investigation should be made of the tuna and of the mackerel.

21. Provisions be made for the protection and conservation of salmon and other valuable fish life in California streams before any final plans are made for construction and operation of any dam across any stream in this State and that the Fish and Game Commission be recognized as the State agency which must approve any plan for protection and conservation.

22. In the determination of the economic feasibility of any dam, the loss or damage to the fish resources of the State caused by said dam should be taken into consideration by the agency constructing the dam.

23. When manpower restrictions permit, fisheries technicians be employed by the Division of Fish and Game to complete the necessary scientific investigation to determine extent and scope of the fishing resources of California.

24. State Personnel Board continue to rate applicants upon their experience, using the same method employed by the Federal Civil Service for "duration" appointments.

25. The Division of Fish and Game be permitted to establish salary schedules for technicians which will enable it to compete with other State and Federal agencies which deal with the same problems.

26. The Division of Fish and Game cooperate with the Division of Forestry in a program of controlled burning.

27. Spear fishing be prohibited in any and all parts of the State of California.

28. Pheasant and quail season open simultaneously.

29. Division of Fish and Game increase and expand its predatory animal control.

30. Division of Fish and Game develop a successful fish screen, and, if unable to develop such screen, it abandon the expense maintaining the unsuccessful fish screens

31. Fish and Game Commission urge the Federal Government to open the season on mudhens and eliminate restrictions in California on the taking of these birds.

32. Fish and Game Commission take necessary action to have all license agents placed on the consignment method of distribution.

Conclusions

Your committee was asked to investigate accusations made by the previous Interim Committee in its report to the Legislature (known as the "Call Report") regarding political activities of members of the State Fish and Game Commission.

We felt that this type of investigation did not come under the jurisdiction of our committee since we were appointed to investigate fish and game problems, not political activities of individuals. We, therefore, requested that the investigation be made by the Office of the Attorney General. The findings of that office seem to be to the effect that the accusations were mostly founded upon hearsay. A complete report of the investigation is in the hands of the Attorney General for the information of the Legislators.

The Joint Interim Committee has been asked by many sportsmen's organiaztions concerning game farms, game management areas, and the Fish and Game Commission's policy toward public shooting grounds. The Interim Committee did not have time to make any study or recommendations on these subjects.

We are recommending that this committee be continued for the next legislative interim, 1945-1947, for the purpose of making these studies, and taking up any additional subjects that might be requested by the sportsmen and other interested groups, and filing a complete report to the Legislature.

REPORT OF SENATE INTERIM COMMITTEE ON THE STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION AND LAWS ADMINISTERED THEREBY, APPOINTED PURSUANT TO THE TERMS OF SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 153 OF THE FIFTY-FIFTH REGULAR SESSION OF THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE

Committee Members:
Clarence C. Ward, Chairman

W. P. Rich
Frank W. Mixter
Harold J. Powers
Oliver J. Carter

January 25, 1945

To the Members of the Senate

Your Interim Committee on the State Board of Equalization, appointed pursuant to the terms of Senate Resolution No. 153 of the Fifty-fifth Regular Session of the California Legislature, submits herewith the following report:

Organization of said committee was completed at its first meeting in San Francisco on the twelfth day of August, 1943. Senator Ward was elected chairman of said committee and authorized to secure the necessary clerical help to carry on the functions of said committee.

Your committee thereafter proceeded to conduct investigations in accordance with said resolution heretofore mentioned and, during the course of its investigations, held the following meetings: September 23, 1943, State Capitol, Sacramento; October 19, 1943, State Capitol, Sacramento; December 3, 1943, State Capitol, Sacramento; February 25, 1944, State Capitol, Sacramento; March 31, 1944, State Capitol, Sacramento; July 19, 1944, State Capitol, Sacramento; December 14, 1944, State Capitol, Sacramento.

On March 31, 1944, and July 19, 1944, your committee met with the Interim Joint Legislative Committee on Tax Structure in order to define the functions of said committees and to prevent a duplication of work and, as a result thereof, your committee agreed to confine its activities to the departments administered by the State Board of Equalization and to prepare legislation covering changes in procedure, leaving to the Joint Committee on Tax Structure questions of taxation and such investigations as said committee might deem desirable in connection with the Transportation Tax Division.

Your committee, during the course of its investigations, conducted public hearings pertaining to the duties of the members of said board and the departmental heads thereof, securing detailed information in reference to the duties and functions of said board and the various departments as presently administered by said board.

The members of the State Board of Equalization, the executive secretary, and the departmental heads have been most cooperative in furnishing requested information or facts pertaining to the various departments.

The State Board of Equalization is divided into four districts, said districts being numbered First, Second, Third, and Fourth: George R. Reilly, of San Francisco, representing the First District; James H. Quinn, of Oakland, representing the Second District; Richard E. Collins, of Redding, representing the Third District; William G. Bonelli, of Los Angeles, representing the Fourth District—all of said members being elected from their respective districts—and Harry B. Riley, of Sacramento, the State Controller, as ex-officio member of said board, constituting the fifth member, being elected, however, by the people at large. Mr. Dixwell L. Pierce represents the board as executive secretary.

The following departments are administered by said board: Division of Research and Statistics; Accounting Department; Assessment Standards Division; Sales and Use Tax Division; Alcoholic Beverage Control Division; Motor Vehicle Fuel Tax Division; Transportation Tax Division; Valuation Division; and, in order to facilitate the work of said board and to properly carry out its functions, the State has been divided into 13 administrative districts covering tax administration and beverage control.

Your committee conducted an extensive investigation on liquor control as administered by our own State and secured data concerning the problem from the following States: Illinois, Minnesota, New Jersey, Indiana, Massachusetts, South Carolina, New York, Vermont, Louisiana, Maryland, Delaware, Connecticut, Missouri, Wisconsin, and Arizona.

Briefly, it is interesting to note that there are 31 so-called "open" States: Seven of which have a one-man commission; 11 have boards or commissions; and 13 are operated by one man under other State departments.

While it may be said that many of the accomplishments of the State Board of Equalization in the matter of alcoholic beverage control are creditable, there is, nevertheless, a lack of uniformity in administration and law enforcement throughout the State. The State Board of Equalization is primarily a taxing agency responsible for the major part of the State revenues and with a staff of more than 1,500 persons under it, exclusive of the Alcoholic Beverage Control personnel. Without any thought of reflecting on individuals, it seems obvious that an agency so constituted can not function as a control authority with respect to the regulation of the liquor traffic as effectively as could a single commissioner or a commission whose sole responsibility is that type of regulatory work.

The liquor problem alone requires about one-half of the time of the members of said board, and, as the State continues to increase in population, the liquor problem will increase proportionately, exacting more and more time from the members of said board, thereby necessitating a greater neglect to the tax functions administered by said board.

Your committee's early investigations disclosed that certain of the distilled spirits wholesalers were put to considerable expense in keeping records for the payment of excise tax, and, on this matter being brought to the attention of the State Board of Equalization, said board requested Mr. Frank N. Mason, Chief of the Alcoholic Beverage Tax Bureau, to conduct field investigations to determine whether or not the procedure could be simplified, and thereafter and as a result of said investigations, recommendations were made by Mr. Mason to the State Board of Equalization and said board, on the first day of April, 1944, amended Rules 2 and 4 of the Board's Rules and Regulations, permitting any distilled spirits wholesaler to make an application to the board for permission to prepay the distilled spirits excise tax on his inventory of distilled spirits on hand as of the first day of any calendar month, and for permission thereafter to pay the excise tax levied on sales of distilled spirits on the basis of subsequent purchases and acquisitions of distilled spirits by him.

Your committee has been advised that, by reason of said amendments to the Rules and Regulations of said Board, a number of the small wholesalers of distilled spirits have taken advantage of same and are making a considerable financial saving in so far as the keeping of detailed records is concerned.

Your committee's investigations disclose that certain functions of the Motor Vehicle Fuel Tax Division are duplicated by functions of the State Controller and that said duplication of duties could be eliminated by transferring the functions now performed by the Controller in connection with said departments to the State Board of Equalization.

Conclusions

Your committee has reached the conclusion that the licensing and control of liquor and the various tax functions now vested in the State Board of Equalization should not both be vested in said board or in any other board or department of government. That the two functions should be in separate departments.

That the duties of the State Controller, as same relate to the Motor Vehicle Fuel Tax Division and the Transportation Tax Division, should be transferred to the State Board of Equalization.

Recommendations

For the purpose of divorcing the licensing and control of liquor from the tax functions now administered by the State Board of Equalization, your Committee submits to the Legislature two proposals:

1. A constitutional amendment divorcing the licensing and control of liquor from the State Board of Equalization, and

2. A bill, or bills, creating a Department of Revenue to administer the tax functions of the State Board of Equalization, leaving the licensing and control of liquor with said board.

In the matter of the Motor Vehicle Fuel Tax Division and Transportation Tax Division, the functions of the State Controller should be transferred to the State Board of Equalization or to a Department of Revenue, if one be created by the Legislature.

Your committee is having prepared for consideration of the Legislature a constitutional amendment and the necessary bills to accomplish the objectives herein outlined.

Respectfully submitted,

CLARENCE C. WARD
W. P. RICH
FRANK W. MIXTER
HAROLD J. POWERS
OLIVER J. CARTER

MOTION TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Senator Hatfield moved that Senate Resolution No. 29, as it appears on page 170 of the Senate Journal of the Fourth Extraordinary Session, dated June 13, 1944, be printed in the Journal of this date.

Motion carried.

Senate Resolution No. 29

Relating to consideration of the postwar reconstruction and reemployment problems of the rural areas of the State

WHEREAS, Upon the termination of the war the return to the farms of a great number of persons now in the armed forces will cause serious displacement of agricultural workers, and will present a problem that is directly comparable to the anticipated problems of the more populous areas; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature at this session has provided for the initiation of a vast Postwar Building Program which, in the nature of things, will be largely carried out in the more populous areas; and

WHEREAS, By Chapter 565 of the Statutes of 1941 provision was made for a county highway program appropriation of one million five hundred thousand dollars ($1,500,000) to be allocated to the counties on the basis of motor vehicle registration, with a minimum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) to each county; and

WHEREAS, Under both the Postwar Building Program and the Postwar Highway Construction Program the rural areas will receive very little benefit, and unless provision is made to meet the requirements of the rural areas for postwar employment and rehabilitation there will result an unbalanced condition in which the problems of the rural areas will not be provided for; and

WHEREAS, A highway construction program covering the entire State would serve to spread the work throughout the State, without regard to population; and

WHEREAS, Numerous public works projects of great value to the State can probably be devised to be performed in rural areas; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Interim Committee on the Postwar Construction Program, and any other committee that may have cognizance of such matters, should give careful consideration to the needs of the rural areas of the State and the necessity of providing for projects in the Postwar Construction Program which will relieve the potential condition of unemployment with which they will be confronted at the termination of the war; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee, or committees, should consider the desirability of a greatly expanded State and county highway construction program and such other projects as can be carried out through the employment of surplus farm labor.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received, read, and ordered printed in the Journal:

STATE RECONSTRUCTION AND REEMPLOYMENT COMMISSION
SACRAMENTO 14, January 10, 1945

Honorable Earl Warren, Governor of California
Honorable Frederick F. Houser, President of the Senate
Honorable Charles W. Lyon, Speaker of the Assembly

By the provisions of Chapter 631, Statutes of 1943, the Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission is required to "submit an annual report and recommendations to the Governor and the Legislature."

The first annual report required of the commission would technically cover the fiscal year ended June 30, 1944. However, the principal activities of the commission have been carried on since that date.

From the time the Reconstruction and Reemployment Act became effective, August 4, 1943, to June 30, 1944, the activities were circumscribed by the need for preliminary investigations and by the limited appropriation available. The Legislature, at its Special Session in June, 1944, appropriated additional funds to the commission for its support and for two specific studies directed by statute.

In order to present adequate information, the report submitted herewith covers the activities of the commission from the date of its creation, August 4, 1943, to December 31, 1944.

Respectfully submitted,
STATE RECONSTRUCTION AND REEMPLOYMENT COMMISSION
C. H. PURCELL, Chairman
ALEXANDER R. HERON, Director of Reconstruction and Reemployment

REPORT OF THE JOINT LEGISLATIVE INTERIM COMMITTEE ON STUDY OF THE STATE TAX STRUCTURE (S.C.R. 10)

History

At the Session of 1943, a considerable surplus had accumulated in the State treasury, due to increased income resulting from war conditions. There was a demand for tax reduction from those who felt that a large State surplus is always a temptation to extravagance, and there was already evidence of a tendency to propose projects because "The State has lots of money".

At the same time, there were those who felt that now, while the State's income was up, was a proper time to build up a reserve to cushion the shock of a probable postwar decrease in revenue. A prudent business man keeps a reserve for emergencies. Also, it was felt that persons and firms who were profiting by war conditions, many of which persons and firms had come from elsewhere, should contribute from those profits to this reserve, since they would share in the benefits when emergency came.

For these reasons, the committee was created to study the State's tax structure. With conditions as they are, however, the committee did not think it desirable to recommend many drastic, far reaching changes now. A few, of considerable importance, have been made, and two (2) at least have been enacted into law.

The constitutional amendment allowing the State to accept money from the Federal Government in lieu of taxes on Federally-owned land opens the way for correction of this long standing problem. The Federal Government has already agreed to pay considerable sums and further legislation will undoubtedly be enacted by the Congress soon to cover more payments. It is estimated that over six million dollars per year is involved for California. The committee initiated this proposal with the help of some other groups, and it was overwhelmingly approved by the people.

The committee also made a detailed study of the Teachers Retirement Fund. That fund had long been actuarily unsound, but little had ever been done about it. As a result of the work of this committee, assisted by some other groups, a Retirement Act was enacted into law at the Special Session in 1944 that puts this fund on a sound basis. Special credit is due Assemblyman Lee T. Bashore, a member of this committee, and who is now deceased, for the great amount of very effective work done by him on this measure.

The committee recommended that the State itself buy the veterans bond issue if that bond issue was approved by the people, which it was later, thus tieing down a part of the accumulated surplus. The State also invested several million dollars in the future reserve of the Teachers Retirement Act, for like reasons.

Some consideration was also given to the present arbitrary allocation of the gas tax, by which some regions have more funds than required, while others have too little. They were unable, however, to make any recommendations for changes at this time. Another committee, we understand, is considering the matter of an increase in the gas tax.

The continuation of the present tax rates are recommended. Proposals may be made to increase rates to provide further subventions to cities and counties for postwar work. It is our belief that subventions to political subdivisions seldom result in permanent tax reductions for those subdivisions anywhere near commensurate with the added tax imposed on the State. Proposed subventions should be examined critically.

Tax Exempt Bonds

It is our belief that tax exempt bonds of political subdivisions are a vehicle for tax evasion. Also, they are a temptation to embark upon programs of expenditure because the bonds sell readily at a good premium, when such programs would not otherwise be undertaken. Of course, the Legislature can do little about it beyond presenting its views to the Congress.

We repeat, there is even gerater need for caution and economy now from the very fact that we have what seems to be a considerable surplus. We must not lose sight of the fact that postwar conditions might be such as to wipe out our surplus very quickly and put us in the red besides. Also, it is the part of patriotism as well as common sense to keep inflation in check by holding unnecessary spending down, and to save our money to provide employment later.

Tax Exemptions

Tax exemptions are a large and steadily increasing tax problem. We recommend a comprehensive study of the same with a view to curbing their increase.

The purpose of taxation is to meet the cost of Government without discouraging industry. When half or more of the profits are taken for taxes, there is little incentive to embark upon a speculative project like agriculture, mining, lumbering, or manufacturing. Yet, it is to these speculative projects that we must look after the war for employment. Public works can only prime the pump; the largest appropriation becomes exhausted, but a new enterprise continues to employ labor on and on.

The combined Federal, State and local tax bill of California taxpayers reaches the tremendous figure of nearly four and a quarter billion dollars per year or approximately thirty-five per cent (35%) of their income! Over one dollar out of every three of our income goes for taxes. The largest item, of course, is Federal taxes, amounting to over $3,370,000,000 dollars. Next, is the item of State taxes, over $545,000,000, with local taxes amounting to $316,000,000.

Common Property Taxes

Intentionally this report does not cover in adequate detail the vast problem assigned An attempt was made in the report to present, in as brief a fashion as possible, an overall view of some of the property tax problems in California. Certain questions are raised with suggestions for future study and subsequent report on items involved.

In our study of the Property Tax System in California, and in our search for answers to the questions and for remedies to the problems brought before us, we must guard against hasty recommendations for corrective action. The property tax in California is the oldest and most productive form of revenue. Its complexities of operation and its universal use by local government make it the very heart of our local fiscal structure. Improvements, of course, can be made and, if proven necessary, should be made, but change must be based upon fact and the general welfare, not upon wishful thinking and selfish consideration. In this report certain questions are raised regarding the Property Tax System; we must make further study to ascertain the facts of the situation

The following recommendations are made for further committee study. The report in detail appeared in the Tax Digest, October, 1943, a publication of the California Taxpayers' Association.

Recommendation 1. That State expenditures at all times must be carefully controlled and that the work of all agencies both public and private be aided and encouraged in all of their endeavors to keep State appropriations within reason.

Recommendation 2. That an intensive study be made of the independent taxing jurisdictions in the State with the purpose of making them more responsible to the property taxpayer.

Recommendation 3. That the State Controller be accorded the fullest encouragement to explore this field with emphasis upon adequate budgetary and fiscal control and reporting.

Recommendation 4. That data be developed on the extent of the problem of the equalization of values within counties and between counties and that facts be ascertained as to the possible remedial action which may be necessary.

Recommendation 5. That full review and study be given to the subventions now in operation and that a stiffening attitude be developed toward increasing unnecessarily, in number or amount, subsidies to local government.

Recommendation 6. That study be given to evaluating the proper services which government should perform for the community; to determine whether government should perform them and at what level of government.

Recommendation 7. That this committee go on record as urging the Federal Government to enact corrective legislation with respect to Federally-owned property which is off the local assessment rolls; that by proper resolution or personal appearance before current hearings of the House Public Lands Subcommittee in California this committee make appropriate recommendations for remedial legislation by Congress.

Recommendation 8. That all proposals for exemption from local property taxation be critically evaluated.

Bank and Corporation Franchise Tax Act

Under existing provisions of the Bank and Corporation Franchise Tax Act all corporations are taxed on their net income at a rate fixed by the Legislature. Banks and building and loan associations are taxed at this rate and also at an additional rate which is not fixed by the Legislature but is supposed to be determined each year by the Franchise Tax Commissioner. The additional rate is intended to represent in terms of percentage of net income the ratio which the total amount of personal property taxes paid by all other corporations bears to the total amount of the net income of all other corporations.

For a number of years this scheme of fixing a tax rate has been under attack, the contentions being made, that it is basically inequitable to tax one group of taxpayers at a rate determined by the amount of property owned by another group, that in any case no means are available whereby the Franchise Tax Commissioner can accurately fix the rate which the act contemplates and that the entire tax levy on financial corporations as a result may be held invalid.

The report of the Citizens' Tax Committee, appointed by the Governor in 1943, pointed out that, in the hearings before that committee, both the taxpayers involved and the Franchise Tax Commissioner's Office agreed that the present method of taxing financial institutions was unsatisfactory, and the committee recommended that the Legislature study the matter for the purpose of eliminating "the uncertainties and inequities" of the existing law. This the Legislature did, and after hearings by the appropriate Senate and Assembly committees and by a Special Subcommittee of the Senate, passed Senate Bill No. 341 which would have imposed a fixed rate of tax on banks, building and loan associations, and other financial corporations at 1 per cent in excess of the basic rate on corporations. This bill the Governor failed to sign. In doing so, however, he did not question the fairness or propriety of the proposed change, but, on the contrary, recognized possible inequalities in the existing provisions of the Bank and Corporation Franchise Tax Act and pointed out that his failure to sign it, along with various tax reduction measures with which he grouped it, was due to financial necessity and his belief that tax reductions already approved would not allow for any other changes in the tax laws at that session. Current reports from the State Controller and Director of Finance on the condition of the State's surplus show clearly that the considerations which prompted the Governor to withhold his approval of this proposal two (2) years ago are no longer pertinent.

The Board of Directors of the Federal Home Loan Bank has recently adopted a resolution pointing out that savings and loan associations operating in California are required under this act to pay a tax on net income "at a rate almost twice that imposed upon business corporations generally and (that) no satisfactory reason has ever been given why such associations should be taxed at a higher rate" and urging that the matter be corrected by the Legislature.

Your committee held a number of hearings on this particular aspect of the Bank and Corporation Franchise Tax Act which were attended not only by representatives of the groups of taxpayers involved but also by representatives of the Director of Finance and of the Franchise Tax Commissioner. Neither the representatives of the Director of Finance nor of the Franchise Tax Commissioner attempted to defend the present method of taxing financial institutions. Nothing was presented to the committee showing that the measure adopted by both houses of the Legislature at the last session was not an equitable solution of the problem, nor was any other solution suggested.

It was pointed out to the committee and appears to be unquestioned that under the existing method, the tax rate on financial corporations goes up as the net income of other corporations goes down, and goes down as the net income of other corporations goes up, and that the rate actually imposed on financial corporations bears no relation to the gross or net income of such corporations, to their ability to pay, to the amount of property owned by them, or to the value of their franchise, or to any other factor which is ordinarily employed as a measure of taxation. It also appears that the commissioner at best can only approximate the rate in applying the formula set forth in the statute, but can not determine it with accuracy.

This method of taxing banks, building and loan associations and other financial corporations was conceived in an effort to compensate for the fact that banks pay no property taxes upon tangible personal property. The State is prohibited by Acts of Congress from levying such taxes upon National banks and it has consistently, therefore, not levied such taxes upon State banks. No other reason has been presented to the committee why these corporations should pay a higher rate of tax on net income than other corporations. This being true, it would appear that any additional rate should be so fixed as to produce in revenue approximately what is lost by reason of this exemption. The banks have presented to the committee convincing evidence prepared by certified public accountants showing that if banks paid taxes on tangible personal property the amount of revenue would, on the average, be something less than one per cent (1%) of net income. This being true, it would appear that the measure approved by the last Legislature fixing the rate on such corporations at one per cent (1%) above the rate imposed on other corporations would be fair both to the State, the particular groups of taxpayers affected and all other taxpayers.

Based upon the net income reported by financial corporations in 1944 and upon the rate fixed by the Franchise Tax Commissioner for 1944 the committee is advised that the adoption of this proposal by the forthcoming Legislature would result in collections from banks and other financial corporations during the forthcoming biennium of approximately $7,499,310, in lieu of $8,298,620 if the present method is continued and is not invalidated by the courts in suits now pending. This would involve a reduction of less than one per cent (1%) in contemplated collections under the Bank and Corporation Franchise Tax Act. The reduction would be somewhat less in the forthcoming biennium than later, as any change could not be effective as to taxes already accrued.

Evidence submitted to this committee plainly revealed that the present system of commercial vehicle taxation is inequitable, discriminatory, and unsound. Collection is highly involved and costly.

Immediate adjustment and equalization of truck taxes is highly desirable and necessary, if sound highway transportation system is to be preserved for the California public.

Trucks are playing a tremendous part in our State's war effort. A recent Railroad Commission report indicates that 64.8 per cent of all revenue freight moving intrastate between points in California is transported by "for hire" motor transport.

In a report dated November 15, 1944, the Department of Highways stated "The service which this transport performs is no less vital to our peace time pursuits than that which it is now giving in the time of war emergency" (page 9).

The need and scope of trucking service in California is broader than in any State of the Union. Our motor transport problems can not be compared with those of any other States. A broad postwar study based on the economic needs of California is most desirable.

We recommend that, as soon as feasible after the cessation of hostilities, a resurvey of truck taxation should be made by competent engineers, with the view of giving the public of California the most efficient, modern, highway transportation system possible at fair and reasonable rates. The capable engineering staff of the Railroad Commission of California might well be given this task as their experts have made thorough studies of the transportation needs of California. The cost of a study so made, would entail little cost as the commission already has much data and information.

We further urge that immediate steps be taken to correct the present inequitable and highly discriminatory system of taxing commercial vehicles.

The committee was given $6,000 first and a further sum of $5,000 later, of which $5344.34 remains unexpended.

We have held nearly all of our meetings at the State Capitol, since we believed that to be the most economical and convenient place, both for the members and for persons desiring to attend the meetings.

We also wish to express our appreciation for the cooperation and assistance received from many persons and groups too numerous to mention here.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Shelley asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following Statement by the Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance printed in the Journal:

STATEMENT BY SENATE INTERIM COMMITTEE ON UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Your Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance created by Senate Resolution No. 143 (Fifty-fifth Session) on May 5, 1943, and continued by Senate Resolution No. 22 (Fifty-sixth Session) on January 16, 1945, takes this occasion to set forth a brief summary of some of its conclusions and recommendations, the reasons and bases for which will be stated in the final report to be submitted shortly after the reconvening of this Fifty-sixth Regular Session.

From the preliminary report submitted by your committee on June 15, 1944, it will be seen that California is now the third largest State in the Union, having developed during this recent war time period into a highly industrialized and populated area. The total number of workers employed has increased by more than 1,000,000 since 1940, with a total labor force today of 3,500,000 workers. Likewise, civilian population has increased by 1,000,000 bringing the total number of civilian inhabitants to nearly 8,000,000. It is apparent that with a tremendously expanded labor force and population, California will face a severe postwar readjustment problem.

In the light of these employment and unemployment conditions, your committee has endeavored to appraise the adequacy of the Unemployment Insurance System of this State. We have found serious limitations both in the provisions as well as in the administration of the Unemployment Insurance Act. The recommendations submitted herewith are made with full appreciation of the heavy burden that unemployment insurance must carry after the war, and with a clear recognition that the Unemployment Insurance Law of this State is a part of a Nationwide system which must, to survive, retain marks of integration and uniformity and, at the same time, envisage a progressive development.

It is the unanimous recommendation of your committee at this time that the California Unemployment Insurance Act be amended to provide as follows:

1. That the worker contributions imposed by the Unemployment Insurance Act should be used to establish a system to pay benefits to individuals who are unemployed because of illness or injury, for which no compensation is otherwise made;

2. That the workers employed by establishments of one or more should be covered by unemployment insurance.

3. That benefits should be available for every eligible worker for a uniform period of 26 weeks;

4. That children under the minimum age at which a full time work permit may be granted should not be considered in the labor market and therefore should be excluded from coverage under the Unemployment Insurance Act;

5. That workers in certain nonprofit organizations should be protected by unemployment insurance and the present exclusion of this group be removed;

6. That the variable disqualification provisions of the present California law should be adjusted to conform with the uniform disqualification provisions of the Veterans' G. I. Bill;

7. That provision should be made to provide dependent allowances to those workers who are the head of a family;

8. That a Bureau of Education and Public Instruction should be established in the Department of Employment to promote a better understanding of the provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Act;

9. That an investigating staff be established in the Department of Employment to insure proper enforcement of the law and to prevent and discourage the filing of claims in violation of the Unemployment Insurance Act;

10. That provision be made for greater interstate cooperation in the administration and enforcement of the Unemployment Insurance Law of each State;

11. That no large war expanded industries should be extended a tax rate below the general rate for a two-year period;

12. That the present two-week waiting period should be reduced to one week;

13. That provision be made for establishing tri partite appeal tribunals in the various local areas throughout the State.

14. That the commission be given greater authority to determine whether or not workers who file claims for benefits are in the labor market when their prior earnings reveal short periods of employment.

Respectfully submitted.

LOS ANGELES OFFICE: 591 Chamber of Commerce Building, Los Angeles, California.
SACRAMENTO OFFICE: 637 Forum Building, Sacramento, California.

To the Honorable Governor, and
To the Legislature of the State of California.

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 19432, of Article 2, Chapter 4, Division 8, Business and Professions Code, the California Horse Racing Board presents herewith its biennial report covering the period from December 1, 1942, to November 30, 1944.

The receipts of this board from all sources during the period covered by this report totaled $5,663,379.87. As provided by law, the revenue received by the board has been forwarded to the State Treasurer to be credited, as provided by statute, $4,740,549.26 to Fair and Exposition Fund and $922,830.61 to General Fund. The California Horse Racing Board derives its revenue from collection of percentages of pari-mutuel pools handled at licensed race meetings, from the fees collected for certain licenses and registrations and from fines levied against associations licensed to conduct race meetings.

The revenue derived by the State for this biennium shows an increase of $1,069,543.61 over the biennium ending November 30, 1942. This increase was occasioned by the partial resumption of racing during the period covered by this report.

At the 1941 Session of the Legislature the support appropriation of the board was increased to $75,000 per annum to provide for much needed increase in personnel owing to continued expansion of racing in the State. However, in view of the curtailment of racing, and in line with the general effort to reduce expenditures to the minimum during the war emergency, the board, by strict economy and reduction of personnel where possible, kept its expenditures well within the old support appropriation of $30,000 per annum. The cost of administering the act for the biennium ending November 30, 1944, was $49,100.71. (The members of this board receive no compensation for their services.) The net revenue to the State was $5,614,279.16.

As an indication of the progress of the sport of thoroughbred racing in California prior to the curtailment in 1942 there is shown below a statement of revenue received by the State each fiscal year since racing was legalized:

85th Fiscal Year, 1933-1934—Total revenue to State	$259,657 36
86th Fiscal Year, 1934-1935—Total revenue to State	1,005,103 36
87th Fiscal Year, 1935-1936—Total revenue to State	1,587,373 44
88th Fiscal Year, 1936-1937—Total revenue to State	1,933,259 84
89th Fiscal Year, 1937-1938—Total revenue to State	2,661,142 32
90th Fiscal Year, 1938-1939—Total revenue to State	3,030,689 56
91st Fiscal Year, 1939-1940—Total revenue to State	2,832,230 66
92nd Fiscal Year, 1940-1941—Total revenue to State	3,799,115 10
93rd Fiscal Year, 1941-1942—Total revenue to State	1,515,435 18
94th Fiscal Year, 1942-1943—Total revenue to State	1,077,685 21
95th Fiscal Year, 1943-1944—Total revenue to State	2,372,392 16
Total	$22,074,084 19

Owing to the uncertainties prevailing at this time as to the future of racing no estimate can be made as to the probable revenue for the present fiscal year.

With the exception of specific appropriation of $75,000 for the support of the Racing Board and $30,000 to the Department of Finance all revenue credited to the Fair and Exposition Fund is allocated to State, county, agricultural district and citrus fairs, and to our agricultural schools and colleges, for their support and improvement. Many of the organizations are largely dependent upon these funds for their support and continuation of activities so vital to the agricultural progress of the State.

The following taken from the Department of Finance report of distribution of revenue derived from racing for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944, will be of especial interest to those citizens of the State who are engaged in agricultural, horticultural, livestock and other activities benefited by the operation of our fairs and colleges:

[2] Appropriation of $100,000 annually from these funds to 1-A District Agricultural Association under Section 19626.5 Business and Professions Code.

The allocation of these funds to the State, county and agricultural district fairs of California carries out in a substantial manner the declared purpose of the Racing Act—encouragement of agriculture and breeding. Prior to the curtailment of racing, on account of the war emergency, the progress and expansion of the breeding industry in the State was highly gratifying, many millions of dollars having been invested in the industry. The breeding stock of the State was being constantly improved by the addition of new stallions and brood mares from other sections of this Country and abroad, and many new breeding farms were being established. The curtailment of racing is, of course, having a serious effect on the industry.

The provisions of the Racing Act, that 10 per cent of the first money of every purse won by a horse bred in the State of California shall be paid to the breeder of such animal, and that there shall be at least one race each day limited to horses foaled in California, has been strictly complied with. This bonus to breeders, together with many valuable stakes established for California bred horses constituted a splendid inducement to California breeders, and created a ready market for California-bred horses.

The record shows that for the biennium covered by this report, the sum of $2,960,910 was paid in purses and stakes by the licensed associations and fairs operating under license by this board and that by far the major portion was won by our western breeders and owners. During that same period California bred horses won 1,025 races run on California tracks.

This board and the racing associations of the State have cooperated fully and effectively with the armed forces and Federal agencies during the war emergency to the end that there be no damage to the war effort as a result of racing. The two race tracks operating during the period covered by this report made possible the distribution of large sums to war effort service organizations and to other worthy charitable agencies. The California Jockey Club contributed $2,516,283.35 from the six meetings held at Bay Meadows and the Hollywood Turf Club contributed $1,013,481.26 from one meeting of 34 days held at Hollywood Park.

Herewith is the financial statement of this board for the period December 1, 1942, to November 30, 1944:

REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, Sacramento, March 6, 1945

To the Honorable President and Members of the Senate

Report of the Attorney General of California to the Senate and Assembly, in Response to the Request contained in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 13.

In Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 13, adopted in the Senate January 16, 1945, and in the Assembly January 26, 1945, it is recited that the studies and investigations of the Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Japanese Resettlement and the Assembly Interim Committee on the Japanese Problems indicate that there may have been numerous evasions and violations of the provisions of the Alien Land Act of 1920 and that it would appear that there is need for a reexamination and survey of real property transfers, particularly in the agricultural areas of the State, with a view to discovering evasions and violations of the Alien Land Act; and the Attorney General of California is requested to advise the Senate and Assembly "What appropriations of money may be needed for the conduct of such an examination and survey by his department and what changes, if any, in the law may be necessary or desirable to facilitate the consummation of the survey and the prosecution of evasions and violations discovered during the course of it."

The following report of the Attorney General of California is respectfully submitted in response to the request thus expressed:

I

This report will be addressed first to the inquiry as to what appropriations may be needed for the conduct of an examination and survey of the character and extent indicated in the concurrent resolution.

It should be stated at the outset that any answer to this question must be dependent upon various factors required to be taken into consideration. Some of the factors upon which such an estimate must be predicated are of necessity uncertain, some even highly speculative. The following are among the more realistic factors:

1. The scope or extent of the areas to be explored.
2. The degree of exhaustiveness of the investigation or survey.
3. The character of the work necessary to uncover violations.
4. The qualifications of investigators for effective results.
5. The number of investigators needed and the rate of their compensation.
6. The time required to perform the work.

This enumeration of factors calls for a certain amount of amplification.

1. The precise number of counties of the State in which lands have been illegally acquired by ineligible aliens is not known. In February of 1944, letters were sent by the Attorney General to the district attorney of each of over 40 counties which had been called upon, following Pearl Harbor, to submit reports as to the Japanese occupancies (not restricted to ownerships) of lands therein. Copies of these letters have been furnished the Senate Fact-Finding Committee. In this letter the Attorney General urged these district attorneys to actively engage in the program, inaugurated by him, of investigating violations of the Alien Land Law and to commence escheat proceedings in every instance in which satisfactory evidence could be found. The response to this request for the wholehearted undertaking of this work and participation in this program was not encouraging in a large majority of these counties. It is not known how many failed to undertake this work for the reason that no ownership of lands by ineligible aliens existed in that county. In seven of the counties of the State a limited amount of investigative work has been done and an appreciable number of escheat proceedings have been filed. These proceedings are at various stages; in some cases judgments escheating the lands have already been rendered. There is reason to believe that in at least twice that number of counties there exists a fertile field for investigation, with good possibility of uncovering violations of the Alien Land Law. It may be said with considerable assurance that in at least five of the seven counties where investigations have already proceeded with good result the possibilities of uncovering violations have scarcely been scratched, and that in at least 10 additional counties there exist more than reasonable prospects of finding illegal ownerships, if vigorous and intelligent investigation is applied. It may readily be that scattered violations will be found in other counties as well. It is suggested that the request made of the Secretary of State and the district attorneys in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 14 may result in reports being made which will be helpful to some extent in ascertaining the number of counties in which exhaustive investigations should be carried on. This factor, viz., the number of counties to be surveyed, is an important one in arriving at any estimate of cost.

2. The exhaustiveness of the investigations to be carried on is likewise an important factor. A survey, for example, which would only disclose the number of record ownerships of lands in Japanese names would only be preliminary, even though it may be the result of a thorough search of the records of the county recorder, the county assessor and the clerk of the probate court (in guardianship cases). In a few counties such surveys have already been accomplished, but they are still a long way from uncovering evidence of the real or actual ownership underneath, which is necessary to establish violations of the law and support an escheat. Such preliminary surveys require effort, time and money, but they serve largely only to eliminate the chaff from the possible wheat.

3. This brings us to a consideration of what sort of investigation is necessary for effective results. In all cases title searches are essential, almost always requiring running back the chain of title with great care. The investigation of bank accounts, credit statements and financial transactions of various kinds is one of the most fruitful fields of investigation. Dealings with produce companies, seed and fertilizer sales agencies, and water and power companies are all important sources of information and must be explored to ascertain who was the true owner. Neighbors must be interviewed, real estate brokers questioned as to the facts surrounding purchases, and various other agencies and business concerns with whom the operator of the land and its owner of record have transacted business must be contacted. In the absence of a fortuitous "tip-off" from a chance informer, which is a rare occurrence, almost every phase of the suspect's life and activities must be investigated in order to discover evidence of subterfuge and evasion of the law. And even after the most exhaustive investigation possible it may be that the evidence uncovered falls short of meeting the requirements of legal evidence admissable upon a trial of the escheat proceeding.

4. Some comment as to the qualifications which should be possessed by the investigator for effective results is pertinent here. Although perfection is not attainable, in order to operate successfully the investigator should have some knowledge and experience in the field of title searching, he should know something about public records, he should understand how to examine banking records, he should have some business training and know where to look for information as to a person's financial dealings, and he should possess the facility for eliciting desired information from those he contacts. Such investigators are not easy to obtain, but upon the qualifications possessed depends the number required and the time consumed in performing the work.

5. The number of investigators which would be required to make an acceptable report depends, as has been stated, upon their ability and upon the thoroughness of the job done. At the present time the Attorney General has an investigator at work in a county which probably has more possibilities of uncovering Alien Land Law violations than any in the State. He has been at work continuously now for a little over three months. He possesses more than ordinary qualifications, having been formerly an investigator for the Alien Property Custodian of the Federal Government. During the period he has worked exclusively on Alien Land Law matters he has uncovered three very promising cases, two of which are nearing the stage of filing proceedings for escheat. His compensation, which includes a per diem and expenses, averages approximately $120 per week. Roughly speaking, this amounts to about $500 monthly, or, if continuously employed $6,000 a year. This does not include his transportation in the field. As another example, the Attorney General had an able investigator not at present engaged in this work, who worked diligently for almost four months in the investigation of one case. It gives promise of bringing about the escheat of a valuable piece of land. His compensation was the same as that of the first investigator mentioned.

6. There is no exact measuring stick by which the length of time required to be devoted to a case can be foreseen. It is a conservative statement that two full time investigators, of above the average ability, could work for a year, and probably longer, in each of the two counties referred to without exhausting the possibility of uncovering violations and without thoroughly covering the field. In each of the 13 other counties referred to, one investigator assigned to it could work for an indefinite period with the possibility of fruitful results. It is quite probable that there are other counties which require thorough investigation just as urgently as the 15 referred to.

From the foregoing discussion of the factors necessary to be considered in making an estimate of cost of investigation, the difficulties of naming any definite sum are apparent. Fifteen investigators, compensated on the scale paid the two mentioned, would require an expenditure of some $90,000 annually. If investigators could be found who reside in the county in which their services would be performed, a saving could be made in the item of living expenses. This is not always possible. Extreme difficulty has been encountered in finding men of satisfactory qualifications for this work. In San Diego County, where more proceedings have been filed than in any other county, the investigator, a former investigator for a Federal agency and a man of excellent qualifications, has just been inducted into the armed forces and no one has been found to continue his work.

If a real workmanlike and State-wide job of investigation were made, embracing each county in which there is reason to believe that land was illegally acquired by ineligible aliens, it will be seen that the cost could assume substantial proportions. It could easily mount to $100,000 annually, or even more, depending entirely upon the character and exhaustiveness of the work done, the ability of the investigators and the local situations disclosed.

It is understood that this figure includes only field work, and does not include the cost of services of members of the legal staff of the Attorney General regularly assigned to escheat proceedings. At the present time only one member of the legal staff is so engaged, but the volume of this work could readily employ the services of two additional deputies with the approach of trials and the heavy appeal work anticipated.

It should also be understood that at this time the amount of outlay can not be considered with relation to any anticipated amounts of eventual recovery through the escheat of land illegally acquired and their sale by the State. This is for two reasons—first, the practical question as to whether sufficient proof can be adduced to satisfy the courts in all cases, and second, the uncertainties which always exist as to what the higher courts may ultimately decide upon the numerous legal points which are being and will be raised. For example, it is even being contended that the Federal Government, through its amendment of the naturalization law, has now made all aliens eligible to citizenship. Some of the points raised may be merely obstructive, others may be regarded by the courts as having substance. In all events, the fact remains that, up to this time, the escheat provisions of the California Alien Land Law have never been satisfactorily adjudicated, and that some of the points now being raised have never before even been presented to the courts.

II

This brings us to the second inquiry contained in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 13, viz. that as to "what changes, if any, in the law may be necessary or desirable to facilitate the consummation of the survey and the prosecution of evasions and violations discovered during the course of it."

In a report made by the Attorney General to the Chairman of the Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Japanese Resettlement under date of December 20, 1944, (a copy of which is attached) it was recommended that the Alien Land Law be amended to provide for reimbursement of counties for expenses incurred by them in connection with proceedings for the escheat of the fee simple of land unlawfully acquired in the same manner that Section 8 provides for reimbursement where leasehold interests are escheated. For some reason not known to us, probably simple inadvertence, when the latter section was amended in 1943 no similar provision was made to cover proceedings where the land itself is escheated. A suitable amendment to accomplish this (copy of which is attached) was later furnished the Chairman of the Senate Committee, but we do not find that it was introduced. We do find three bills which were introduced to amend Section 7.5, relating to this subject. These are Senate Bill No. 415, Senate Bill No. 887 and Assembly Bill 1682—the two latter bills being identical in their provisions. None of these bills follow the provisions of Section 8 of the act, which provide for reimbursement where leaseholds are escheated. Senate Bill No. 415 directs that one-half the proceeds of escheated lands be paid into the General Fund of the State and the other one-half be paid to the county, to be expended only for investigation and enforcement of, and prosecutions for violations of the Alien Land Law. The other two bills provide that one-half shall be paid into the county treasury and the other one-half shall be placed by the State Treasurer in the School Fund. While the method of disposing of the proceeds realized from escheated land is a matter of legislative policy and properly one for the Legislature to decide, it would seem that Senate Bill No. 415 might be expected to stimulate effort in the carrying out of the provisions of the Alien Land Law with greater effect than the plan incorporated in the other measures. It may be observed that the plan proposed by the Attorney General would provide a uniform plan throughout the Statute and that no insistent objection has been made, to his knowledge, to that adopted in 1943, after which the proposed amendment was patterned.

There are four other bills pending which affect the Alien Land Law. Senate Bill No. 414 is an appropriation bill designed to implement the Attorney General with funds for "the investigation, discovery and prosecution of violations or evasions" of the Alien Land Law. It is recommended that there be added, following the word "State" in line 9, the words "and for the instituting and carrying on of escheat proceedings in all proper cases." It could not then be contended that the intent was to limit expenditures to the enforcement of the penal provisions.

Senate Bill No. 139 places the duty of bringing escheat proceedings solely upon the Attorney General, by deleting the words "or district attorney of the proper county" now contained in Sections 7 and 8. It was apparently the intent of the sponsors that a primary responsibility be thus fixed upon the Attorney General, although it is provided that the district atorney shall cooperate with and assist him when requested. In as much as the district attorney has more intimate knowledge of local conditions, is better equipped to handle matters in the superior courts in most instances and his participation as counsel of record and joint effort with the Attorney General is desirable, it is recommended that the new matter added in

> When requested by the Attorney General it shall be the duty of the district attorney of the proper county to join him in the enforcement of all the provisions of this act, and in the investigation of violations thereof and the instituting and carrying on of escheat proceedings under this section.

This would then provide for the district attorney's exerting active effort in preliminary investigations and the preparation of escheat proceedings, as well as joining and participating as attorney of record. It would seem desirable also, if agreeable to the sponsors of the bill, that some language be included to indicate that, while the primary responsibility is to rest upon the Attorney General, he is to act in a sense as the coordinator of this work and the duty rests upon the district attorneys to carry on active work under his direction. Experience has demonstrated that active effort on the part of the district attorney of the county in which the land is situated is absolutely essential to success. A fixing of a definite degree of responsibility on his part, as well as that of the Attorney General, is necessary.

Senate Bill No. 161 amends Section 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which imposes a 10-year statute of limitations upon the State in actions brought "in respect to any real property," by providing that this section shall not apply to proceedings under the Alien Land Law. While the intent of this measure is good and the result sought to be achieved highly desirable, the opinion has been expressed that it constitutes an acknowledgment of weakness, or at least uncertainty. Recommendation as to this bill is reserved, pending decision of several superior courts upon demurrers which have raised the question of the bar of this section. It should be stated that in one county the court has already ruled that this section does not apply to escheat proceedings.

Assembly Bill No. 2130 contains numerous amendments to the Alien Land Law. Among them are provisions apparently aimed at the so-called dual citizenship status of certain Japanese, also provisions including watercraft within the enumeration of property forbidden to be acquired and made escheatable. Sections 8 and 9 of the bill are designed to implement the Attorney General in the enforcement of the Alien Land Law. No recommendation is made as to this measure at this time, pending further consideration of the effect of its provisions and their constitutionality.

So far as suggestions, invited by the Resolution, as to amendments to the Alien Land Law necessary or desirable at this time, are concerned, a statement of the position of the Attorney General should be made. In some respects it would be highly desirable to amend the statute substantially even to the extent of rewriting some of its basic provisions. However, there exist several hazards to its revision or to the amendment of its important and basic provisions at this stage. One of these arises from the fact that the law, in respect of its escheat provisions, has never been satisfactorily adjudicated. In fact, thus far there are only two decisions of the California Supreme and Appellate Tribunals directly passing upon the nature and effect of the escheat proceeding. These proceedings, therefore, are still more or less in the pioneering stage so far as their known legal status is concerned. To revise or amend important provisions at this time might add to such confusion and uncertainty as exists, and deprive the courts of such judicial guidance as has been furnished. This is well illustrated by the fact that the amendment made in 1943, repealing the conspiracy section and adding a new section which makes any violation of the statute a criminal offense, has been avidly embraced by those who challenge the escheat provisions, and employed by them in their argument that the 1-year statute of limitation applying in the case of a penalty or forfeiture (C.C.P. Sec. 340, Subd. 2) has thus been made to apply to escheat proceedings. It may become desirable to repeal Section 10a of the statute because of this potential impediment, although up to this time the superior courts have ruled with us in our contention that, upon the authority of People vs. Nakamura, 125 Cal. App. 268, no penalty or forfeiture is involved. However, at the time the Nakamura case was decided no violation of the act, e.g., illegal acquisition of land, was made an offense—the only crime denounced being that of conspiracy to violate.

The second reason why the amendment of the act in essential particulars should be approached with extreme caution lies in the difficulty, if not the impossibility, of giving the amendments other than prospective effect. There is serious question as to whether amendments such as might be desirable could be made retroactive. This becomes highly important by reason of the effect such amendments would have or might be held to have, upon some 28 pending proceedings which are the result of extensive investigation and painstaking preparation. In a report of this character it is impossible to develop all of the legal questions and problems present, but suffice it to say that they are not few in number. It will be readily appreciated that perhaps the most defiant and substantial evasions of the Alien Land Law which can be expected have already taken place, many of them as long as two decades ago. The present mature age of the ineligible aliens in this Country and State, the fact that most of them have American-born children who have now reached the age of majority and can acquire and own land without legal restraint, and the fact that all aliens have now become quite Alien Land Law conscious by reason of the program which has been conducted during the past year all serve to indicate that the principal objective must

In addition to the foregoing 25 proceedings now pending, proceedings in new cases are now approaching the filing stage in the Counties of Fresno, San Diego and Ventura.

The pending cases above enumerated are at various stages. The problem of acquiring jurisdiction is not a simple one. In addition to publishing notice, each defendant has been personally served with process whenever he could be located within the boundaries of the United States, whether in a relocation center or at some place in the Nation to which he has been released. In numerous instances continuances have been sought and obtained by the attorneys for the Japanese defendants; in some cases the Federal Government has requested continuances, and we have, of course, granted all such; in other cases the absence of Japanese American-born citizens (who are necessary parties) by reason of service in our armed forces has compelled a continuance, under the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Act. The effort has been to bring all cases to issue and trial as soon as the law and the interests of justice will permit.

(3). Mention should be made of six counties which have not heretofore pursued investigations but whose district attorneys have recently undertaken the investigation of some promising cases, with the view to the preparation of proceedings. These are the Counties of Contra Costa, Kings, Madera, Merced, San Luis Obispo, and Stanislaus. Santa Barbara County has also promised a report of the results of its investigations. In some counties, as for example those of Riverside and Tulare, the district attorneys state that they are without sufficient personnel to undertake this work. In some of these counties we feel that reasonable prospects exist of uncovering violations.

(4). With the thought that you may be interested in the review made by the Attorney General of the Alien Land Law and the present program involving escheat proceedings, we enclose a copy of his speech before the California Land Title Association at its annual conference in Pasadena on June 7, 1944. This may afford some information useful to you.

(5). It is our belief that the Alien Land Law should be amended to include the same provision for reimbursement of counties for the expenses incurred by them in connection with proceedings for the escheat of the fee simple of land unlawfully acquired (Section 7, Alien Land Law) as that added to Section 8 of the law in 1943 for reimbursement where leasehold interests are escheated. For some reason not known to us, probably simple inadvertence, the latter section was amended, while the section to which recourse is necessarily made to escheat the land itself was not implemented with this legal authorization for reimbursement. In our discussions with the various district attorneys we have found that a like amendment to Section 7 will be satisfactory to them. We believe that the authorization should provide for reimbursement in all proceedings had subsequent to January 1, 1942, which would include two completed cases—in Fresno and Stanislaus Counties—which have yielded appreciable recoveries to the State. We will be glad to furnish such an amendment to you for introduction.

(6). The matter of strengthening the existing sections of the Alien Land Law by the addition of certain desirable provisions has been under study by this office. There are certain dangers involved in making changes at this time, which arise both from constitutional considerations and by reason of the difficulty of giving the new provisions other than prospective effect. The subject is being explored and further expression will be forthcoming as to our views.

Trusting that the information furnished herewith may be of service to you, we are

An act to amend Section 7.5 of an act entitled "An act relating to the rights, powers and disabilities of aliens and of certain companies, associations and corporations with respect to property in this State, providing for escheats in certain cases, prescribing the procedure therein, requiring reports of certain property-holders to facilitate the enforcement of this act, prescribing penalties for violation of the provisions hereof, and repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict herewith," submitted by initiative and adopted and approved by the electors of the State of California, November 2, 1920, as amended, relating to sales of real property by the State and the reimbursement of counties for costs and expenses expended.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 7.5 of the act cited in the title hereof is amended to read:

Sec. 7.5. Whenever any real property is acquired by the State by reason of the violation of this act, either by escheat or by other method, the State Controller is authorized, upon such terms and subject to such conditions as in his judgment is for the best interests of the State, to sell the real property for cash or on deferred payments. The sale may be at public auction or at private sale. If the sale is made at public auction, it shall be made to the highest bidder, after notice thereof, stating the terms of sale, given in the manner and for the time prescribed in Section 1274 of the Code of Civil Procedure. If the real property is sold at private sale, the sale and all the terms thereof shall be subject to the approval of the Director of Finance.

Whenever, in the judgment of the State Controller, he can not immediately sell such real property to the best interests of the State, he may take possession of the real property, and rent or lease for cash rental or share rental, manage, repair, insure against fire, and otherwise operate and control the property until such time as an advantageous sale can be made.

Upon receipt of the proceeds of any sale made pursuant to this section or upon the recovery of any money resulting from an escheat proceeding, the State Controller shall pay therefrom all reasonable costs and expenses expended by the county in which the escheat proceeding was brought in preparing, filing and prosecuting such escheat cause. Such payment shall be made to the county treasurer of such county, upon a verified claim filed with the State Controller by the district attorney of said county and approved by a judge of the superior court therein. This provision for the reimbursement of counties for costs and expenses incurred shall apply to the proceeds of any sale or any recovery of money resulting from escheat proceedings had at any time subsequent to January 1, 1942. In the event the State Controller shall not immediately sell such real property but shall rent, lease or operate the same until an advantageous sale can be made, as above provided, such reimbursement shall be made from the first proceeds of such renting, leasing or operation.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolution was offered:

By Senators Swing, Dilworth, and Hulse:

Senate Resolution No. 61

Relating to public lands on and near the Colorado River

WHEREAS, The State of California owns many acres of public lands bordering on or near the Colorado River; and

WHEREAS, There is a vast acreage of Federal public lands in that area; and

WHEREAS, Existing and proposed dams enhance the value of such lands and will make the lands bordering upon the impounded waters desirable for recreational areas; and

WHEREAS, The ever increasing demand for recreational privileges and for public places suitable for use in connection with the recreational and rehabilitation program now in the course of preparation for the returning members of the armed forces, making it desirable and proper that all lands now owned or controlled by the State, or that may be acquired by exchange for Federal lands suitable for recreational purposes, should be preserved in State control for public use; and

WHEREAS, The regulation and control of the Colorado River has created lakes and ponded water, which abound in fish and are rapidly becoming the natural feeding ground for ducks, geese and other wild migratory birds; and

WHEREAS, Much of the lands adjoining these lakes and ponded areas are by reason of the mild climatic conditions and attractiveness of these lakes and ponded areas peculiarly suitable for recreational purposes; and

WHEREAS, The lands within Counties of San Bernardino and Riverside bordering upon these lakes and ponded areas are still in a state of undevelopment and largely State or Federal lands, and should be acquired and preserved in the interest and for the use and benefit of the public before they pass into private ownership; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the State Lands Commission be and it is hereby requested to withdraw from sale or lease all lands within the Counties of San Bernardino and Riverside bordering on or in the close vicinity of the Colorado River, under its jurisdiction and control; and, be it further

Resolved, That the State Lands Commission be and it is hereby requested to exchange other lands under its jurisdiction and situated elsewhere in the State for Federal public lands bordering on or near the Colorado River, particularly where the acquisition of Federal land will vest title in the State to complete blocks of land which may be desirable for recreational areas; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Bureau of Reclamation and the Secretary of Interior be and they are hereby requested to co-operate and preserve the lands for and in the interest of the public in order that the same may be converted into a great public recreational area; and, be it further

Resolved, That the State Lands Commission be and it is hereby requested to cooperate and to work with the Committee of the Senate heretofore appointed under resolution referring to the Needles Colorado River Committee, heretofore appointed under Resolution No. 38 in the selection of suitable lands herein specified or any other committee that may be hereafter be appointed for such purpose, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to submit a copy of this resolution to the Bureau of Reclamation and to the Hon. Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of Interior and to the State Lands Commission.

Resolution read, and on motion of Senator Swing, adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS

Senator Seawell: "I have a communication from the Legislative Counsel which I wish to present at this time."

SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, January 26, 1945

Honorable Jerrold L. Seawell
Senate Chamber, State Capitol, Sacramento 2, California

Powers of President of Senate—No. 2802

DEAR SENATOR SEAWELL: We have your inquiry asking whether the President of the Senate has authority to appoint a Senator to preside over the Senate during the absence of the President.

In view of the Rules adopted by the Senate at this session it is our opinion that the President of the Senate does not have authority to make such an appointment.

Section 15 of Article V of the Constitution provides that the Lieutenant Governor shall be President of the Senate but shall have only a casting vote therein.

It appears to be well settled that where a presiding officer is not a member of the body of which he is President, he possesses no inherent powers or duties other than to preside over the body when it is in session. Such other powers as he may have are vested in him solely by the Rules of the body.

Senate Rule 8 provides that the President pro tempore of the Senate may name any Senator to perform any duties of the chair in the absence of the President.

In view of this rule we believe the President of the Senate has no authority to delegate his constitutional duty to preside over that body to any Member of the Senate.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel
By LAWRENCE G. ALLYN, Deputy

Communication read.

Motion to Print Communication

Senator Seawell moved that the communication from the Legislative Counsel be embodied in the Journal.

Motion carried.

Senator Hatfield stated: "In view of the opinion of the Legislative Counsel I am not authorized to act as President of the Senate."

Therefore, Senator Hatfield relinquished the chair.

Senator Seawell, President pro tempore of the Senate, appointed Senator Parkman to preside.

Such authority to the assistant public administrator or deputy public administrator shall cease and determine upon the written direction of the public administrator or of the judge of the superior court to that effect filed in the office of the county clerk.

SEC. 2. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution and shall therefore go into immediate effect. A statement of the facts constituting such necessity is as follows:

Under provisions of Section 7 of the Government Code, deputies may exercise the powers and perform the duties of all county officers in their absence, and as a result the work of practically all officers is carried on at all times. In the single instance of the public administrator, however, due to the requirements of Probate Law at present for the personal performance by any administrator of certain functions, such as allowing or rejecting creditors' claims and the execution of conveyances, assignments and transfers of title, a widespread belief has grown up that the deputy of a public administrator may not perform many of the functions of that office in the administration of estates and in consequence the work of the office is handicapped and even substantially stops when the public administrator is not present. Due to the manpower shortage and the extra work cast upon all public officers under present conditions serious illness may interrupt the work of any public administrator or of several administrators throughout the State of California at any time, and public administrators are occasionally necessarily absent from the State on business; that in order to provide for the continuance of the business of the public administrator's office during his inability to act provision should be made for the performance of his functions by assistant or deputy.".

SEC. 754. Section 1176.8 is added to the Insurance Code, to read:

Sec. 1176.8. Such insurers may make, invest in or purchase loans which are guaranteed by the State of California or any department or agency thereof (Veterans' Welfare Board in the Department of Military and Veterans Affairs) and an admitted mortgage insurer qualified under Section 12443 or an agency of the United States authorized to insure the payment of mortgage loans pursuant to the provisions of the "Veterans' Home Construction, Farm Acquisition and Employment Act of 1945" or any act of the Legislature supplementary or amendatory thereof, provided that ratio of such guaranty and such insurance of any such loan shall be made pursuant to the provisions of Section 1176.7 of the Insurance Code.

SEC. 755. Section 12443 is added to Article 2, Chapter 2, Part 6, Division 2, of the Insurance Code, to read:

Sec. 12443. None of the provisions of Sections 12422 and 12442 and Articles 5, 6 and 7 of this chapter shall be applicable to any admitted mortgage insurer, or any such insurer hereafter admitted, which may insure and guarantee the payment of any security ("Security" as defined in Section 12421 of this chapter) pursuant to the provisions of the "Veterans' Home Construction, Farm Acquisition and Employment Act of 1945," or the "Postwar Housing and Reemployment Act," or any act of the Legislature supplementary or amendatory thereof; provided, that:

(1) Not less than 50 per cent of all premiums collected from writing such insurance, less premium returns, shall be maintained and known as the "Surplus Premium Fund" for the protection of policyholders in addition to the provisions of Section 12461 of this chapter. The funds in such "Surplus Premium Fund" may be used to make, invest in or purchase the securities prescribed for investment on part of any mortgage insurer by the Insurance Code, including any security guaranteed pursuant to this section;

(2) The premium rate for such insurance shall not be less than an amount equivalent to one-half of 1 per cent per annum nor more than an amount of the principal obligation of such mortgage security outstanding at any time, without taking into account delinquent or prepaid premiums, provided that the mortgage insurer may require prepayment of the first year's premium on any insured loan and annually fix the premium in advance for each succeeding year to be paid in equal installments cotemporaneously with the payment of principal and interest.

(3) Appraisals made pursuant to the provisions of the "Veterans' Home Construction, Farm Acquisition and Employment Act of 1945," or the "Postwar Housing and Reemployment Act," or any act of the Legislature supplementary or amendatory thereof shall be sufficient for the purpose of writing mortgage insurance pursuant to the provisions of this section.

(4) No single family dwelling or farm mortgage shall be insured for an amount in excess of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000).

(5) Upon the payment of accrued interest, taxes and insurance premiums pursuant to default or foreclosure of any insured security, or repossession of the real property securing any such security, any mortgage insurer may, with the prior approval of the mortgagee, refinance by any available means or pay the then due principal, together with interest thereon at the rate specified in the original insured security, in five equal annual payments."

Amendment No. 33

On page 10 of said bill, strike out lines 4 to 12, inclusive, and insert

"As a result of World War II, upwards of 800,000 residents of California will have entered the armed services of the Nation, of which some 60,000 have already been discharged and about 5,000 are being returned monthly to civil life as veterans. In consequence thereof an emergency has arisen, and one that will continue to grow worse if the State does not forthwith assume its responsibility to those veterans and provide workable and quick, sound economic ways and means of alleviating and preventing a vast majority of these veterans, and those of the future, living with their families in crowded shelters, insanitary, filthy, and unhealthy shacks, trailers, rooms or substandard housing units so that they can, without initial payments, because few will have accumulated money at all, secure new homes, farms, businesses and be given an opportunity for employment; and further, it now appears that in so far as homes, farms and businesses are concerned the "Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944" and the multiplicity of Federal centralized bureaucracies processing the same are wholly inadequate, if not stymied. The permission to make investments and write mortgage insurance pursuant to this act on part of State regulated lenders and mortgage insurers is inadequate, and not sufficiently comprehensive, if not obsolete in relation to long term amortized loans, to permit such lenders to make, invest in or purchase mortgage loans or for mortgage insurers to write mortgage insurance authorized by this act, and since thousands of veterans have returned, are constantly returning and will in great numbers continue to return for adjustment to civilian life, with some 30 wanting a suburban or urban home to one desiring a farm according to reported experience of the California Veterans' Welfare Board, it is necessary that this act take effect immediately."

Amendments read and adopted.

Bill ordered printed, and re-referred to Committee on Military and Veterans Affairs.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolution was offered:

By Senator Mayo:

Senate Resolution No. 63

In Memory of George Philip Morgan

WHEREAS, In Sonora, on February 20, 1945, George Philip Morgan, veteran California educator and one of Tuolumne's most beloved native sons, passed on to his eternal reward.

Of pioneer parentage, he was born in the historic mining town of Columbia, Tuolumne County. But for the brief interlude of his higher education, it was in that county, which he loved so well, that he was destined to spend the next 85 years—in fact, his life span—and to become, with the years, a proud tradition of the community to which he had dedicated his life.

Obtaining in 1877 his teacher's certificate from the San Jose Normal School, then the only school of its kind in California, he began his teaching career in the Sullivan's Creek School, later teaching in Confidence, in Soulsbyville, in his native Columbia, and in Jamestown. Elected in 1885 to the office of County Superintendent of Schools of Tuolumne County, he held this position until 1943, thereby coming to be known as the "Dean of California County School Superintendents." It was George Morgan's fortune to view the growth and development of California from a new-born, lusty mining State to its present commanding place among the States of the Nation. Indeed his life may be regarded as a link between these two eras; and

WHEREAS, This beloved Californian's record of public service is unequalled in the annals of our Public School System, and it is fitting that his memory be perpetuated in the official records of our State; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That when we adjourn this day we do so out of respect for the memory of George Philip Morgan; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to convey to the daughters of George Philip Morgan, the Miss Edith and Gertrude Morgan of Oakland, California, this expression of our tribute.

Resolution read, and adopted by a rising vote of the following Senators:

Senators Biggar, Breed, Brown, Burns, Carter, Collier, Crittenden, Cunningham, DeLap, Desmond, Deuel, Dillinger, Dilworth, Donnelly, Dorsey, Fletcher, Gordon, Hatfield, Holse, Jespersen, Judah, Keating, Kuchel, Mayo, McBride, McCormack, Mixter, Parkman, Powers, Quinn, Salsman, Seawell, Shelley, Slater, Sutton, Swing, Tenney, Ward, and Weybret—39.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received and read, and ordered printed in the Journal:

BUREAU OF PRINTING
SACRAMENTO 14, March 12, 1945

Senator J. L. Seawell
State Senate, Sacramento, California

DEAR SENATOR: Because of the shortage of skilled labor in the State Printing Plant, and an anticipated further cut in our staff due to the new Draft Board rules, it will be impossible to give the accustomed service on amended bills.

I respectfully request that you notify members when they seek quick delivery of amended bills, that it will be impossible to return such bills short of 24 hours, unless the measure is a very short one.

In former sessions the State Plant could always rely on a sufficiently large force of printers and pressmen to accommodate final out passes. Because of the great shortage of these skilled workers, we find that for this session less than 20 per cent of them have been attracted to Sacramento, although the pay is very high and there is a large amount of overtime work at very high rates of pay.

I trust that this request is in order, and that we shall receive the same kind of kindly consideration that has always marked our relations with the Legislature.

A copy of this letter goes to Assemblyman Charles W. Lyon.

Respectfully submitted.

GEORGE H. MOORE, State Printer

CC: Joseph A. Beek.

Motion carried.

SENATE CHAMBER, MARCH 13, 1945

President and Members of the California State Senate

You honored Senator Mayo and myself, and the Assembly, Assemblymen Harrison Call and Ralph Dills, by sending us as your representatives to the Sixth General Assembly of the Council of State Governments at Baltimore in January, 1943.

I introduced a resolution on reforestration—whether public or private ownership; taxation; fires and insects; utilization; Federal approach to private forestry; what the Federal Government should do; State approach to private forestry; what the State should do, etc.—all in the interests of protecting and developing one of our most vital assets, which was unanimously passed.

Subsequently, I was appointed a member of the National Forestry Committee of the Council of State Governments in relation thereto. The members of the committee are: Governor Earl Snell of Oregon, Chairman; Hon. D. Hale Brake, State Treasurer of Michigan; Sen. William T. Dean of Georgia; Hon. Perry H. Merrill, State Forester of Vermont, and myself.

We held several interesting meetings throughout the United States, ascertaining the facts.

The result of the activities of this committee is the following report, which I submit to the Legislature of the State of California at the request of the Council of State Governments, and ask that it be printed in the Journal of the Senate and the Assembly.

ED FLETCHER
State Senator, Fortieth District

DEVELOPING FOREST RESOURCES

Tentative and Preliminary Report of the Forestry Committee of the Council of State Governments

The forests of America have been extensively used, and in some cases extensively exploited, since Colonial Days. Nevertheless, those forests under the pressing demands of a war emergency are today furnishing more timber than at any other period in our National history. However, the excessive wartime demands, the serious drain caused by the ravages of fire, insects, and disease, and the lack of controlled cutting practices emphasize the fact that the drain on our forests exceeds current forest growth. This situation further emphasizes the urgent need for the adoption of modern forestry practices, including selective and controlled cutting.

Early Exploitation

In Colonial Times, the forest was a menace which harbored enemies and encumbered the land needed for crops. These conditions no longer obtain, and more forest land now reverts to forest use annually than is cleared for fresh agricultural use. Secondly, there was an enormous demand for a cheap, universal construction material during the period of rapid National expansion. As the Nation matured and construction became more stable, and there developed the use of materials other than wood, the urgent need for lumber declined, and the use of timber products became more stabilized. Although wartime demands for forest products have temporarily thrown the picture out of balance, it is hoped that after the war a relatively steady use of forest products may obtain. Accordingly, in normal times plans should be made for the orderly harvesting of timber as a crop.

The crop concept seems to be challenged by the fact that current drain on the forests exceeds current forest growth. That is one of the problems to be solved by the adoption of modern forestry practices. The barriers to successful forest management are well known. Forthright action by individual States to surmount these barriers locally will keep local forest lands productive, and in the aggregate will protect and enhance the National forest resources.

The public policy of one of the forward-looking forested States is declared to be "* * * the preservation of the forest and the conservation of forest resources for the equal and guaranteed use of future generations * * * the protection of forest and water resources and the continuous growth of timber on lands suitable therefor * * *"[1] If this policy is implemented with intelligence and integrity in State legislation and administration, with proper Federal State relations, there need be no concern for the future of forestry in America.

The Situation Now

There are today about 630 million acres[2] of forest land in the United States available for the production of timber and forage, and for such accessory forest values as watershed protection, wildlife habitats, and recreation. Of the nearly 500 million acres[2] of commercial forest land, there are 214 million acres[2] in saw-timber. Given adequate management, this area will produce annually more timber than has ever been cut in the United States in a single year.

The Federal Government owns or manages 60,000,000 acres[2] of saw-timber; States, counties, and municipalities, 4,000,000 acres;[2] and there are some 150,000,000 acres[2] in private ownership. It is with the latter two classes of ownership that State Forestry Programs are particularly concerned. There are no figures available on the present status of State-, county-, and municipally owned lands, but a recent survey of privately-owned industrial forest land discloses these facts:[3] (1) 16.6 per cent is managed in line with modern forest practices and is 80-100 per cent stocked; (2) 29.6 per cent is managed for continuous production and is 40-80 per cent stocked; (3) 47.5 per cent is less than adequately managed and is less than 40 per cent stocked; and (4) 6.3 per cent is non-productive.

This is pretty largely the balance sheet of the forest industry as a whole, because publicly-owned forests have made but a negligible contribution to forest production thus far. For the Decade 1933-42, the cut of saw-timber on National forests averaged slightly over a billion board feet,[4] while the total cut for the industry averaged over 25,000,000,000 board feet.[5] Production on public forests must of necessity become more important as private forests are increasingly cut over, but it is still the private forest land which produces the bulk of America's lumber.

The timber industry in normal times has provided as much as 50 per cent of the industrial employment in some States, and the value of forest products at the mill nationally has exceeded $1,000,000,000[5] annually in recent years. Thus the continued productivity of the private forest will remain a significant factor in the economy of many States, and a matter of concern to all States. For these reasons, the problems of private forestry must engage the whole-hearted attention of the Council of State Governments.

Ownership

In a sense, the ownership of forest lands is relatively unimportant if they are all properly managed and conserved and the benefits are available to the citizenry in general. It is important that minimum forest practices be required on all ownerships in order to protect the stability of the industry.

There are two legitimate fields of public forest ownership: (1) non-commercial lands of greater service for other uses than for forest products, and not necessarily self sustaining (in this category would fall watershed forests, research and demonstration forests, recreational areas, and wildlife refuges); (2) lands bearing commercial timber in certain quantities for demonstration or industry stability, on poor sites, or on inaccessible or fire-denuded areas. In general, private ownership should be encouraged when and where it is possible to carry on long term operations at a profit and in such a manner as will insure sustained production on the area.

Taxation

The problem of forest taxation is one which deserves special consideration because of the long period required to produce merchantable timber. Property taxation has been the principal source of revenue for local government in rural America and is based on the annual cropping of agricultural lands. The annual taxing of a crop which requires many years to produce has done much to discourage sound forest management on private lands. In Western States, the tax problem is also very much complicated by the vast public ownership of forest lands. At least a partial solution can be found by giving consideration to the following:

(1) Privately-owned lands should bear their fair share of the cost of local government. The valuation for property tax purposes might well be based on the "productive capacity" of the forest land.

(2) Taxes—Federal and State—should be applied in such a manner as to equalize the payments between the operator who grows trees and the one who purchases mature timber. Progress along this line has been made.

(3) Equitable and reasonable payments in lieu of taxes should be made on publicly-owned forest lands.

(4) State and Federal inheritance or estate tax laws should be so amended as to give one liable for the payment of an inheritance tax the option of either (a) paying immediately or (b) arranging for payment through a series of deferred payments over a period of years or upon the harvest of the crop.

Fires and Insects

In recent years we have multiplied public opportunity to set fire without equally multiplying public responsibility for such fires. Improved transportation and roads have made private forest lands available to the public, with a resultant increase in fire hazards. In some sections of the Country, smokers and incendiarists set more than 50 per cent of the forest fires. The attention of the public should be called to this critical condition to the end that more adequate measures may be put into effect by our State and local governments.

Forests are at times extremely vulnerable to both insects and disease, attacks of which may completely liquidate private holdings. It is not feasible for private forest land owners unaided to undertake sanitation measures for the prevention of epidemic diseases or infestations. This is, however, largely a province of public forest agencies—a project in the general public interest akin to flood control work and similar public works.

Forestry is a long-time enterprise, subject to unusual hazards, yielding only modest returns on the investment. Commercial credit rates present some difficulty for operators who prefer to work on a sustained production basis. Because of prevailing hazards, insurance premium rates are disproportionately high for the coverage obtained, and financial risks are added to the physical difficulties of private forestry.

Utilization

Present standards of utilization do not permit full realization of all timber values and impose severe restrictions on the development of private forestry. Present limited markets for wood and long-established practices force logging and sawmill operators to leave 30 per cent of the wood in the forest and 43 per cent of the log in the mill. Wood technology has not kept pace with the advance in the utilization of metals, plastics, and other wood substitutes.

Federal Approach to Private Forestry

Any National forest policy, in order to be successful, should be based on the cooperation of the Federal, State, and local governments, as well as on that of individual owners and operators.

The history of Federal action in respect to forestry in the States is about as follows:

(1) Development of a National Forest System, beginning in 1891, set aside unappropriated areas of the public domain within the States as Federal forests.

(2) The Weeks Act, in 1911, initiated programs of Federal land purchases and cooperation with the States in forest fire control.

(3) The Clarke-McNary Act of 1924, among other things, authorized Federal financial aid to the States on a matching basis for organized forest fire protection on state and private forest lands.

(4) The Norris-Doxey Act of 1937 authorized Federal expenditures for farm forestry in cooperation with the States.

(5) Amendment to the Internal Revenue Act in 1944 provided tax relief by classifying some forest revenues as long term capital gains rather than annual income.

What the Federal Government Should Do

(1) Recognize that private ownership of forest land is a keystone in the economy of many forest areas; and aid in the development of sound and permanent private ownership, (a) through the operation of the Sustained Yield Act of 1944; (b) by the release from Federal ownership, through exchanges or other means of conveyance, of such forest lands as can and will be successfully operated under sound forest management principles by private owners.

(2) Recognize the very great public responsibility in the occurrence of forest fires, and provide a fair share of public funds for fire control in each State. Forest fires do not respect State boundaries.

(3) Forest insects and diseases also respect no State boundaries and National efforts at control are logical. Adequate continuing appropriations should be made so that the gains of one year are not lost by inadequate appropriations in following years.

(4) Problems of forest utilization likewise transcend State lines and forest products research should continue on a National scale, particularly as it pertains to products of National scope. This will require continued support of the Federal Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wisconsin.

(5) As part of the Post-war program, the Federal Government should provide cooperative funds with which State forestry departments could rehabilitate State, local, and private forest lands. Provision of such funds should be contingent upon (a) the proven technical ability of the State department, and (b) financial backing of that department by the State Government adequate to assure success of the program.

(6) Federal forestry agencies should correlate their activities.

(7) It is recommended that State approval be first obtained before extension of Federal ownership within the State of lands of any character.

(8) Congress should give immediate consideration to forestry measures designed to promote the National welfare. Particular attention is called to pending legislation providing for an annual payment in lieu of taxes on Federally-owned lands.

State Approach to Private Forestry

What the States Have Done. Compared to the needs, the States have done relatively little in the protection, development, and utilization of the forest resources.

In general, the States have not made adequate appropriations for forestry. Chiefly by default, this important field of State responsibility has largely drifted into Federal ownership and under Federal jurisdiction; and what was not acquired by default in the past seems certain to be acquired by other means in the future, unless prompt and effective measures are undertaken to counteract this movement.

A few States have been active in one or more phases of forestry, but by no means have the forested States met their forestry responsibilities. No State has a comprehensive, entirely satisfactory, adequately-financed Forestry Program. The greatest advances have been made in forest protection, generally in cooperation with the Federal Government under the Clarke-McNary Act; but even in this instance there is a wide disparity in the standards of protection prevailing in different States.

What the States Should Do

(1) The States should finance their Forestry Departments on a basis which will permit the competent performance of essential forestry functions.

(2) Enact legislation adopting modern forestry practices. If the States do not do so, the Federal Government will. A model Forestry Bill recommended by the committee deserves serious consideration by the States.[6]

(3) Revise taxation inequities which restrain private forestry.

(4) Support research in local forestry problems not covered by the Federal forest experiment stations.

(5) Improve personnel standards and provide compensation adequate to attract able men to State forestry.

(6) Acquire forest lands where and when available. Rehabilitate forest areas. Retain certain State forest lands for demonstration, research, recreation, watershed forests, and other essential uses.

(7) All forestry States should consider the forest resources in all plans for the development of the State as a whole, particularly in respect to public works postwar planning.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received, read, and, on motion of Senator Shelley, ordered printed in the Journal:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
LIBRARY AND COURTS BLDG., SACRAMENTO (14), CALIFORNIA, March 14, 1945

Honorable John R. Shelley, State Senator
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR SENATOR SHELLEY: In your communication of February 28, 1945, you request the opinion of this office as to the power of the California Highway Commission, without additional legislation, to realign that portion of State Highway Route 1, commonly known as the Redwood Highway, so as to substitute for the existing "Waldo Approach" a new location extending from the northerly end of Golden Gate Bridge through the town of Sausalito and thence northerly.

You state in your letter that the existing highway involves grades up to 6 per cent, passes through a tunnel, and is subject to dense fogs and high winds, and that trucks experience great difficulty in negotiating the existing grades.

The highway involved is defined in Section 301 of the Streets and Highways Code as "from a point in Marin County opposite San Francisco to the Oregon State line via Crescent City and the Smith River."

Sections 71-73 of the Streets and Highways Code read as follows:

"71. The commission may alter or change the location of any State highway if in the opinion of the commission such alteration or change is for the best interest of the State.

"72. The commission may abandon any easement or portion thereof which has been acquired for State highway purposes, and which by reason of change in location of a State highway, is no longer necessary for such purposes.

"73. The commission may relinquish to any county or city any portion of any State highway within such county or city which has been superseded by relocation, for use as a county highway or city street, as the case may be. Relinquishment shall be by resolution, a certified copy of which shall be filed with the board of supervisors or the city clerk, as the case may be."

Section 75 of the same code reads in part as follows:

"Except as otherwise provided by law, the commission at any time and from time to time may:

(a) Select, adopt, and determine the location for State highways on routes authorized by law."

Section 100 of the Streets and Highway Code contains the following language:

"The department (of Public Works) is authorized and directed to lay out and construct all State highways between the termini designated by law and on the most direct and practicable locations as determined by the commission, * * *"

It is apparent from the statutes quoted above that the Legislature has delegated to the commission the authority to determine routings of State highways in the exercise of a wise but not unlimited discretion. Section 71 of the Streets and Highways Code authorizes the alteration of the location of a highway when in the opinion of the commission "such alteration or change is for the best interest of the State." Section 100 provides an additional standard for the guidance of the commission in the exercise of its discretion by providing that the locations to be determined by the commission shall be the "most direct and practicable."

It is obvious that the words "direct" and "practicable" must be construed together, as an airline route for a highway in most instances would be most impracticable. In determining whether a proposed routing would be the most direct and practicable, and for the best interest of the State, the commission must of necessity take into account a great number of factors. These would include distance, grades, curvature, costs, including initial outlay for rights of way and construction and continuing maintenance charges, the areas of the State to be served, and the amount and type of traffic using the particular highway. All of these factors, and probably others, would go into a determination of which route would be the most direct and practicable.

We are cognizant of the fact that the existing Waldo Approach was itself a realignment of this same State highway route, made some eight or nine years ago at a construction cost of approximately $2,000,000.

We are also advised that the proposed relocation would actually be longer than the existing Waldo Approach but that it would be possible on the longer alignment to provide easier grades than exist on the Waldo Approach.

It is clear from the authorities in this State that determinations made as to the location of highways or the abandonment of portions thereof are legislative in character and that where an administrative body has been delegated authority to make such determinations, its findings are not subject to review by the courts so long as they are exercised in accordance with the delegation of authority and no claim of fraud, bad faith, arbitrary or capricious action is proved.

County of Los Angeles vs. Rindge Co., 53 Cal. App. 166.
Symons vs. San Francisco, 115 Cal. 555.
People vs. Broome, 120 Cal. App. 267.

Where, as here, the statute reposes a discretion in an administrative body, to be exercised on the basis of facts to be found by it, it is the duty of the agency to ascertain the facts in each case.

Bank of Italy vs. Johnson, 200 Cal. 1, 16
People vs. Globe Grain & Mill Company, 211 Cal. 121

There is no question but that Section 75 of the Streets and Highways Code authorizes realignments from time to time so that the fact that the existing Waldo Approach is itself a realignment would not be a bar to further action in connection with that highway by the Highway Commission.

The function of this office, of course, is not to determine the facts as to the particular highway in question, but is confined to the legal aspects of the problem. It is our opinion that under the statutes above quoted and the authorities in this State, the California Highway Commission has the authority to provide for the realignment of the existing highway if, after considering all of the facts involved, it can make a finding that the new location is the most direct and practicable one, having in mind the best interests of the State.

We believe it should be made clear that if the California Highway Commission should determine that a realignment of a portion of the highway is advisable, its authority with reference to the existing highway would be limited to either abandoning it or relinquishing it to the local governmental agencies. As indicated in our opinion NS345 to Honorable A. E. Bagshaw, District Attorney of Marin County, dated May 14, 1937, the California Highway Commission does not have authority to maintain two highways between two points where only one State highway route has been designated by the Legislature.

Very truly yours,

ROBERT W. KENNY, Attorney General
ROBERT E. REED, Deputy Attorney General

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolution was offered:

By Senators Desmond, Seawell, Slater, McCormack, Rich, Deuel, and DeLap:

Senate Resolution No. 65
In memory of Charles W. Paine

WHEREAS, Sorrow fills our hearts today as we record the passing of this kindly and beloved public servant who yesterday, in his sleep and with the naturalness which ever marked his life, gave himself unto his Maker.

Born at the old Paine home on Capitol Avenue near the site of the original State Fair Grounds, with which he was to become so long associated, Charles W. Paine from the first loved horses. Perhaps this was in his blood, for it was his father who was operator of the Paine Livery Stables, founded in Sacramento in 1852. As a youth, Charlie became foreman of the stables at Del Monte, then the only resort of its kind in the West. By horse team he daily traveled the famed 17-mile drive. In the nineties he became bookkeeper and paymaster for Senator James G. Fair at the latter's large holding at Knight's Landing. Back in Sacramento at the turn of the century, he served as a member of the City Council and chairman of the Parks and Streets Committee. At this time Hiram Johnson was City Attorney of Sacramento. Together these two had attended the old Mary J. Watson Grammar School on the present site of the Memorial Auditorium. Governor Gage appointed him a director of the State Fair Board, and from 1914 until his retirement in 1937 he was Secretary of the State Fair. It was largely through Paine's efforts that the State Horse Show became one of the outstanding events of its kind in the Nation, and it was natural that he was selected in 1939 to manage the horse show at the Golden Gate International Exposition.

So long and ably and devotedly did he serve as Secretary of the State Fair that to California like the Fair and with the Fair, he became, as it were, a tradition rather than a person. Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That when the Senate adjourns this day it do so in respect for the memory of Charles W. Paine; and, be it further Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to convey to the bereaved family of Charles W. Paine this expression of our tribute.

Senators Biggar, Breed, Brown, Burns, Carter, Collier, Crittenden, Cunningham, DeLap, Desmond, Deuel, Dillinger, Donnelly, Dorsey, Fletcher, Gordon, Hatfield, Hulse, Jespersen, Judah, Keating, Kuchel, Mayo, McBride, McCormack, Mixter, Parkman, Powers, Quinn, Rich, Salsman, Seawell, Shelley, Slater, Sutton, Swing, Tenney, Ward, and Weybret—39.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received, read, and ordered printed in the Journal:

OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, March 19, 1945

Honorable State Senate
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

HONORABLE SENATORS: Enclosed please find a petition which is signed by citizens and voters of the State of California. This petition contains the wishes of the signers and we all would appreciate very highly if your honorable body would give this petition your worthy consideration.

We know that you will realize that this is a vital matter and a social problem, considering the great unemployment which will follow when this present war is over.

The signers of this petition think that it is vitally more important to reduce the present age limit to receive State old age pension from 65 years, down to 60 years of age, than to encrease the amount of old age pension from $50 to $60 per month.

The important object is to reach and cover more people in the higher age bracket for the State old age pension, so we will be more successful in reducing the unemployment.

The old age pension will be less costly to the State of California, than providing these senior citizens with State relief, or W.P.A. It is also more respectable and comes closer to American democracy.

There are 900 signatures on these petitions, from different cities of the State of California. From Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and many other cities.

The same kind of petition, with additional 900 signatures more, was also sent to the Honorable State Assembly of California, for their worthy consideration.

I had the honor and privilege to get these sigatures with the approval and the endorsement of the Building and Construction Trades Council, as well as from the Central Labor Council, both of Alameda County.

I have done this work voluntarily because I believe in a democratic way to solve the unemployment problem. I could get many thousand more signatures if I had the time, but did this in my spare time.

In the name of all these signers, I take the privilege as a citizen and voter of the State of California to send these petitions to your honorable body, and we trust and hope that your honorable body, will give this vital matter, your earnest and sincere consideration.

I am very respectfully and sincerely yours,

PHILIP ICKLER

Referred to Committee on Governmental Efficiency.

REPORT ORDERED PRINTED IN JOURNAL

Pursuant to the motion by Senator Rich, made on March 16, 1945, the following Report of the Legislative Budget Committee was ordered printed in the Journal of this date:

REPORT OF THE JOINT LEGISLATIVE BUDGET COMMITTEE TO THE HONORABLE FREDERICK F. HOUSER, PRESIDENT, AND TO THE MEMBERS OF THE SENATE AND TO THE HONORABLE CHARLES W. LYON, SPEAKER, AND TO THE MEMBERS OF THE ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Introduction

Inasmuch as the Fifty-sixth Session of the California Legislature has a number of new members who have not had an opportunity to become fully familiar with the purpose and work of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, we will review the establishment and operations of the committee from its inception. In this way we believe the policies and procedure that have been established by the committee will be made clear. The aims and accomplishments can be then readily evaluated.

Underlying Reasons for Establishment of an Agency to Assist Legislature

The foreword of the first report of the Budget Committee, issued January 4, 1943, and published in the Senate Journal of January 30, 1943, gives the reasons for establishing the Legislative Budget Committee and the employment of a Legislative Auditor so we quote from it herewith.

> "The ever-increasing Biennial Budgets and the consequent increase in budgeting and appropriation problems to be considered by the Legislature in each succeeding session increased the burdens of the Legislative Committees dealing with these subjects. The total Budget for the Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth Fiscal Years, 1931-1933, the first time the State Budget included all expenditures for the biennium, amounted to $265,345,955. Ten years later, the Governor's Budget for the Ninety-third and Ninety-fourth Fiscal Years, 1941-1943, totaled $552,570,135, an increase of $287,244,180 in 10 years, or more than 108 per cent.

Comparative Statement of Increase of the Budget and Population of the State of California and Per Capita Cost for Biennial Budget 1931-33 and 1941-43

	State Population	Total State Budget	Per Capita
1941-1943	7,070,000	$552,570,000	$78.157
1931-1933	5,812,000	265,346,000	45.654
Increase	1,258,000	287,224,400	-----
Per cent increase	÷21.6%	÷108.24%*	-----

It should be noted that this is a comparison of the Biennial Budget requests of the Governor and not a comparison of actual expenditures. The actual cost of government varies somewhat from the Budget requests due to changes in the Budgets, special appropriation bills and variations in fixed charges. The comparison, however, is valid for the reason that it does express for both periods the Governor's Budget as presented under constitutional requirements.

The comparison for the 10-year period 1931-1933—1941-1943 is made for the following reasons: First of all, this was the last biennium for which a Budget was available. Secondly, 1931-1933 was the first year in which an absolutely complete Budget with all items was presented, and is the first year in which the modernized Budget document in the larger size was initiated.

* In one respect the 1931-1933 Budget is more complete than 1941-1943 in that it contains expenditures from Federal funds which the latter omits. If these were in the percentage increase would be considerably larger.

A comparison of the Budget document itself is very interesting, for the 1931-1933 Document contains 360 pages, as compared with the 848 pages in the 1941-1943. In other words, the document itself for 1941-1943 is approximately 108 per cent larger in every way than the one of 10 years previous.

The striking significance is that while the population of the State of California increased 21.6 per cent in the period 1931-1933 to 1941-1943, the Governor's budget increased 108 per cent. The per capita cost for State Government in 1931-1933 for the biennium was $45.65, while in 1941-1943 it had risen to $78.15. It is true that new services were added to the State Government and larger amounts were allocated to county, city and school districts; however, the ever-expanding established departments and bureaus of government and the increase in services accounted for a very large proportion of the increase. A considerable amount of the increase did occur in the way of State relief for unemployed. This item, however, was entirely eliminated by the Legislature in 1941 but other expenditures took up most of the saving.

This is a demonstration that eternal vigilance is necessary to prevent an ever-increasing expansion program far in excess of the growth in population. The danger at the present time is even more imminent than it was during this 10-year period, 1931 to 1941, for during this entire period a large State deficit existed. At the present time, this deficit has been eliminated and a substantial surplus exists. This surplus will increase to startling proportions by the close of the next biennium, June 30, 1945, unless war activities diminish or some unforeseen Federal law or ruling cuts off the flow of taxes into the treasury. With this increase in the surplus comes the temptation to expand expenditures and to take on new functions of government.

A large degree of caution and careful consideration of appropriations is necessary if laxity born of the surplus does not allow an increase in the cost of State Government which will get out of hand and obligations may be contracted and services of government established which can not be met when the present condition of war prosperity begins to recede. If government is expanded beyond normal needs, and the surplus consumed, there will be no backlog or reserve available to continue to carry on an expansion in governmental services made during this period, and there will be insufficient funds to assist in tiding over a period of declining revenues and declining ability of the taxpayer to support the cost of government. The present upswing in revenue is a wartime prosperity. It can disappear as rapidly as it arose. In no sense should it be considered as more than a windfall. No permanent expansion in government should be based on it, for herein lies a pitfall of increased costs of government which will go on when prosperity declines and revenues fall off so we may have economic distress, unemployment, falling revenues and mounting taxes to meet even normal government costs.

It is self-evident that sane planning should be made effective now so as to hold down the increasing cost of government and to assure that we do not go beyond a standard that can be carried during normal times and a condition of reduced prosperity and reduced taxes. This planning should also make sure that the condition which will exist is realized and means are taken now to provide for housing facilities for the State which are not being met at the present time, and depreciation and obsolescence which are accumulating during the period of the suspension of capital outlay. By proper planning this accumulated building need can well be coordinated to assist in meeting reduced economic conditions and possible widespread unemployment. This can not be done if governmental expenditures are expanded so as to take up the fortunate but short term increase in revenue at this time and if any considerable portion of the surplus is consumed.

In addition to presenting the largest Budget in the history of the State, Governor Olson, in his first Budget for the years 1939-41, recommended new taxes and the transfer of revenue in the total sum of $63,900,000. In his message of January, 1940, he reiterated that the taxes recommended in 1939 were still necessary to balance the Budget and wipe out the State deficit. The Legislature did not see fit to approve these new taxes. On January 29, 1940, the Governor, in his message to the special session of the Legislature, again recommended that $50,000,000 in new taxes be raised in the next 17 months to balance the Budget. Again the Legislature differed with the Governor and imposed no new taxes.

On top of the problem of the mounting Budget and the constant threat of increased taxes the deficit continued and grew until the upsurge of war industries in California increased revenues, so that with the legislative economy program the deficit was eliminated and a small surplus existed by the close of the Fiscal Year June 30, 1942. This continuing condition of a mounting deficit for the past decade produced the determination on the part of the Legislature to hold down expenditures.

The financial problem for the decade was further complicated by widespread unemployment and the demand for relief. The Governor, in his message of January, 1939, in discussing relief, stated that it would require $100,000,000 per biemmium for this item alone. The Legislature disagreed with the Governor and met his Budget request for $73,600,000 for this item by appropriating in the regular session only $35,525,000.

The conflict between the Legislature and the Governor over relief, with the resultant investigation by legislative committees and the disclosure of corruption, inefficiency, waste and maladministration, is well known. The Legislature was called into several extraordinary sessions and finally in two additional appropriations, one of $13,800,000 and the other of $24,347,091, the Legislature did appropriate slightly more than the amount requested in the Governor's budget for relief but a sum far less than the supplemental requests of the Governor.

The investigation on the part of the Legislature continued, and when the Governor, in his next Budget, asked for $38,706,295 for relief, the Legislature eliminated this item entirely, continuing only the Surplus Food Commodity Distribution and the Food Stamp Plan, making a net reduction for relief alone of $34,916,295.

The Legislature also subjected the Governor's Budget for 1941-43 to close scrutiny, reducing other controllable expenditures by $5,582,798.

It is true that special appropriation bills were passed, totaling $10,192,-254, but the net reduction in the Budget exceeded $30,000,000. Subsequent operation of the State demonstrated the soundness of the legislative action.

The head-on conflict between the Governor and the Legislature, particularly over the relief administration and the spending for this activity and other appropriation matters and the ever increasing size of the expenditures program of the State for general purposes of government, clearly placed upon the Legislature and its Finance Committees a very large burden.

It became increasingly plain that the Legislature needed some instrumentality whereby it could secure its own information, free from the control and influence of the Administration. It appeared desirable to have a continuing flow of such information so that the Legislature would have facts and information in which it had confidence on the operation of the State Governor as respects not only its efficiency and organization but also as to how the will of the people and the will of the Legislature is carried into execution.

The presentation of the Final Report of the Committee on State Organization, commonly known as the Report of the Committee of 25, presented to the 1941 Legislature, likewise indicated that a reorganization and regrouping of the State administration would produce greater efficiency and desirable economies.

The repeated instances of expanding the State pay roll and the making of jobs through establishing a large number of administrative assistants, coordinators, public relations men, and other political jobs, which in some instances were contrary to the expressed will of the Legislature, indicated the desirability of the Legislature's keeping informed as respects the Administration and particularly the reorganization of the various departments of the State. The expansion of old services of government and the establishment of absolutely new services by the several departments and agencies of the State during legislative interims without any approval of the Legislature and in some instances without the Legislature's making any specific appropriations for such new service, gave a further reason for having a representative of the Legislature continuously on the job to observe these matters. Information as to how requests for such services become a regular budget request at a succeeding biennium will be very valuable to the law makers passing on such budget requests.

These conditions not only resulted in numerous conflicts between the Governor and the Legislature, but in addition caused a long delay in making effective legislation. This was particularly true in regard to the consideration of the Governor's Budget and the Budget Bill making it effective, and other special appropriation bills. Legislative committee study and hearings on these matters became more and more extended and consequently the sessions became longer and longer. Even then with committees working diligently, the Legislature was not satisfied with the information it had on the fiscal and administrative affairs of the State upon which it had to base its judgment for the appropriation of many millions of dollars.

It was also evident in the conduct of the investigations made by the several legislative committees and subcommittees in relation to State Budget and appropriations that a better procedure in securing information would not only save legislative time but would also secure more complete and definite information. The results that could be secured by someone trained in the manner of getting information and with skill in organizing procedure and with basic information concerning each State department would be far more efficient and effective than could be done by legislative committees without this service. It was also plain that a continuous program of operation by someone skilled in all these respects would yield far larger results and in a more economical way than by having each Legislature start anew, or practically so, with its committees considering State Administration and appropriations therefor.

The establishment of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee and the Legislative Auditor as an instrumentality for securing, informing, and correlating for the Legislature all of these matters finally culminated in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22, after the Governor had vetoed the Poulson Bill which provided for "a legislative audit of State business."

History of the Acts of the Legislature Establishing and Developing the Budget Committee and Office of Legislative Auditor

The Legislature created the Joint Legislative Budget Committee through the adoption of the following Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22, Chapter 117, Statutes of 1941, amending the Joint Rules by adding Joint Rule No. 36. This is still the basis of the operations of the committee although certain changes have been made which will be given in sequence.

Chapter 117

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22—Amending the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly by adding Joint Rule No. 36, creating a Joint Legislative Budget Committee, defining its powers and duties, and making an appropriation out of the contingent funds therefor.

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of California, the Assembly thereof concurring, That a new rule, to be numbered 36, is hereby added to the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly, to read as follows:

36. In addition to any other committee provided for by these rules, there shall be a joint committee to be known and called the Legislative Budget Committee.

It shall be the duty of the committee to ascertain facts and make recommendations to the Legislature and to the houses thereof concerning the State Budget, the revenues and expenditures of the State, and of the organization and functions of the State, its departments, subdivisions and agencies, with a view of reducing the cost of the State Government, and securing greater efficiency and economy.

The committee shall consist of five Members of the Senate and five Members of the Assembly. The Senate Members of the committee shall be the President pro tempore of the Senate and one Member each from the Committees on Finance, Revenue and Taxation, Governmental Efficiency and Judiciary, selected by the respective committees. The Assembly Members of the committee shall consist of the Speaker and four other Members of the Assembly appointed by the Speaker. The committee shall select its own chairman.

The committee shall have the authority to make rules to govern its own proceedings and its employees. It may also create subcommittees from its membership, assigning to its subcommittees any study, inquiry, investigation or hearing which the committee itself has authority to undertake or hold, and the subcommittee for the purpose of this assignment shall have and may exercise all the powers conferred upon the committee, limited only by the expressed terms of any rule or resolution of the committee defining the powers and duties of the subcommittee. Such powers may be withdrawn or terminated at any time by the committee.

The provisions of Joint Rule 35 above shall apply to the Legislative Budget Committee, and it shall have all the authority provided in such rule or in Article IV, Section 37, of the Constitution.

The committee shall have the authority to appoint a Legislative Auditor, to fix his compensation and to prescribe his duties, and to appoint such other clerical and technical employees as may appear necessary. The committee may meet either during sessions of the Legislature, any recess thereof, or after final adjournment, and may meet or conduct business at any place within the State of California.

The members of the committee shall serve without compensation but shall be entitled to actual and necessary expenses including expenses for living accommodations and meals incurred in connection with their services on the committee, or in lieu of such expenses for accommodations and meals they shall be entitled to an allowance of eight dollars ($8) per day and travel expenses which shall be deemed to be five and one-half cents ($0.05½) per mile. The chairman of the committee shall audit and approve the expenses of members of the committee or salaries of the employees, and all other expenses incurred in connection with the performance of its duties by the committee, and the chairman shall certify the amount approved to the Controller, and the Controller shall draw his warrants upon the certification of the chairman, and the Treasurer shall pay the same to the chairman of the committee to be disbursed by him.

Upon the organization of the Legislature at any succeeding session, all authority, powers, duties, papers and records, personnel or staff, and any unexpended balance in any funds appropriated for the use of the committee, shall be temporarily transferred to a pro tempore Legislative Budget Committee consisting of the Senate Committee on Rules and of the new Speaker and four other Members of the Assembly appointed by him, until the committee as hereinabove provided for is appointed or selected when all such authority, powers, duties, papers and records, personnel or staff and all funds available for the use of the committee shall revert to such committee; and be it further

Resolved, That a sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000) is hereby appropriated from the Contingent Funds of the Senate and Assembly, to be expended equally from the Contingent Funds of the Senate and Assembly in carrying out the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That if there is created by statute a Legislative Audit Bureau, a Legislative Research Bureau, or other similar agency, under legislative control, charged with the duty of performing one or more of the functions given the Legislative Budget Committee by this resolution, the committee is hereby authorized and directed to avoid duplicating the work of such bureau or agency while the latter is in existence and functioning.

The committee was made up of five members of the Senate and five members of the Assembly. The Senate members designated were the President Pro Tempore and one member each from the committees on Finance, Revenue and Taxation, Governmental Efficiency and Judiciary, to be selected by the respective committees. The Assembly Members were to consist of the Speaker and four Members appointed by the Speaker. The membership of the original committee was as follows: Senator W. P. Rich, Jerrold L. Seawell, Arthur H. Breed, Jr., T. H. DeLap, Edward H. Tickle; Assemblymen George A. Clarke, Gordon H. Garland, Seth Millington, Norris Poulson, C. Don Field.

Duties of the Committee

The duty of the committee as stated in the resolution is to ascertain facts and make recommendations to the Legislature "concerning the State Budget, the revenues and expenditures of the State, its departments, subdivisions and agencies, with a view toward reducing the cost of the State Government and securing a greater efficiency and economy."

This committee was empowered to employ a Legislative Auditor and such technical staff as was necessary.

Organization of Committee and Employment of a Legislative Auditor

The Legislative Budget Committee met and was organized on October 4, 1941. Senator William P. Rich was elected chairman, Assemblyman Seth Millington vice chairman, and Assemblyman Norris Poulson, secretary. The committee employed Rolland A Vandegrift, former Director of Finance of the State of California and a research specialist in governmental organization and taxation for many years, as Legislative Auditor.

Mr. Vandegrift has been engaged in governmental research since 1922. He was the first Director of Research of the California Taxpayers' Association and subsequently head of Vandegrift Research Associates. He carried on governmental research activities in California, Utah and other of the Western States.

The Legislative Budget Committee feels that in Mr. Vandegrift it secured a person who is not only an expert in governmental finance and a trained research specialist in government, but one who also has had the actual experience of making two State Budgets and in functioning these Budgets as Director of Finance in 1931-34. Also, through his continuous contact with State Government subsequently, he is intimately familiar with the entire operations of the Government of the State. This training and experience, the committee felt, would make it possible for the Legislative Auditor to begin functioning immediately in conformity with the resolution establishing the committee and with the program of procedure outlined by the committee. The soundness of the committee's reasoning was demonstrated by the effectiveness of the Legislative Budget Committee in relation to the appropriation bills before the First Extraordinary Session of the 1941 Legislature, and in dealing with the 1943-45 Budget and subsequent legislative appropriations and other legislative matters.

Authority to Subpena Witnesses and Records

The committee has ample authority to subpena witnesses and records, for the resolution creating it provided that the provisions of Legislative Joint Rule 35 shall apply to the Legislative Budget Committee, and it shall have all the authority provided in such rule or in Article IV, Section 37 of the Constitution.

While the committee believes that such authority is essential to guarantee full functioning of the committee, it is pleased to report that it has not found it necessary to issue a single subpena for either witnesses or records. It has been able through its staff to secure all essential information and assistance through cooperation and voluntary testimony. No doubt the power to subpena, although not used, was helpful in securing information.

Support of the Committee

The sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000) was appropriated from the Contingent Fund of the Senate and the Assembly for carrying out the provisions of the resolution establishing the committees. An additional five thousand dollars ($5,000) was appropriated by the First Extraordinary Session of the 1941 Legislature to finance the special services rendered by the enlarged Budget Committee in relation to appropriation and legislation of the special session. See Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 19 following on page 653.

Funds Economically Spent

The original funds appropriated were spent carefully and were sufficient to carry on the work of the committee, and partly due to the fact that technically trained research men were not available in the number desired, approximately eighteen thousand dollars ($18,000) of the original appropriation remained unspent at the convening of the Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature. This large balance remained for the reason that the committee itself, constituted for the purposes of producing economy, endeavored to practice this principle in its own operations. This has been done in part by holding investment in equipment to the minimum and meetings to those essential to consider matters of importance.

With the exception of a typewriter and miscellaneous office supplies, all office equipment has been secured from the surplus stock of the liquidated State Relief Administration. Costly letterheads and other expensive printing have been eliminated, and other office costs strictly controlled.

In addition, as much information as possible has been secured from the State departments and agencies and also secured on a cooperative basis with governmental and private research organizations. This procedure has made it possible for the committee to secure a vast amount of detailed information at a minimum of expense. However, the committee must acknowledge that research investigations have not been carried on in as broad a scope or in as detailed a manner as is desirable or as would have been accomplished had it been possible to secure and retain trained and experienced research people.

Financial Report to January 31, 1945

The Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 21 appropriated an additional $40,000 for the use of the committee, making a total of $85,000 appropriated for its use to date. The following financial summary shows the income and expenditures to January 31, 1945.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE LEGISLATIVE BUDGET COMMITTEE

January 31, 1945

Appropriated by S. C. R. No. 22, Statutes of 1941	$40,000 00
Appropriated by A. C. R. No. 19, First Extra Session of the Fifty-fourth Legislature	5,000 00
Appropriated by S. C. R. No. 21, Statutes of 1943	40,000 00
Appropriated	$85,000 00
Total expenditures to January 31, 1945	70,598 41
Balance on hand, January 31, 1945	$14,401 59

Three or four months prior to the convening of the Legislature, while concentrating on the Budget and during the Legislative sessions while working on the Budget, appropriation bills and other economy measures, the staff is built up to an average monthly pay roll of about $3,500. At other times an average $2,500 to $3,000 per month will carry a permanent staff of research assistants, auditors, investigators, secretaries and other technical help.

Term and Succession of the Committee

The Legislative Budget Committee as created by the 1941 Legislature, existed only until the succeeding Legislature came into being.

The succession of the Budget Committee was provided in the resolution creating it in the following words: "Upon the organization of the Legislature at any succeeding session, all authority, powers, duties, papers and records, personnel or staff, and any unexpended balance in any funds appropriated for the use of the committee shall be temporarily transferred to a pro tempore Legislative Budget Committee consisting of the Senate Committee on Rules and of the new Speaker and four Members of the Assembly appointed by him, until the committee as hereinabove provided for is appointed or selected when all such funds available for the use of the committee shall revert to such committee."

According to this provision of the resolution, it was foreseen that the work of the Legislative Budget Committee, by its very nature, must be coordinated with the executive budget, to which it has been largely directed and which has been the purpose of a large part of its study and operation. While large values have been derived continuously through its functioning and while many of these have been translated effectively into the two biennial budget documents, additional dividends consistent with the purposes of the committee will be made avaliable in subsequent reports dealing directly with the budget, special appropriations and administrative reorganizations.

Succession Provided

The succession of the Budget Committee was further clarified and strengthened by further amendment of Joint Rule No. 36 by the Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature in January 1943. This was provided in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 21 in the following terms:

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 21—Amending and Supplementing Joint Rule 36 and Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 4 relative to the Legislative Budget Committee.

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, the Assembly thereof concurring:

First—Joint Rule 36 is amended by striking out the last paragraph thereof (which paragraph begins with the words "Upon the organization" and ends with the words "such committee"), inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"On and after the commencement of a succeeding regular session those members of the committee who continue to be members of the Senate and Assembly, respectively, continue as members of the committee until their successors are appointed, and the committee continues with all its powers, duties, authority, records, papers, personnel and staff, and all funds theretofore made available for its use."

Second—Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 4 is amended as follows:

At the end of the text of Joint Rule 36 strike out the semicolon and the words "and be it further:" also strike out the last two paragraphs of said resolution (which begin with the words "Resolved, That a sum" and end with the words "in existence and functioning").

Third—The Legislative Budget Committee mentioned in said Joint Rule 36 is a continuation of the committee created by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22 adopted at the Fifty-fourth Session, with all of the powers, duties, authority, records, papers, personnel and staff, and the unexpended remainder of all funds made available for the use of the Legislative Budget Committee by said Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22.

Fourth—The sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000) is hereby appropriated from the Contingent Funds of the Senate and Assembly for payment of any and all expenses incurred by the Legislative Budget Committee or its members pursuant to and under authority of the provisions of Joint Rule 36, to be expended equally from the contingent funds of the Senate and Assembly.

Legislative Budget Committee and Legislative Auditor—A Departure in Legislative Procedure

The establishment of a permanent Legislative Budget Committee and the employment of a Legislative Auditor with the broad powers set forth in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22, establishing Joint Rule No. 36, is an innovation in California legislative procedure.

This is the culmination of the desire of the Legislature, which has been proposed in several previous sessions since 1931 to provide a legislative organization responsible to the Legislature alone to carry on a continuous program of research, analysis, and observation of governmental administration, for the purpose of securing for legislative consideration all necessary facts on the administration and the cost of State Government.

The proposal to create a fact-finding bureau for the Legislature and responsible solely to that body has taken many forms. Bills have been presented for a Legislative Audit Bureau, a Legislative Research Bureau, a Bureau of Administrative Research and other similar agencies under legislative control, but none of these resulted in a statutory creation. The nearest approach to this procedure in recent years was the Poulson Bill of 1941. This provided for an independent postaudit of the several departments of the State by an officer responsible to the Legislature, but was vetoed by Governor Olson.

Other States Have Similar Organizations

Only one other state, Utah, has an organization like the California Legislative Budget Committee. This was copied in its entirety, resolution rule and all from the California pioneer agency.

Some of the other States of the Union have organizations somewhat similar to the Legislative Budget Committee with its Legislative Auditor. Most of these are permanent organizations. They have as their principal duty the providing of facts for the Legislature on the cost of government for the use of the Legislature in its deliberations, particularly in regard to budgetary appropriations, special appropriation bills and governmental reorganization. Many of them have their legislative independence limited by executive participation in one form or another.

Underlying Reasons for the Creation of a Budget Committee and Establishment of a Legislative Auditor

Succeeding Legislatures for years have felt they were handicapped because of lack of information, particularly so in considering State appropriations and the Governor's Budget. This arose from the fact that the Legislatures did not have reliable information and facts free from bias and prejudice and political considerations upon which it could base its decisions and its legislation.

The Governor's Budget—A Constitutional Requirement

The Executive Budget, prepared in accordance with the provisions of Section 34, Article IV, of the State Constitution, expresses the Chief Executive's view and conclusions. The authorization of the Executive Budget is set forth in Section 34, Article IV, of the Constitution in the following terms:

> "The Governor shall, within the first 30 days of each regular session of the Legislature and prior to its recess, submit to the Legislature, with an explanatory message, a budget containing a complete plan and itemized statement of all proposed expenditures of the State provided by existing law or recommended by him, and of all its institutions, departments, boards, bureaus, commissions, officers, employees and other agencies, and of all estimated revenues, for each fiscal year of the ensuing biennial period; together with a comparison, as to each item of revenues and expenditures, with the actual revenues and expenditures for the first fiscal year of the existing biennial period and the actual and estimated revenues and expenditures for the second fiscal year thereof. If the proposed expenditures for the ensuing biennial period shall exceed the estimated revenues therefor, the Governor shall recommend the sources from which the additional revenue shall be provided."

The Governor and Governor-elect, moreover, have the power to secure information and assistance in the preparation of their budget, thereby giving them a means of securing the facts which are not open to the Legislature. The authority for this as set forth in Section 34, Article IV, of the Constitution, is provided in the following words:

> "The Governor, and also the Governor-elect, shall have the power to require any institution, department, board, bureau, commission, officer, employee or other agency to furnish him with any information which he may deem necessary in connection with the budget or to assist him in its preparation."

If the Chief Executive has a political policy requiring appropriations, he can include these in the Budget. This has been true of every Executive Budget since the first one made by Governor Richardson in 1923. If he favors one program as opposed to another, he can enlarge the expenditures in the Budget for this while he can curtail those functions of government which he does not favor. There is little opportunity for the departments concerned to make their voice felt unless they can go directly to the Legislature. This is frequently very difficult to do, and even if it is done the weight of the Chief Executive and the Department of Finance, which exercises control over State spending, will be found in opposition.

The administration has a trained Budget staff and a large auditing force in the Department of Finance working continuously on the Budget, fiscal year budgets, control of expenditures and the auditing thereof. These men are available to prepare and present the Governor's program. These experts and technicians are continuously and readily available at the call of the Governor. Experience has shown that even these employees with full civil service protection bow to the will and desires of the Governor and his Director of Finance under whom they must work.

Legislature Handicapped in Considering Budget Appropriations

The Legislature, on the other hand, has a more limited opportunity to secure facts in relation to the Budget and appropriations as are recommended by the Governor and as appear in special appropriation bills. Previously to the establishment of the Joint Budget Committee and the employment of a Legislative Auditor they resorted to special investigating committees. The authority of the Legislature to secure such facts as provided in the Constitution is found in Section 37, Article IV, in the following terms:

> "In order to expedite the work of the Legislature, either house of the Legislature may by resolution provide for the appointment of committees to ascertain facts and to make recommendations as to any subject within the scope of legislative regulation or control, and joint committees for such purposes, consisting of members of both houses, may be created by concurrent resolutions.
> The resolution creating any such committee may authorize it to act either during sessions of the Legislature or after final adjournment. Any such committee shall have such powers and perform such duties as may be provided by the resolution creating it and in addition shall have such powers and perform such duties as may be provided by law or by the rules of the Legislature or either house thereof."

In previous years, in compliance with this section of the Constitution, succeeding Legislatures have appointed committees to ascertain facts in relation to State appropriations, administration and expenditures.

One very fruitful committee of this kind was Senate Fact-Finding Committee of the Fiftieth Session (1933) headed by Senator David F. Bush, and whose report is commonly known as the Bush Fact-Finding Report. Many other committees have from time to time functioned as interim committees or during the sessions of the Legislature. Frequently, however, the matter of analysis of the Budget and the passing thereon has been left to the Finance Committee in the Senate and the Ways and Means Committee in the Assembly. Generally, but not always, the respective chairmen of these committees, out of courtesy, have been selected either with the approval and full knowledge of the Governor, or at least with his tacit approval.

These committees, dealing with the Executive Budget and the Budget Appropriation Bill and special appropriations, generally have been divided into subcommittees for the consideration of specific parts of the Budget or specific appropriation bills. These subcommittees have done yeoman service and, in some instances, particularly meritorious work under great handicaps and with the too limited time available to cover thoroughly the matters under consideration.

Technical Assistance Needed

For a long time many members of the Legislature have felt the need of the Legislature having its own employee responsible to itself, constantly on the job securing information on State expenditures, the functioning of State Government, reviewing each and every department's operation with the purpose of presenting the facts to the Legislature and making suggestions for consolidation of activities, elimination of duplications, and the establishment of greater efficiency; and with the over-all purpose of having immediately available essential facts upon which to base legislation, particularly in respect to appropriations. It has been generally felt in the Legislature that a Legislative Research Bureau or a Legislative Auditor or some similar office of the Legislature should provide the facts of governmental administration and the cost thereof for the Legislature on an unbiased, nonpartisan basis in a similar fashion to that of the Legislative Counsel in its rendering of legal opinions and drafting of bills for the Legislature, its committees and individual members.

Meetings of Budget Committee

It was the intention of the resolution creating the committee that the Legislative Budget Committee should meet from time to time between sessions and during the sessions to consider matters within its jurisdiction and to review reports of the Legislative Auditor and to consider such bills and proposals as were referred to it or fall within its purview. The first regular committee held five meetings, most of them two-day sessions, all of them held at the Capitol. The enlarged committee, existing during the Extraordinary Session of the 1941 Legislature, held seven meetings. Besides this, several subcommittees held a number of meetings in Sacramento, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Oakland on subventions to counties and cities, fire disaster plan, and civilian defense.

Effectiveness of Legislative Budget Committee Demonstrated

The committee established a procedure and method of operation that demonstrated its effectiveness during the Extraordinary Session of the 1941 Legislature, and its observation and checking of the expenditures of the several State departments resulting in a series of economy recommendations to the Governor, and subsequently in its cooperation with the Governor-elect Warren in presenting information during the Budget hearings for the biennium, 1943-45.

The Budget Committee created by the Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature, January, 1943, held seven regular meetings, most of them two-day meetings and all held in the Capitol. It also held many short sessions during the meeting of the Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature and the four special sessions. Besides this it held two joint meetings with the Senate Committee on Postwar Construction Program and Assembly Committee on Postwar Rehabilitation.

Operations of the Committee During the Special Session of 1941

The temporary office of the Legislative Budget Committee was established in Room 416, Capitol Building. Later quarters were secured in Room 445 which are conveniently located near the Legislative Committee rooms but are not adequate or satisfactorily designed to carry on intense government research work. A small staff was employed and study just begun when the incident of Pearl Harbor occurred. Immediately the Governor called a special session of the Legislature and the regular work and program of the Budget Committee was at once suspended.

The Legislative Auditor was instructed by the chairman to drop everything he was doing and to immediately start analyzing the various proposals the Governor was putting forth to meet the war emergency, particularly the State Guard.

These proposals included the enlargement of the State Guard, the expansion of the State Council of Defense, and appropriating a vast sum to the Emergency Fund of the State in order to take care of wartime contingencies which it was believed would arise in practically every department of the State Government. All the departments of the State immediately felt that they should assume responsibility for carrying on the war in one or more of its several phases, and requested large appropriations accordingly.

In fact, the first proposals were for appropriations totaling $110,000,000, some $45,000,000 of which was to be for the State Guard for the remainder of the biennium, a period of some 18 months. By the time the Legislature was assembled, the requests had been reduced to approximately $45,000,000.

The Legislative Auditor increased his force and secured some volunteer assistants to carry on the concentrated studies necessary to provide sufficient facts for the Legislature on the various questions and proposed appropriations.

The Enlarged Legislative Budget Committee

The Legislative Budget Committee was enlarged to 22 members December 22, 1941, by Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 19, Resolutions, Chapter 30, First Extraordinary Session, 1941, and given specific duties as shown in the following copy:

AMENDED IN SENATE DECEMBER 22, 1941

INTRODUCED BY MR. LYON

December 22, 1941

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE ON RULES

Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 19—Relative to augmentation of the membership and functions of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, and making additional funds available for the work of the committee.

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, the Senate thereof concurring, That for the duration of this extraordinary session of the Legislature which convened on the nineteenth day of December, 1941, and for the consideration of subjects of legislation specified in the proclamation by which this session was convened, the membership of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee (created by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22 at the Fifty-fourth Regular Session of the Legislature) is hereby augmented, as follows:

The Speaker of the Assembly shall appoint to said committee those members of the present Assembly Standing Committee on Rules who are not already members of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, and the Senate Standing Committee on Rules shall appoint an equal number of members of the Senate to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, to the end that during the time and for the purposes stated the membership of said joint committee be augmented by an equal number of members from each house;

Said additional memberships shall cease and terminate upon final adjournment of the Legislature at this Extraordinary Session and thereafter the membership of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee shall be the same as if this resolution had not been adopted; and be it further

Resolved, That during this Extraordinary Session, including any recesses thereof, the Joint Legislative Budget Committee (in addition to its existing powers and duties and not in derogation or diminution of any thereof) is charged with the duty of conducting studies and investigations and collecting information and data and reporting to the Legislature concerning any and all subjects specified in said proclamation; and be it further

Resolved, That in addition to moneys otherwise made available to the committee, the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) is hereby appropriated from the Contingent Funds of the Senate and Assembly, to be expended equally from the Contingent Funds of the Senate and Assembly in carrying out the work of the committee and defraying the expenses of the committee and its members.

The additional members were Senators Robert W. Kenny, Harry L. Parkman, John Phillips, Peter P. Myhand, Clarence C. Ward, Jesse M.

Mayo, and Assemblymen Charles W. Lyon, Hugh M. Burns, Harrison W. Call, Earl D. Desmond, Ernest O. Voigt and Gardiner Johnson.

Special Session Appropriations Considered

All proposed appropriations of the special session were referred to this committee. After considering the various proposals of the Governor and the demands of the people for appropriations, the enlarged Budget Committee conducted hearings. They called on the Director of Finance to explain the appropriation proposals, and on the various departments and agencies of the State concerned, including The Adjutant General in relation to the State Guard, the representatives of the Department of Natural Resources and the Division of Forestry in relation to the Emergency Fire Disaster Plan, the Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Criminal Identification, and all other agencies that might possibly be concerned with the war effort.

These hearings demonstrated that facts were not immediately available on which to base sound judgment. The Legislative Budget Committee then recommended that the special session recess for two weeks to give the committee and its Legislative Auditor an opportunity to analyze the appropriation bills, to meet with the Director of Finance and the heads of the departments and agencies concerned to make as complete an analysis of all of these matters as time would allow.

Requests Reduced and Large Savings Made

This procedure was followed and the success of its operation is demonstrated by the fact that the requests of the Governor for $45,000,000, after a careful study and consideration, were so reduced that all of these, together with some additional items not included by the Governor, totaled only $15,643,344.62 in the final appropriations. This amply demonstrated the desirability and effectiveness of the Legislature's having before it all possible information and facts concerning proposed appropriations.

Appropriations Sufficient

Time has demonstrated that estimates of the Legislative Budget Committee as respects these special appropriation bills were reasonably accurate, rather than the Governor's request for $45,000,000. The Legislature's approval of appropriations for $15,646,344 met all necessary requirements. In other words, the legislative appropriation for approximately one-third of what the Governor requested, and in round numbers, $30,000,000 less than he requested, was sufficient to carry all of the requirements of the State up to the meeting of the next session of the Legislature. This is what the Legislature intended to do. The facts demonstrate that the Legislature was right, and if an error was made it was made on the side of adequacy, for not only has the State carried on satisfactorily and met the wartime emergency with the appropriations made, but in almost every instance there was sufficient money to carry all of the activities concerned to the convening of the Legislature, and in some cases to the close of the biennium.

It was estimated the State Guard should have enough money to last it well into March. It had in fact a substantial margin. The Fire Disaster Plan was functioned almost to the close of the biennium. All of the other agencies were able to carry on satisfactorily. Moreover, the appropriation to the Emergency Fund was sufficient to do everything required and there was a sufficient balance to adequately meet the needs of the State.

Besides this, each and every department of the State has been able to pay a wartime bonus of $15 per month to each State employee, financed out of salary savings. They were able to carry this on through January and part of them through February, 1943. The meeting of this emergency, while possibly desirable, was not mandatory. The money could have been used to have met some other more pressing need and the solution of this problem of assisting State employees to meet the increased cost of living could have been left to the 1943 Legislature.

Appropriations Specific—No Blank Checks

What is more important than just the reduction of appropriation requests was that the appropriations were not made as was requested by the Governor in the way of a blank check by having all appropriations made to the Emergency Fund and allowing the Governor to distribute them as he saw fit and making them available for supplementing any appropriation made in the Appropriation Act of 1941. These appropriations were made direct to the departments, divisions and bureaus of the State, with the exception that the General State Emergency Fund was restored to $1,000,000 net, after allowing for allotments already promised from the Emergency Fund and an estimated allotment of $185,000 for the State Council of Defense.

A special appropriation was made to the Emergency Fund as soon as the Legislature convened in the sum of $1,000,000 with $500,000 of this allocated to the State Guard. This was done on the recommendation of the Budget Committee so as to meet the emergency and to carry on the operations of the State Government during the two-week interval while the special session was in recess. There also was voted subsequently an addition of $1,000,000 to the Special Emergency Fund set aside to meet the increased price in food for the State institutions and prisons.

Facts Essential for Legislation

Through relying on the recommendations of the enlarged Budget Committee and its staff, the Legislature was not stampeded into turning over the treasury to the Governor because of the Pearl Harbor incident. After organizing the special session and listening to the Governor's Message and his proposals and after passing the first emergency allotment of $1,000,000, the Legislature referred all appropriation measures to the enlarged Legislative Budget Committee. It allocated $5,000 additional funds to this committee to be used in considering the special session bills. The Legislature then recessed for two weeks, for specific purpose of giving the Legislative Budget Committee time to study the proposed appropriations.

The Legislative Auditor and his staff concentrated on the job. He reviewed these requests and all information provided by the Director of Finance, by the departments and divisions concerned, and secured independently other data. Out of this accumulation he made recommendations as to specific amounts for the various appropriations. With the exception of the appropriation for legislative printing of $40,000, the Emergency Fund for the University of California for $500,000, and the contingent Assembly expense item of $5,055.62, and the Assembly mileage item of $2,500, the amounts as recommended by the Legislative Auditor to the Legislative Budget Committee and by this committee to the Legislature appear in the final appropriation acts exactly as recommended.

A list of the appropriations, showing the bill numbers, the agencies, the amounts of the original requests, the amounts of the appropriations approved and the chapter numbers follows herewith. These are presented in detail for the reason that these added wartime appropriations directly carry over into the Budget for 1943-45 and appear in various ways in the Governor's Budget for 1945-47, mostly as part of the normal expenditure program although they all started as wartime emergencies.

* Request made for the Department of Health.

† Appropriation to the California Polytechnical School is in the form of a loan from the General Fund and is to be repaid out of moneys allocated to the California Polytechnical School from the Fairs and Expositions Fund.

‡ Includes $185,000 for State Council of Defense. Governor requested $285,000.

It should be noted that the request for the Emergency Fund originally included all items other than the State Guard, so there is, in fact, in this schedule a duplication. In making comparisons this item should be reduced by the amount of the original requests allocated to the different departments and to the Special Emergency Fund.

The whole matter of appropriations requested by the Governor at the special session was one of confusion. This followed from the fact that the Governor at first merely requested a blanket appropriation to the Emergency Fund and an appropriation for the State Guard. Subsequently, on request of the Budget Committee, these were broken down by the Director of Finance in two schedules. The first one, requested for the 12 months' period ending December 31, 1942, for the war emergency exclusive of the State Guard, $15,104,189. On January 6th, after the Budget Committee had insisted on a breakdown of this request and an allocation to the different departments, the Director of Finance requested an appropriation to the Emergency Fund for immediate defense needs of the State during the remainder of the present year the sum of $8,790,843, as an augumentation of the Emergency Fund exclusive of support of the State Guard in addition to the $500,000 already appropriated by the special session to the Emergency Fund, over and above the $500,000 allocated in the Emergency Fund appropriation to the State Guard.

Some of the items that were approved by the Legislature as primary were considered as secondary in the Director of Finance's schedule. Some other items approved by the Legislature did not appear at all in the Governor's requests or in the Director of Finance's schedule, so that in fact, as measured by the Governor's requests, the recommendations for appropriations were by the Legislative Budget Committee and finally approved by the Legislature were relatively much less than the total appropriation of $15,644,344.

Contribution of the Legislative Budget Committee During the 1941 Session

There were four contributions following from the work of the Legislative Budget Committee during the special session.

1. The appropriations were reduced to amounts actually needed.
2. A more equitable treatment of the needs of the State was secured and some appropriations not requested were made where needed.
3. The need for appropriations had to be demonstrated and the facts considered, rather than merely the approval of a blanket sum.
4. Reasonable control of expenditures was established through making appropriations direct to the agencies concerned and through certain limitations placed in the appropriation bills.

The volume of work required on the part of the Legislative Auditor and by the Budget Committee to handle the special session fiscal matters can hardly be appreciated by anyone who did not participate. The job was all the more difficult due to the fact that the time available was very limited and proposals were changed frequently. For example, no less than 26 different sets of figures and estimates were required for the numerous Guard bills that at one time or another were before the Legislature and its committees. Each of these required very careful calculations not only for the amount of pay depending upon the strength of the Guard, but also the cost for subsistence, equipment, transportation, hospitalization, administration and other miscellaneous items. Many of these did not vary in direct ratio with the strength of the Guard, but had to be calculated in relation to the number of organizations. Each time the strength of an organization or the number in an organization or an active duty was varied the cost therefor had to be calculated accordingly.

The calculations made for the appropriations for the Division of Forestry to function the Fire Emergency Plan were almost as complicated. These had to be divided up into several categories, such as the allotment for stand-by equipment, that for the operation of a mobile pool, the purchase of pool equipment, and the allotment for the operation of a dispatch system. These, in turn, had to be calculated for varying periods of time. This also required the making of estimates for the normal operation of the Division of Forestry and for the winter move-up plan for fire protection, using normal equipment.

The only reason that satisfactory results were secured in this emergency in relation to appropriations followed from the fact that the Legislative Budget Committee was already organized and the Legislative Auditor was already intimately familiar with the entire operation of the State Government, and also that he already had in hand available for the committee basic information which could be used at a moment's notice.

Both the State Guard and the Fire Emergency Plan in the Division of Forestry are part of the war time agencies continued into the 1945-47 budget. Their consideration by the Budget Committee will be facilitated by this earlier work.

Continuous Research Necessary

The importance of continuously collecting, compiling, adjusting, and coordinating facts on the cost of the Government of California and on the operations of each department and agency of the State so as to be prepared to supply the Legislature at all times with these facts can not be over-estimated. It is absolutely essential to have this storehouse of information available on short notice in order to provide the facts for current problems the Legislature must consider and for the long-time view that is required when the Legislature makes appropriations to cover a biennium which may end from two to two and a quarter years in the future.

A continuous study of the operations of government and the compilation of essential facts is required if the Legislative Auditor is to provide the Budget Committee and this, in turn, the full Legislature, with the information needed for considering the Biennial Budget, special appropriation bills, the revision of governmental organization and such other administrative matters as will come before the Legislature.

This is particularly important when we consider that each session of the Legislature not only adds more duties to existing departments and agencies of the State, but it frequently creates additional agencies and commissions. Moreover, with power vested in department heads to reorganize their departments with the approval of the Governor and the authority of certain other officers, bureaus, and commissions to reorganize or enlarge their functions without additional legislative approval, there is a continually changing administrative organization of the State. Additional functions, both with and without legislative approval, become effective during the interim between sessions and concerning which there is no experience available to the Legislature on which to formulate appropriations or enact legislation. Many of these new services or enlarged services appear in each new Budget merely as a request for an appropriation and never have been passed on by any Legislature.

With the existence of the Legislative Budget Committee with its staff continuously functioning, the Legislature has an instrumentality whereby it can observe the operation of the already existing functions of government, and the new or additional agencies and functions and the cost and operation thereof can be reported back to the Legislature. The Legislature can observe whether or not the will of the people as expressed through the Legislature has been carried into effect or whether it has been circumvented. This value was amply demonstrated immediately following the Special Session of the 1941 Legislature and continuously since.

Continuance of Regular Program

After the Special Session was over the Legislative Auditor went back to his regular work following the instructions of the committee, studying the State Government, but with an added job as set forth in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6, copy as follows:

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION No. 6

Chapter 4

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6—Relative to calling upon the Governor and other State officials to preserve the strictest economy during the present war emergency and instructing the Legislative Auditor to observe the extent to which this is done.

WHEREAS, The United States of America can not apply its maximum strength toward the winning of the great war in which it is now engaged unless all of its resources, whether public or private, are made available for its tremendous war needs; and

WHEREAS, Every expenditure by this State, however desirable during time of peace, which does not advance the war effort of this country diverts resources otherwise available for that effort and deprives the inhabitants of this country of funds which would otherwise be available to pay the mounting Federal taxes and to purchase defense bonds and stamps; and

WHEREAS, The funds now available for expenditure by the various departments and other agencies of the State were appropriated by the Legislature prior to the present war emergency, and, hence, this Legislature did not approve their expenditure under present conditions; and

WHEREAS, The present State taxes were imposed at a time when the United States was not at war, and, therefore, there is no indication by the Legislature that the State is warranted in imposing these taxes at the present time; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, the Assembly thereof concurring, That the Governor of this State, the Director of Finance, and all State departments and agencies, whether self-supporting or supported from the General Fund, undertake to reduce all expenditures to the minimum amounts required to maintain services necessary in themselves or necessary to further the war effort; and be it further

Resolved, That all heads of State departments and other agencies are urged to appraise immediately every possibility of securing economy in their respective departments or agencies, including, whenever possible, leaving vacant the positions of State employees leaving the departments or agencies, and be it further

Resolved, That the Legislative Auditor is instructed to observe the extent to which the policies expressed in this resolution are carried out and to make periodic reports thereon to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to furnish copies of this resolution to the Governor, Director of Finance, and the Legislative Auditor. This resolution provided that the Legislative Auditor should observe and report to the Legislative Budget Committee what economies the State Departments and divisions of government were making in the light of the war effort.

As instructed by the committee, the Legislative Auditor immediately sent out a circular letter to all of the department heads, bureau chiefs, and agencies of the State Government, calling upon them to make a report.

Upon receipt of this notice the departments and agencies of the State immediately began to consider their program and in general they communicated to the Legislative Auditor economies already being made effective, or which were contemplated.

As a result of Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6, the work of the Legislative Auditor was immediately enlarged and he has included this subject in each subsequent report to the Legislative Budget Committee.

Economy Suggestions

At the April, 1942, meeting of the Budget Committee, the Legislative Auditor presented some 56 economy suggestions which might be considered State-wide in the operation of State Government. After carefully reviewing these suggestions they were approved and the committee, on the invitation of the Governor, transmitted these suggestions to him.

The Legislative Auditor has followed carefully the possibilities of making these suggestions effective. He is able to report that approximately half of them were either made effective or were in the process of being made effective by the Governor or the department heads or agency chiefs before Governor Olson went out of office. These economy suggestions were not adopted as universally as was possible. In some instances, there were not only no responses but opposition and antagonism to the legislative suggestions appeared. The committee is pleased to report that subsequently numerous of these economy suggestions have been adopted. Just recently (1944) the suggestions for the reduction in letterheads by use of interdepartmental communication forms was adopted on a State-wide basis. Others of these suggestions, together with added proposals, are now being compiled for further consideration by the committee.

While the committee can not claim full credit for the economies achieved following the suggestions it made, it does not hesitate to claim that it added a directing force in this matter which resulted in rather large economies which have saved the State a considerable sum of money. This savings will accrue over the years, for many of these suggestions are being continued.

Service to Other Legislative Committees

At the second meeting of the Legislative Budget Committee, held November 22, 1941, instructions were given to the Legislative Auditor to render such services as were possible and consistent with his duties to other legislative committees. This he has done continuously. In particular, he has served the Assembly Committee on Governmental Efficiency and Economy and its subcommittee on social security. In one instance he compiled a complete report on the operation of the Division of Commodity Distribution in the Department of Social Welfare. This resulted in legislation which at first completely reorganized and finally led to its abolition. The Legislative Auditor was then instructed to follow through this action so as to inform the Legislature as to what happened to the large volume of property and equipment involved. This property, in January, 1945, is still being liquidated. The latest action was to confer with the Department of Finance on having cut piece goods, mostly children's clothing, sewn into garments by the inmates of the Women's Institution at Tehachapi so that they might be sold to the counties for indigent relief. In other instances the Legislative Auditor has analyzed expenditures, accounting methods and procedures, and the accounts of certain agencies and provided other facts and figures useful in committee deliberations.

The Legislative Auditor also assisted the Senate Building Committee appointed in the Fifty-fourth Session of the Legislature in writing its final report.

During the interim of the Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature, special service was rendered to the Joint Interim Committee on Tax Structure of the State, with special emphasis on the problem of teachers' retirement, financing of education, and the auditing of educational expenditures. All these matters have subsequently been covered by bills either passed by the Legislature or now pending in the Fifty-sixth Session.

Assistance was rendered to the Senate Committee on the Board of Equalization with particular reference to the overlapping in tax administration between the Controller and the Board of Equalization. Bills are now before the Legislature to eliminate these overlaps.

Close cooperation and administrative direction was extended to the Senate Committee on the Motor Vehicle Department. In this instance the Budget Committee shared with the Motor Vehicle Committee half of the cost of conducting a study of this department. The Legislative Auditor employed for the Motor Vehicle Committee auditors, research assistants, and investigators and directed their activity. This cooperation was carried on for the reason that the results would be equally valuable to the Budget Committee and would give a cross-section of certain functions applicable to many departments of the State.

This activity, which is still in progress, has resulted in the Motor Vehicle Committee first recommending to the Governor and the Director of the Motor Vehicles an immediate internal reorganization. This was made effective before the close of the year 1944. It included the elimination of one entire set of accounting machines for pay roll purposes and resulted in the elimination of the intolerable situation whereby temporary employees had to wait from four to 12 weeks before they were able to get their pay for services rendered. The reorganization has also resulted in bringing the work of the department to within a few days of current intake when previously such matters as the transfer of automobiles were delayed six or seven months due to the inability of the department to process its work.

Besides the legislative proposal of the Motor Vehicle Committee itself, the Budget Committee has before it several bills not only affecting the Motor Vehicle Department but state-wide administration.

Special assistance to the Joint Interim Committee on Forestry Conditions in California was rendered, not only in attending the meetings of the Committee but in accompanying the committee on trips inspecting the forests. This was done for the reason that the entire policy of the State in relation to the Division of Forestry and forests is at the point of being changed in a revolutionary way and a considerable change in the law and in appropriations may be required. Other assistance was rendered to the Assembly Governmental Efficiency and Economy Committee in considering the problems of the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum of the Sixth District Agricultural Association. The Morals Committee of the Assembly was assisted by an analysis of the accounts of one of the race tracks.

Other assistance was rendered to the Assembly Committee on Postwar Rehabilitation and the Senate Committee on Postwar Construction Program. Two joint meetings of the Budget Committee with these committees were held when consideration was given to the postwar building program of the States and which resulted in this matter being expedited by the Fourth Special Session of the Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature. It is believed that the cooperation of the Budget Committee and the Legislative Auditor prior to the convening of the session greatly expedited consideration of these matters.

Numerous conferences were held with the members of other legislative committees and information and data too extensive to enumerate were supplied where requested.

All of this work done for the other committees of the Legislature has yielded direct values, not only in providing these committees with facts and figures, but also in securing useful information for the Budget Committee work. For example, the study of the Division of Commodity Distribution in the Department of Social Welfare was used directly and effectively in the Budget hearing on the Department of Social Welfare in 1943 with the result that the Budget request for this activity was materially reduced. The work for the Motor Vehicle Committee in 1943-44 was used in the Budget hearings by the Director of Finance for the 1945-47 Budget. This can likewise be said for the Forestry Committee in relation to the Budget for the Division of Forestry for 1945-47. In a similar manner, other material secured in cooperation with other committees was used both in the 1943-45 and 1945-47 Budget hearings.

Effectiveness of Interim Committees Increased

It is a well known fact that many interim committees secure limited results for the reason that they are handicapped in (1) not having a definite procedure or program, (2) not being in possession of sufficient facts or definite information to operate most effectively, (3) they do not normally know the short cuts as to where or how to secure these facts, what witnesses to call and what questions to ask them to get the end results with the least effort, and (4) they do not have enough of the details surrounding the situation being investigated or appreciation how these can be coordinated with information available in public records. Much time is wasted by these committees in the organization and formulation of a program and in carrying on investigations with the hope that they will hit on something of real value. Frequently a legislative committee knows that some abuse exists but the means of getting at it are not clear. By having a legislative representative continuously on the job, assistance can be given in formulating a program and in setting up a procedure of operation. He can also provide some available basic facts and an indication of what records to examine. He can suggest what witnesses can throw light on the matters at issue. He can prepare an outline of questions to be asked which will build a coordinated body of information necessary for the purposes of the committee. Such procedure will eliminate much of the waste motion and reduce the time and cost of committee operations, and at the same time secure more definite results. This procedure also will make possible the multiple use of information gathered, for frequently information secured by or for one committee will be useful to serve others.

Liaison Service Between Legislative Committees and Administrative Bodies

Legislative committees cannot sit continuously in the interval between sessions. It frequently occurs that they need some one to carry on liaison with administrative bodies. On other occasions they require some one to represent them in dealing with departments or agencies of the State; sometimes merely as an observer or to secure information and report back, or to carry the views of the committee as expressed. On numerous occasions, either by committee action or the action of subcommittees, the Legislative Auditor has been requested to perform such service.

The two postwar committees (Assembly Committee on Postwar Rehabilitation and Senate Committee on Postwar Construction Program) requested the Legislative Auditor to sit in with the Property Acquisition Board and instruct him to work with this board in preparing a plan of specifications for hospital sites. As the request of these same committees, and on the instruction of the Budget Committee, the Legislative Auditor has worked continuously with the Director of Finance and his work committee on preparing a plan for a postwar building program and setting this up on the basis of priorities. This has resulted in scheduling a building program for the State coordinated to meet its needs and falling within the postwar reserve funds. A part of this program was further considered in the Governor's Budget hearing and appears in the 1945-47 Budget in the sum of $14,166,842. While the Legislative Auditor does not concur completely in these recommendations, the difference is in the matter of timing and the contention that the Legislature should act specifically on each new service before it is approved for an appropriation. In other respects it is believed that the request for capital outlay is more nearly in line with actual need than if it had not been subjected to the scrutiny of this working committee.

Special Legislative Assignment

The Legislature by statute has given the Legislative Auditor only one specific service to perform. This was in making him a member of the Postwar Public Works Review Board. In this connection his responsibilities are defined in the following terms: "The Legislative Auditor shall have the same duties and powers as the other members of the board to the extent that such duties and powers are constitutionally compatible with his position as Legislative Auditor." The total appropriation for the purpose of this act is $10,000,000. The procedure and action involves the establishment of a somewhat new policy on the part of the State.

The board held one meeting. After reviewing its obligations and considering the proper procedure to follow, the board felt that there was a grave question of the constitutionality of the act and moreover the Controller would not make a payment under its provisions until the constitutionality had been tested. The Legislative Auditor held that all phases of the act should be tested, particularly the question as to the gift of State money under prohibition set up in the Constitution. The board decided therefore to review the act with the understanding that the constitutionality of the statute would be tested. The matter is now before the Supreme Court of the State.

Functions of the Committee in Relation to the 1943-45 Budget

To properly consider the Budget for 1945-47 and the recommendations of the Legislative Budget Committee in respect to it, it is necessary not only to go back to the appropriations made at the Special Session of the Legislature following Pearl Harbor, which have been previously listed, but it is also necessary to consider the principles the Budget Committee adopted in considering the 1943-45 budget. This is necessary for the reason that the wartime appropriations began in the special session following Pearl Harbor. They were continued and enlarged in the 1943-45 Budget and in the appropriations passed by the 1943 Legislature, both in regular and special sessions and they have been carried forward into the 1945-47 Budget.

Since the Governor has assumed in making the 1945-47 Budget that the war will end in the second year of the biennium, two major principles have been followed. First, the wartime activities should be carried forward into the biennium, probably for the first year. Second, conversion to peacetime activities should take place in the second year. It is clearly necessary, therefore, to know what wartime activities were carried through the 1943-45 Budget and appear in the 1945-47 Budget and should terminate in this biennium. It is also necessary to distinguish war time activities from normal peacetime activities or else these will become confused and the various agencies and departments of the State will seize upon the opportunity to get increased appropriations for normal activities and peacetime operation. This is just exactly what they have done in many instances. The details will be pointed out in a section considering specifically the 1945-47 budget.

The committee adopted an original policy to be followed in preparing for consideration of the Governor's Budget 1943-45, and instructed the Legislative Auditor to review each and every department, division, commission and agency of the State, with the idea of making effective all possible economies. The committee desired to have in hand an analysis of the operation of the State Government which would give them the facts as to both the method and the cost for performing all of the services supplied by the State. Duplications, overlapping of functions, surplus employees, extravagant use of supplies and materials, and all other unnecessary expenditures, as far as possible, were to be pointed out. All of this was to be presented on a factual basis.

Intent of Legislature in Connection With State War Activities

It was the intention of the committee in its original plan to have such information in hand and then to consider the Governor's Budget requests as found in the Budget and in appropriation bills and with these facts, to reduce all proposed expenditures to the minimum amounts required to maintain services necessary in themselves or necessary to further the war effort.

In this procedure the committee followed the spirit of Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6 previously noted. This called upon all State departments and agencies to reduce expenditures following these general principles. It should be noted that in this resolution, the Legislature gave full import to the fact that we are at war and it called upon the heads of all State departments and agencies to appraise immediately every possibility of securing economies in their respective departments or agencies. The Legislature said that it expected that wherever it was possible to leave vacant the positions of State employees who were engaged in the war effort, that this would be done. The committee stated that they felt that the Nation's war effort demanded every resource and energy be dedicated to winning the war at the earliest possible moment. To achieve victory drastic changes in the normal operation of government as well as in the private lives of citizens are necessary. Luxuries in governmental spending must go as luxuries in civilian life are going.

The committee held that appropriations should be based upon the assumption that the war would continue through the period of the Budget or in other words through the biennium to June 30, 1945. Therefore appropriations should be made on this basis. They further expressed the view that government activities clearly made necessary by the war effort, or which contributed to winning the war, should be provided for to the extent necessary for their effectiveness. With these principles in mind, the committee instructed the Legislative Auditor to review the activities and functions of the State agencies and to examine them critically as to their necessity under wartime conditions, with the thought that every expenditure which does not clearly serve an essential service of government needed in wartime, should be eliminated.

They further instructed him that those agencies which assumed additional responsibilities as a result of the war should finance them as far as possible out of this existing Budget by curtailing or eliminating functions not essential to the war effort. The operations of each agency was to be analyzed to see that the war effort assumed a proper function and could best be performed in that particular agency, and also that it did not overlap with some other agency. In addition such special items as were solely developed to meet the war effort should be clearly set out and kept distinguishable from the regular activities so that at the end of the war these emergency efforts would not appear as a permanent activity of the agency concerned.

We have already stated that this has not been done in all instances, and that frequently these wartime activities now are considered part of the regular operations of several of the departments. This has spread to the entire State service as demonstrated by the fact that the State Employees Association have and are seeking a 10 per cent increase in wages on a permanent basis although it is admitted that it is requested for the purpose of meeting the increased cost of living which is clearly a wartime result. This despite the fact that the Legislature approved a wartime bonus and the Personnel Board is empowered by law to recommend adjustments in salary either upward or downward so as to comply with the law that the salaries of State employees shall be comparable to those paid to employees of other governmental agencies and to employees in private enterprise. If the Personnel Board has not functioned satisfactorily in this matter, requests for redress should be directed to this factor, this failing, a request should logically be made to increase the wartime bonus to meet a wartime increase in cost of living.

Plan of Operation of the Committee Modified

It was the plan of the committee that the information secured, to be used in connection with the 1944-45 Budget, should be held on file and used in relation to requested appropriations after the Governor had presented his Budget. This plan was modified for the reason that prior to the election, when the Department of Finance began to collect material and estimates in preparation for the Budget, the Director of Finance advised State agencies to make budgets on an economy basis. On September 28, 1942, the Director of Finance sent out Circular Letter No. 214 to all State departments, boards, commissions, etc., covering the Budget requests for 1944-45. This letter contained substantially the economy expressions promulgated by the Legislative Budget Committee. Subsequently, the Governor-elect, Honorable Earl Warren, stated that he concurred in the general principles expressed in this letter and that he desired that they be followed in preparing his Budget.

Operations of Committee in Preparation of 1943-45 Budget and Results Secured

Governor-elect Honorable Earl Warren, shortly after the November, 1942, election, contacted the Chairman of the Legislative Budget Committee and requested all possible assistance in formulating a sound economy Budget. His ideas were very much in line with the principles previously enunciated by the committee. He also stated that he would appreciate any assistance rendered to help produce an economy Budget. He invited the Legislative Auditor, as representing the Legislative Budget Committee, to sit in at the Budget hearings and requested that he participate fully in the hearings and also in the final consideration of the 1943-45 Budget before the items were finally determined.

The Budget Committee at its December 4, 1942, meeting, discussed this matter and instructed the Legislative Auditor to render every assistance to the Governor-elect, participating in the budget hearings, and to bring out such facts as were necessary in making a decision upon requested appropriations as respects their necessity to carry on the essential functions of State Government and forward the war effort.

Participation in 1943-45 Budget Hearing and Results Achieved

The Legislative Auditor attended all of the Budget hearings, both open and closed, held by the Department of Finance and the Governor-elect, and participated along the lines instructed. In addition, numerous conferences were held with representatives of the Department of Finance working on the Budget covering specific items, both as to inclusion, reduction, or elimination from the Budget.

The facts and information presented and brought out by the questions asked by the Legislative Auditor materially affected the Budget both as to its final size and the equity of allotments. It should not be inferred that through this procedure that the Legislative Auditor universally agreed with the conclusions in the Budget or that complete results were secured, or that much more could not have been done to secure greater economy as respects many appropriations.

The procedure subsequent to this and final results will be given after considering procedure in relation to the present 1945-47 Budget.

The Budget Committee, when it instructed the Legislative Auditor to participate in the Budget hearings, also directed him to secure all possible facts as respects appropriation requests and to make a further analysis thereof and to present these to the Legislative Budget Committee at their subsequent meetings. The information thus secured was used, together with the data collected previously concerning each department and agency, in reviewing the Executive Budget and in considering the Budget Bill and such other appropriation bills as came before the Legislature.

Results Desired

It was felt by the Budget Committee that the procedure above outlined would result in securing a more economical and satisfactory Budget document to be presented by the Governor in the first instance to the Legislature, and also that the Legislative Budget Committee could effectively review the Executive Budget and consider the Budget Bill and such other special appropriation bills as come before the Legislature with a minimum of effort. This would follow from the fact that the original Budget Document itself would reflect much of the information secured by the Legislative Budget Committee and passed on to the Governor-elect during the Budget hearings. This should result in mutual agreement on many items in the Budget and in first-hand knowledge concerning the decisions made by the Governor-elect on other items. With this information and other necessary facts the Legislative Budget Committee could recommend to the Legislature such action as the facts demonstrate to be desirable.

In this way it was felt the consideration of the Governor's Budget should be reduced to a much shorter period of time than has been customary in the past. This bottleneck in legislative operations, where the Constitution provides that no appropriation bill, other than an urgency measure, can be considered before the Budget Bill is passed, would be broken. Legislative business would be expedited. Moreover, the final appropriation bill should provide for all necessary appropriations on a more fair and equitable basis. The legislative session should be considerably shortened and a greater degree of understanding of appropriation requests exist, and resultant harmony in legislation should prevail.

Results Justified Procedure of Budget Committee

The committee believes that there is general agreement that results secured amply justified the above procedure and the work done in carrying it into effect. The original Budget requests of the departments, commissions, and agencies of the State were materially reduced in the hearings and what is even more important, the allocation of funds was made more equitable as between departments and agencies.

The Governor's Budget as presented to the Legislature was a war time budget and as pointed out by the Legislative Auditor, it was not a strict economy Budget. It was well balanced and in many items there was mutual agreement on the amounts recommended for appropriation. A greater degree of understanding as respects the Budget between the Legislature and the Chief Executive resulted.

The Governor in his Budget Message, page iii, in the following words acknowledged the cooperation of the Legislative Auditor:

> "In all of our Budget hearings we have exchanged views with your Legislative Auditor and feel indebted to him for many valuable suggestions."

The Legislative Auditor was in a position to report to the Budget Committee and the Ways and Means Committee of the Assembly and Finance Committee of the Senate and other legislative committees concerned with appropriations, just how the Budget was prepared and essential details for each department and agency of the State. This was done at the several hearings of these committees considering the Budget and appropriations.

For the first time the Legislature had a technically trained and experienced employee fully familiar with the Budget and each request for appropriations from each and every agency of the State, sitting in with these important committees who were determining the financial program of the State for the biennium 1943-45 for final consideration by the Legislature.

Budget Expedited—Legislative Time Saved

The hope that the Budget could be acted on in shorter time was fulfilled. In fact, the Budget Bill passed through the Ways and Means Committee in the shortest period in the history of the Executive Budget. It passed the Assembly in the shortest time. It went through the Senate Finance Committee in the shortest time and made another first in passage by the Senate.

The Budget for 1943-45 was submitted to the Legislature by the Governor January 30, 1943 just before the recess. The Way and Means Committee of the Assembly started considering it March 8th and passed it out with amendments March 18th. The Assembly received it the same day and amended it and passed it out March 22d. The Senate received it and assigned it to the Finance Committee March 23d. On March 31st they reported back to the Senate with amendments. It was passed by the Senate the same day. It went to the Assembly for concurrence in amendments and was passed by the Assembly April 1st and was signed by the Governor the next day—April 2d, 1943.

The Budget Bill for 1941-43 was not approved by the Governor until June 5, 1941, or more than two months later.

The work of the Budget Committee certainly aided in expediting legislation and thereby assisted in shortening the 1943 Session—this alone resulted in considerable savings of the people's money not to mention the dispositions of legislators and State officials.

Fuller Consideration of Budget Gives Better Expression of Legislative Intent

In addition to expediting Budget hearings and bringing out the facts on requested appropriations, the committee hearings were more directly on the matters before them with many facts considered that otherwise would have been passed over if the Legislature had not had information gathered and analyzed in advance. These facts were brought before the committees either by direct statements of the Legislative Auditor, in answer to questions directed to him, or by questions he asked of the representatives of the departments.

This fuller consideration of the Budget directly on specific questions resulted in a better expression of Legislative intent on appropriations. This was recorded in the minutes of the Ways and Means and Finance committees and subsequently this was used by the Governor and the Department of Finance in exercising budgetary control during the biennium. The Director of Finance asked for a copy of the Ways and Means Committee minutes and used them for this purpose. He also consulted the Legislative Auditor where there was doubt as to the legislative intent in relation to an appropriation. This resulted in extending a more definite legislative control of expenditures and cut down allocations from the Emergency Fund. It saved the State large sums of money.

The Budget Committee feels this clarifying of legislative intent as respects appropriations is essential in controlling final expenditures.

Budget Committee Continued and Strengthened, 1943

The Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature modified Joint Rule No. 36 and strengthened it. The Senate members, W. P. Rich, Jerrold L. Seawell, Arthur H. Breed, Jr., T. H. DeLap and Edward H. Tickle were reappointed. The Assembly members were Earl D. Desmond, Michael J. Burns, Albert C. Wollenberg, George A. Clarke and Charles W. Lyon. Senator W. P. Rich was reelected by the Committee as chairman, Assemblyman Earl D. Desmond was named vice chairman, and Rolland A Vandegrift as secretary.

The committee after organization continued the employment of Rolland A Vandegrift as Legislative Auditor and retained all of the members of the staff. It also gave instructions to continue with the same policies and procedures previously developed. At the same time it instructed the Legislative Auditor to prepare a report on the work of the committee to date, as well as a report on the Governor's Budget and Budget Bill for presentation to the Legislature. Instructions were also given to the Legislative Auditor to work and cooperate with the Ways and Means Committee of the Assembly and the Finance Committee of the Senate on the Budget and Budget Bill and all other appropriation bills. He was also instructed to assist in forwarding the some 50 bills which he had prepared pursuant to instructions "to have a bill drawn when anything is found that needs legislation to correct an abuse, an extravagance or poor governmental organization." These bills, Senate Bills 800 to 851, were introduced by the Budget Committee into the Legislature.

First Partial Report

The first partial report of the committee was presented to the Legislature and printed in the Senate Journal of January 30, 1943. It was also printed separately and has been in large demand by legislators, citizens and research and governmental organizations in and beyond the State.

Subsequent Reports on the Budget

Additional reports entirely on the Budget Bill were issued and appeared in the Senate Journals of March 2, 1943 and May 5, 1943. This information was used directly in considering the Budget for 1943-45 and assisted materially in producing economies and a better balanced Budget as well as expediting the passage of the Budget Bill as has been previously explained.

Due to loss of technical staff, the Legislative Auditor had to personally analyze all budget requests and participate in all budget hearings. This required all available time far beyond any consideration of normal work hours. In addition many other services were rendered when the 1943 Legislature convened, including constant work with the Ways and Means Committee and Finance Committee with particular emphasis on the consideration of the bills above mentioned. Because of lack of time, and insufficient personnel, several analyses of appropriations for various departments were made by the Legislative Auditor, and used in the Budget hearings, but did not appear in the published report. The Budget Committee considered the actual use of the material in holding down appropriations was more important than the time required to compile and publish the information.

Budget Committee Bills 1943 Legislature

At one of its earliest meetings, the Budget Committee instructed the Legislative Auditor to the effect that whenever he encountered any matter that required legislation to correct, that he should have a specific bill drawn by the Legislative Counsel for consideration of the committee. This was done consistently up to the 1943 Session of the Legislature, and has since been followed and will continue during the 1945 Session.

By the time the 1943 Legislature convened, there were some 48 items under consideration. These were presented in 51 bills and introduced in the Senate as SB 800 to 851. The bills, the subject covered, and the action taken on each were as follows:

* Not Budget Committee Bill, as amended.

Ten of these bills became law. One, however, Senate Bill No. 830, was completely changed to a new subject. Another was amended by the Governor to produce the same service, a postwar planning body but an entirely different setup.

Some of the measures that were defeated have since been accomplished in a different way. Others are the subjects of bills before the 1945 Session.

Large Savings Secured

All of these bills were directed toward improving government administration, tighten control over expenditures, or produce economies or better government service. Much good has already resulted from the bills that became law and the principles found in many of the bills that failed have been instrumental in improving the operation of the State's business without law. One bill in particular, Senate Bill No. 824, which provided for the creation of a Board of Budget Appeals and made the Governor's Budget have actual effect of law in budgetary control, brought about a conference between the Governor and the Ways and Means Committee over the matter of a line item Budget appropriation. Out of this conference came the agreement and assurance of the Governor that he would see that budgetary control was exercised and the legislative intent in relation to appropriations followed. This is the reason for using the minutes of the Ways and Means Committee Budget hearings and consulting the Legislative Auditor on appropriations to determine legislative intent as recited above. The net results was the saving by the administration of many millions of dollars—inside the appropriations.

Property Put on Local Tax Roll

Several of these bills resulted in many thousands of dollars of assessed value of land held by the State and not useful for a State purpose being sold by the State and the land becoming taxable locally. In this connection it should also be mentioned that the Budget Committee first developed the proposal to amend the State Constitution to allow the taxing of Federal property in California insofar as it is or may be permitted by Federal law. A member of the Budget Committee prevailed on the Governor to include this item in the call for a Special Session of the 1943 Legislature. It was approved by the Legislature and the Legislative Auditor was instructed to promote its adoption by making factual information available. The amendment was adopted by the people. This may make possible the eventual taxing locally of a vast sum of Federal property. The importance to local government is seen when we learn that in addition to the vast property held by Federal corporations, some 48 per cent of all the land area in California is owned by the Federal Government. In some counties it runs as high at 83 per cent.

Principles Written Into Other Bills in 1943 Legislation

The principles of several of the Budget Committee bills, such as the State should not hold any property which is not needed for a State purpose and keep it off a local tax roll, were written into other bills. Likewise the hours of work required was written into the Budget Act.

Duties of Budget Committee Expanded

By Joint Rule No. 38 the duties of the Budget Committee were further enlarged by adoption of Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 47 of the 1943

Session. This resolution made the Budget Committee the repository for all documents and materials of all committees of the Legislature other than standing committees when such committees have concluded their work.

The provision is as follows:

> "Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, the Assembly thereof concurring, That a new rule, to be numbered 38, is hereby added to the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly, to read as follows:
> 38. Upon the conclusion of its work, any Assembly, Senate, or joint committee (other than a standing committee) shall deliver to the Legislative Budget Committee for use and custody, available to the members of the Legislature, all documents, data, reports and other materials that have come into the possession of such committee and which are not included within the final report of such committee to the Assembly, Senate, or the Legislature, as the case may be."

The reason for this rule develops from the fact that many legislative committees collect valuable facts and material, use some of it for a report and the original material disappears. The new procedure will have this material preserved in a central place for the benefit of the Legislature.

Other Legislative Services of Legislative Auditor

Besides the services already listed in connection with the Budget and appropriation bills, the Legislative Auditor and the staff of the Budget Committee served other committees of the Legislature and supplied information to many members on various bills and supplied numerous requests for figures showing the cost of other bills.

Functions of New Agencies to Be Observed

As a result of the legislative desire for wartime economy and the creation of several new agencies by the 1943 Legislature, the Legislative Budget Committee added more specific instructions to the effect that the Legislative Auditor was to observe the functioning of all new wartime agencies and in particular the wartime economy of other agencies. He was instructed to report back to the committee at its several meetings. In particular the committee's instructions included the Youth Authority, War Council, the State Guard, the Farm Production Council, the Fire Disaster Pool of the Division of Forestry, the Personnel Board in relation to salaries and the wartime bonus, overtime allowed to meet the shortage of manpower, Postwar Building Reserve Fund, and any other added services in other regular departments of the State Government. This specific assignment materially increased the work load and required additions to the research and clerical staff.

Special Sessions 1943 Legislature

The extraordinary sessions of the Fifty-fifth Legislature added greatly to the work of the Budget Committee and its Legislative Auditor.

The two new departments of Correction and Justice were created by the Third Special Session by reorganizing the Department of Penology and adding to the Attorney General's office part of these functions.

The Fourth Special Session was held from June 5, to June 13, 1944. It considered among other matters a completely revised Postwar Building Reserve Program with a number of specific appropriations for plans and others for sites for State buildings and buildings, an added appropriation for the Farm Production Council, also for the Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission and other appropriations.

The Legislative Auditor on instructions from the Budget Committee assisted the Senate Committee on Postwar Construction Program, and the Assembly Postwar Rehabilitation Committee, and had made a comprehensive study of the building needs of the State. He had worked with the Director of Finance and these committees on this whole matter. He had prepared an analysis of the entire matter for these committees.

Legislation Expedited

The Budget Committee had met in two joint meetings with the above-mentioned committees so that when the special session met the matter adding to the Postwar Building Reserve, making appropriations from this for plans for the State buildings and for the University of California, and appropriations for building sites was expedited.

Farm Production Council

The Legislative Auditor conforming to instructions of the Budget Committee to observe all new agencies created by the Legislature had followed from its inception the operations of the Farm Production Council created by the Food and Fiber Act. He had reported to the Budget Committee on several occasions the nature of the organization, the overly large administrative pay roll, the lack of budgetary and other control by the Department of Finance, and the rapidity of expenditures which would exhaust their appropriation before the end of the biennium. He had also reported that the organization was out of hand and was not following good business procedures and was not getting proper return for the money expended. The Legislative Auditor was instructed to follow the matter closely and find out if they could justify an added appropriation at the special session.

The investigation made as a result of this disclosed many irregularities in contracts entered into by the Farm Production Council and other procedures that were of questionable policy. These in particular involved a trusted employee of the council, A. L. (Red) Vollman, an administrative assistant, in his handling of contracts for portable buildings, feeding contracts, and other matters.

The circumstances of these contracts were thoroughly investigated by the Legislative Auditor and his staff, as well as the full operation of the Farm Production Council. The irregularities consisted, among others, of soliciting a bribe by Vollman from the firm of Nelson and Ewing who were the contractors furnishing portable farm labor houses for the council.

The sum of the several contracts or orders amounted to approximately $385,000 on which the net profit was $161,000, round numbers. The size of the profit, plus other matters of delivery, sales tax refunds, addition of loading and hauling charges, acceptance by the Farm Council without houses meeting full specifications, changes in requirements for plumbing, etc., led the Legislative Auditor to suspect serious internal irregularities. This was confirmed by evidence secured including the testimony of Grant Ewing, formerly of the firm of Nelson and Ewing.

This matter came to a head during the special session while the Senate Finance Committee was hearing the request of the Farm Production Council for an additional appropriation. For this reason the Budget Committee directed the Legislative Auditor to give this committee every assistance. The committee asked the Legislative Auditor for a full report and then proceeded to take the testimony of Mr. Ewing.

The results were that the whole matter was turned over to the Attorney General for investigation and action. A. L. "Red" Vollman was prosecuted in Alameda County and was convicted of soliciting a bribe and was sentenced from five to 14 years. An appeal is in the process of being prepared.

Nels E. Nelson pleaded guilty to the charges of bribery in connection with the Vollman case. On December 14, 1944, he began serving six months in the Alameda County jail as one condition of the probation he was granted. He was placed on probation with a five-year suspended sentence with three other conditions:

1. Thirty days after release from jail he must pay the County of Alameda $1,252.72 for the expense of investigating and prosecution of his case.
2. That he satisfy all judgments which may be obtained against him by the State for alleged overcharges and shortages in performance of contracts up to and not exceeding $91,391, which was the amount of his profit on the contracts as shown by tax figures.
3. That 60 days after release from jail, he furnish a $40,000 surety bond as a guarantee of payment of any civil judgment awarded the State.

State May Recover on Contract

The Attorney General in the name of the State of California, has brought suit against the firm of Nelson and Ewing, citing five causes of action for recovery on the contract the Farm Production Council had with them for the building of igloo type portable farm buildings. In these causes of action the State asks, in the first cause of action, for recovery in the amount of $337,827.09 which was the total sum paid to Nelson and Ewing. The second cause of action seeks recovery in the sum of $129,577.63, which is the difference in the actual value of the houses delivered to the State, as determined by the State Architect, and the price paid by the State. In the other three causes of action, recovery is sought of verious sums based upon the causes of action. It appears possible that the State may recover at least the sum stated in the second cause of action.

Special Session Appropriation for Farm Council Reduced

Prior to the meeting of the Fourth Extraordinary Session of the 1943 Legislature, Mr. Parker, Director of the Farm Production Council, announced publicly at a meeting in Los Angeles, that he expected to ask the Legislature for an appropriation of $2,000,000 to support the work of the council for the remainder of the Biennium 1943-45. In this he was supported by those persons who represented agricultural producers, packers and shippers of agricultural products, Chambers of Commerce, and others. The Legislative Auditor at once made inquiry as to how such a Budget could be justified and raised some critical questions.

Shortly thereafter, Mr. Parker submitted a Budget to the Department of Finance of $1,900,000 in round numbers, and shortly thereafter at his suggestion, certain agricultural leaders and representatives of agricultural organizations asked the Legislative Auditor to meet with them and with Mr. Parker and go over the matter.

Prior to this, certain agricultural associations had not only endorsed the work of the Farm Council under Mr. Parker, but had also commended him for his economy and efficiency. At least one such resolution appeared in the publication issued by this farm organization. The Legislative Auditor inquired as to the basis for this resolution and found that the farm organizations and the farm leaders were not acquainted with the actual internal workings of the Farm Council. All that they had to judge the operation by was the fact that Mexican nationals were being made available for farm labor and this helped materially in the stringent farm labor market. They frequently gave credit to the Farm Production Council for services which were performed by a number of organizations.

At the meeting with the agricultural group mentioned above, the Legislative Auditor discovered that the agriculturists did not know the true facts of the situation. The agriculturists did want the Mexican nationals as laborers; they wanted the housing and transportation necessary to handle these laborers, but they did not wish it to cost more than was absolutely necessary.

The budget request for $1,900,000 was reduced by the Director of Finance and we feel that the operations of the Budget Committee had a considerable influence. The actual bill introduced into the Legislature called for an appropriation of $1,014,000. This is certainly a material decrease from the $2,000,000 originally contemplated by the Director of the Farm Production Council.

The exposing of the internal workings of the Farm Production Council came during the hearing on this particular measure by the Finance Committee and as a result the Legislative Auditor recommended that certain financial controls which already exist at law be specifically attached to the appropriation bill requiring the Department of Finance to exercise budgetary control to approve contracts and audit expenditures. This was done. The Legislative Auditor stated that while he believed the $1,014,000 appropriation was about double the amount actually needed, that he could not in the time available estimate with exactness, and if the members of the council themselves would be concerned with the situation, any amount in excess of what was actually needed could be saved.

Subsequently at the instructions of the Budget Committee, the Legislative Auditor has continued to watch the operation of the Farm Council. The entire organization has been reformed and it has not only lived within its budget, but it will end the biennium with a balance of approximately one half million dollars; about one half of this being a balance from appropriations and the other half from the proceeds from the sale of surplus items and supplies to agriculturists.

There is no doubt that if the Budget Committee had not been functioning, the Farm Council would have continued very much as it had operated and possibly would have secured the requested appropriation of $2,000,000 and would probably have spent a major portion of it. On the other hand, there will now be a saving of around one half million dollars from the reduced appropriation and possibly the State will recover another $100,000 from the Nelsen-Ewing contract. It may be of some interest to note that if the $100,000 recovery is accomplished alone, that this will exceed by some 20 per cent the entire expenditure made by the Legislative Budget Committee since it has been in existence, and will be $15,000 more than the entire amount which has been appropriated for the expenditures of the Budget Committee.

Savings Accomplished by the Budget Committee

While no one individual committee or agency of the State can claim complete credit for economies and efficiencies that are made effective, it usually takes some one entity to get such things actually started, and to follow them through to see that they are accomplished. In other words, some entity has to act as a spark plug in the operation of the several parts of the State organization that make an economy or an improvement in government actually effective. Some entity has to act as the leaven that keeps the whole mass active. The Legislative Budget Committee has been this moving entity since the time it was organized. It has continually represented the Legislature in proposing efficiencies and economies and studied operations of State government, searching out duplicating and overlapping functions, poor governmental organization, antiquated procedures in accounting and financial control, and it is constantly reporting back to the Legislature its findings and it has brought these out and made specific recommendations for improvement. It has provided the means whereby every request for appropriation is subjected to careful scrutiny. It has watched the State's business transactions, the liquidation of State organizations, and the disposal of surplus property including the State Relief Administration, the Surplus Commodities Administration, the Farm Production Council, the State Guard, and the surplus lands of the several State departments and agencies. It has also watched carefully the management and control of personnel, which affects the largest single expenditure of the State, that for salaries and wages. It has pointed out abuses in the way of sick leave, vacations, overtime, and pay schedules. Its representative has worked in planning State buildings with the idea of standardization and economy in building so that each and every structure will not only serve the purpose for which it is intended, but will lend itself to the most economical management and operation.

Many of these savings are not only in the original appropriations, but they will accrue over a period of years in securing better government at the least cost.

Starting with the reduction in the Budget requests at the Special Session of the Legislature following Pearl Harbor when Governor Olson requested $45,000,000, and the appropriations allowed by the Legislature exactly as recommended by the Budget Committee were in round numbers $15,000,000, down to the beginning of the Fifty-sixth Session of the Legislature, the Budget Committee believes that it can demonstrate by specific items that for each $1,000 spent by the Budget Committee, it has been instrumental if not the major moving force, in saving the taxpayers of California approximately $1,000,000. Many of these savings will continue over into the future for many years to come. These estimated savings do not include the very tangible but unmeasurable amounts that have been saved merely due to the fact that the Legislature has a permanent organization with trained personnel continually on the job observing the expenditures of State money and the functions of the various departments and agencies of the State. Neither do these savings, as pointed out, include any savings resulting from a consideration of the 1945-47 Budget.

Moreover, at hearings before boards and commissions, the taxpayers have, in a sense, for the first time, a representative and a voice on many occasions when decisions are being made which will involve the expenditure of vast sums of public money, and where otherwise there would be no one to in any way represent the view of the taxpayers. For the most part this has been limited to indirect action, and frequently merely to inquiry and observation, but in a few instances the Budget Committee has directly expressed itself or has instructed its representative, the Legislative Auditor, to present previously determined policies.

This report covers what has been accomplished in a period of 40 months at an expense of $80,000, or at the rate of $2,000 per month. While the Budget Committee feels that its own operations should not be over-expensive, it realizes that a curtailed program has been maintained due to the inability to secure and retain an adequate technically trained staff. In fact, the entire staff, with the exception of the Legislative Auditor, has had two complete turnovers in this period. This has necessitated working the staff that was available without reference to regular hours or established work weeks. A somewhat larger expenditure of approximately $3,000 a month is clearly justified and will yield equivalent results.

Procedure Followed With 1945-47 Budget

In formulating the 1945-47 budget, the Department of Finance on behalf of the Governor made a similar request of the Budget Committee and the Legislative Auditor was instructed to again participate as before. This he has done but with the following medification. He cooperated in all the original budget hearings held by the Department of Finance and participated as if he were a member of the budget staff. He had an opportunity to put questions to the various representatives of the departments and agencies of the State. He could and did bring to the hearing the expressed views of the Budget Committee as given in instructions to the Legislative Auditor at the September 22-23, 1944, meeting of the committee.

These instructions followed those given in considering the 1943-45 Budget presented previously herein, but with the following additions.

Committee Policies

The Committee formally voted that the Legislative Auditor should sit in with the Director of Finance as invited and be directed to help and aid in preparing the coming Budget. In considering the procedure to be followed in relation to the Budget for 1945-47, the committee expressed the view that "the only policy to follow is to practice economy and cut expenses to the bone. The Legislature should scrutinize the Budget very carefully and resort to economy and cut the Budget down substantially."

In the matter of wartime agencies and expenditures, the committee expressed the view that all of these should definitely end with the war and should not be continued as a regular activity of the State Government. With reference to the control of personnel, it was clearly stated by the committee that personnel employed for wartime activity should not be continued after the war ended, and that prewar positions now vacant should not be refilled unless each and every position could be specifically justified; that if departments operated well during the war with reduced personnel, they should be able to do so after the war. In fact, since the departments have claimed that the temporary employees, or those hired during the war, have been less efficient than prewar employees, and since the postwar period should bring back the more efficient employees, then fewer employees should be required to perform the services in normal times. It was stated definitely that every department should justify specifically what they request. The committee stated emphatically that returning military personnel should be given back their old positions and that duration employees should not be retained through the process of creating new positions where there was not a clearly demonstrated need; that the State should not be a charitable institution.

Postwar Building Fund

Considering specifically the Postwar Building Fund, the committee expressed the view that only so much thereof as was to be used for capital outlay during the biennium should be included in the Budget.

War Disaster Fund

It was the conclusion of the committee that the $25,000,000 War Disaster Fund should be left exactly as it is until after the war.

Emergency Fund for Price Increase

The committee expressed the view that only so much of the special emergency fund for the increased cost of commodities should be included as is based on demonstrated necessity. It is not likely that prices will further increase; no special fund should be set up.

Motor Vehicle Valuation

The committee stated that they believed the valuations on motor vehicles for the in lieu tax, as fixed by the last regular session of the Legislature should be continued for the duration of the war.

Dormitories

The committee was very definite in its view that no money should be set up in the Budget or in the postwar building program for dormitories either at the University of California, the State Colleges, or at any of the State schools.

Budget Hearings 1945 Differ From 1943

At the termination of the hearings held by the Director of Finance, in which the Governor did not once participate, the procedure varied from the 1943-45 Budget. Many of the Budgets for the several agencies and departments were determined at these hearings. Several were taken under advisement by the Director of Finance and his staff. A few were taken under advisement to be considered by the Governor. In very few instances did the Legislative Auditor further participate in the Budget determination.

Harmony Prevailed

This does not infer any lack of harmony, merely a change in procedure where the Governor with two years' experience can function differently than can a Governor-elect. The Governor now has his own Budget Maker, the Director of Finance and his other department heads, and his policies are pretty well established. There has been the closest harmony and cooperation between the Director of Finance, Mr. Dean, the Governor's Budget Maker, the Legislative Budget Committee, and its representative the Legislative Auditor.

It was pointed out in our first report on page 18 that the time available to the Governor-elect to prepare the Executive Budget after his election and the date required for its submission to the Legislature, does not make it possible for him to really formulate his own Budget.

Our statement is as follows:

> The limitation on the time available to prepare the Executive Budget after the election of the Governor and the required time of its presentation to the Legislature does not make it possible to make a complete and exhaustive analysis of every Budget request. Furthermore, the incoming Governor and his advisors are not sufficiently armed with the facts and experience to exhaustively cover the Budget requests which, in their total, exceed half a billion dollars. Here is a manifest weakness in the State's budgeting procedure which presents itself with the election of each new Governor. Time and information available to the new Governor and his department heads are absolutely too short subsequent to an election to make possible adequate consideration of the Budget by the newly elected Governor and his newly appointed chiefs. It appears to be desirable to extend this time in some fashion by at least 30, and preferably 60 days. This would result in fuller consideration by the Executive of appropriation requests and undoubtedly a better Budget and a more acceptable document would result. The values which would come from making possible this more detailed consideration would be of maximum amount if the Legislative Budget Committee, through the Legislative Auditor, could participate continuously in the Budget program.
> It is self-evident that under the present conditions the permanent Budget staff of the Department of Finance must be depended upon to provide analyses of expenditures and necessary facts for the Governor-elect. In this instance, and for the first time in the history of the State, the Legislature has had its own representative participate with the Governor-elect in preparing a Budget. From the volume of facts and information gathered by the Legislative Auditor during the past year and from his previous experience with State Budgets and State administration, a distinct contribution and assistance has been made in preparing the Budget which the Governor-elect has welcomed.

Budget 1945-47 Governor's Own Document

This condition is not true of the Budget for the second biennium of the Governor. This Budget must be considered to reflect the well-considered financial plan of the Chief Executive, his department heads and his advisors within the framework and limitations of law. This includes the statutes of the first regular and several special sessions to which he affixed his signature which affect the Budget. Also if the Governor complies with the Constitution, the Budget should also include provision for all those added expenditures he intends to recommend to the Legislature.

Results to Date on 1945-47 Budget

The committee, as it did in 1943, again believes that the results secured to date amply justify the procedure followed and the work done together with the assistance on the Budget which will be forthcoming will be to the satisfaction of the Legislature.

The original Budget requests of the several departments, agencies and commissions of the State together with fixed charges for the Biennium 1945-47 totaled approximately $745,000,000. These mere materially reduced as a result of the hearings held by the Director Finance in which the Legislative Auditor participated. Finally by subsequent action of the Director of Finance and the Governor, they appear in the Governor's Budget, page iii, at $683,710,643, a reduction of approximately $62,000,000. This, as the Governor has frankly stated in his Budget Message, is the largest Budget in the history of the State and it does not contain all the expenditure program recommended by the Governor as will be pointed out specifically subsequently.

Not an Economy Budget

This Budget is in part a wartime Budget and again the Legislative Auditor reports that in his opinion it is not a strict economy Budget nor is it made in full agreement with the policies enunciated by the Budget Committee for the State's wartime Budget or the instructions given him at the September 22, 1944, meeting of the Budget Committee. These departures will be specifically covered in his analysis of the budget given in detail later.

The Budget for 1945-47 is on the whole well balanced. There are some exceptions. In many items there has been mutual agreement on the amounts recommended for appropriations, the size of staffs, salaries, equipment, capital outlay, and other items. In other places there are differences of opinion, some depending solely on policy which of course the Legislature must decide. These will be pointed out for consideration by the Legislature.

Budget Can Be Expedited

The Budget Document is on the whole in good form. As a result of the participation of the Legislative Auditor, there are several items that appear in clear relief which we doubt would have been presented to the Legislature. One item we call particular attention to is the statement on page 713 of the Budget headed

Public Works, Division of Highways
Statement of Unbudgeted Surplus and Reserves for Postwar Highway Construction

A surplus of $36,704,033 is shown and a reserve of $40,000,000. Such a surplus has not been brought out in prior Budgets, although they have existed. The Governor recommends on page VII of his Budget Message that a Postwar Highway Construction Reserve be set up for reasons there explained. This does not appear in the Appropriation Act accompanying the Budget but an amendment has been prepared and a bill has been introduced to make the Governor's recommendation effective.

Due to constant study, observation and investigation of the operation of the departments and agencies of the State Government, the Legislative Auditor, as directed by the Budget Committee, is prepared to render his report on the Budget. He is also again in a position to report to the Legislature and its committees just how the Budget was prepared and the essential details for each appropriation request. He is prepared to function with the several committees as he did in 1943.

The Budget Committee hopes that the Budget can again be considered in as short a time as is reasonably consistent with its larger size. Also that as good or better results can be achieved. It believes that its operation will be helpful to this end.

Full Budget Report by Legislative Auditor

So as to provide definite information on the Budget we have instructed the Legislative Auditor to fully analyze the 1945-47 Budget and the Appropriation Act accompanying it and give his observations and comments thereon consistent with the instructions given him. This report does not contain all the detail available in our files so we have instructed the Legislative Auditor to be prepared to supplement this where desired before the several committees of the Legislature considering the Budget Bill and other appropriation measures.

Sec. 7.5. Whenever any real property is acquired by the State by reason of the violation of this act, either by escheat or by other method, the State Controller is authorized, upon such terms and subject to such conditions as in his judgment is for the best interests of the State, to sell the real property for cash or on deferred payments. The sale may be at public auction or at private sale. If the sale is made at public auction, it shall be made to the highest bidder, after notice thereof, stating the terms of sale, given in the manner and for the time prescribed in Section 1274 of the Code of Civil Procedure. If the real property is sold at private sale, the sale and all the terms thereof shall be subject to the approval of the Director of Finance.

Whenever, in the judgment of the State Controller, he can not immediately sell such real property to the best interests of the State, he may take possession of the real property, and rent or lease for cash rental or share rental, manage, repair, insure against fire, and otherwise operate and control the property until such time as an advantageous sale can be made.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, any sale made by the State Controller of lands acquired under this act shall convey the full title so acquired, without any reservations.

The proceeds of any sale, lease, rental or other income from transactions made with respect to real or personal property pursuant to the provisions of this act, or upon the recovery of any money resulting from a proceeding to escheat real or personal property, or from a conveyance thereof to the State without such a proceeding, shall be deposited in the State Treasury in the Alien Land Law Fund, which fund is hereby created. The Controller shall maintain a separate account in such fund covering the receipts and disbursements of moneys arising from the sale, rental or other transactions affecting real or personal property related to each escheat proceeding or to each conveyance or transfer to the State without such proceeding, as in this act provided.

All moneys deposited in the Alien Land Law Fund are hereby appropriated to pay the apportionments herein provided; to wit:

During the first 10 days of January, April, July, and October in each year, the Controller shall apportion and pay the balance remaining in each such separate account in the Alien Land Law Fund, as of the last day of the calendar month preceding the date of such apportionment, as follows: One-half thereof shall be transferred, on order of the Controller, to the School Land Fund, and one-half thereof shall be paid, by Controller's warrant, to the treasurer of the county in which was situated, in each case, as of the date of its escheat, conveyance or transfer to the State, the real or personal property from which the money so apportioned was derived.

Whenever all or any part of the balance in any such account in the Alien Land Law Fund was derived from real property or a leasehold interest in real property situated in more than one county, the amount thereof to be apportioned to such counties shall be apportioned and paid to each such county in the proportion which the acreage of such real property situated in such county bears to the total acreage of all such counties. The acreage to be employed by the Controller in making such apportionment shall be determined and furnished to him by the county surveyor of the county or counties participating in such apportionment. All money received by a county under this act shall be expended for the enforcement of this act or for the accomplishment of any other State purpose."

Amendment No. 7

Amendment No. 8

On page 2, line 37, of the printed bill, strike out "The district attorney of the", and insert "When requested by the Attorney General it shall be the duty of the district attorney or the county counsel of the proper county to join him in the enforcement of all the provisions of this act and in the investigation of violations thereof and the instituting and carrying on of escheat proceedings under this section. The Attorney General shall direct and coordinate the work of the district attorneys and county counsels in all such matters."

The Attorney General shall direct and coordinate the work of the district attorneys and county counsels in all such matters."

On page 4 of the printed bill, below line 21, insert

"SEC. 5. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, and safety within the meaning of Section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, and shall take effect immediately. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such necessity:

A large number of violations of the Alien Land Laws of California have taken place, over a considerable period of time, as a result of which substantial areas of land have been illegally acquired and are now being held by aliens ineligible to citizenship. This not only deprives citizens and those eligible to become such of the right to acquire and enjoy the use of these lands, but it engenders a lack of respect for the laws of this State and their enforcement, both on the part of ineligible aliens and citizens. There exists a feeling of uncertainty and distrust as to the lawful ownership of land in many localities of the State, with resultant growing resentment and threatened unrest. The prosecution of proper proceedings to escheat lands illegally acquired to the State and bring about their sale to those legally qualified to own and enjoy them is necessary at this time. Because of the crafty manner in which the subterfuges and evasions have been perpetrated, the task of uncovering these violations and conducting the necessary legal proceedings is extremely difficult, and requires the combined effort of the law agencies of the State. To meet the need the Attorney General must be fully implemented and the district attorneys and county counsels must join in this important work, with appropriate provision for the allocation and payment to the counties of a proper share of whatever proceeds result from escheat proceedings involving property situate therein."

Amendments read and adopted.

Bill ordered printed, and re-referred to Committee on Judiciary.
